Gov. Casey Visits Landis Dairy Farm

Pennsylvania Gov. Robert Casey and Mrs. Casey visited the Earl Landis dairy farm in Manheim Twp., Lancaster County, on their way back to Harrisburg after the city of Lancaster was capitol for a day last week. The first couple visited the historic farmhouse decorated with family antiques and then toured the bank barn with the cow stable on the lower level and the hay mows above. In the photo, Landis explains DHIA records to Gov. Casey while Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary and former dairy farmer from Westmoreland County, right, explains the finer points of the dairy business to the first lady. The cows seemed to have as much interest in their famous visitors as the state's first couple showed interest in the business of milking cows. See Lou Ann Good's family interview Page A-26. Trends In Agriculture Are Varied, Complex

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.

CHEVY CHASE, Md. — Agriculture in the United States apparently will be more complicated than current-day farming, according to predictions offered last week during a Northeast symposium on future trends in animal agriculture.

The symposium was held at the National 4-H Center and consisted of a morning session devoted to discussions on animal production and welfare and an afternoon session focusing on environmental impacts of agriculture.

According to symposium co-chairman David Brubaker, executive vice president of PennAg Industries Association, Ephrata, the purpose of the event was to bring together a number of people who represent a wide variety of interest in animal agriculture, and allow them to openly and rationally share views, opinions and facts.

No other goal was set, according to Brubaker, than to listen to each other and ask questions and to provide for one-to-one idea-sharing without fear of emotional outbreak or name-calling.

"We wanted to establish dialogue between animal rights groups and agriculturalists and to try to get people to see that issues are complicated and not amenable to simplistic solutions," Brubaker said.

Brubaker and others said they hoped that none of the participants held hidden agendas for the information-sharing activity.

Out of the 69 people registered to attend the symposium, about 50 showed. They represented special interest groups, activities or businesses. Included were those concerned with animal rights, animal welfare, animal production, agricultural research, other types

Daylight Time Starts Sunday

If you want to keep up with the rest of the world, set the clocks at the house and at the barn ahead one hour this weekend. Daylight Savings Time officially starts at 2:00 o'clock Sunday morning. But you can lose the hour just as well by re-adjusting the clocks ahead on Saturday night.

Inspired by the pictures that appeared on the Kid's Korner page in Lancaster Farming, Martha Hershey embrodiered and quilted this quilt.

Quilt Inspired By Kid's Korner Pictures

Quilt enthusiasts are always on the lookout for new designs. They get ideas from nature, printed designs, and art.

Recently Martha Hershey unveiled a work of art that she stitched by tracing pictures that appeared in Lancaster Farming on the Kid's Korner page.

Martha, a farmer's wife from Columbia Avenue in Lancaster, said that she cut out the pictures that appeared in the paper during the 1970s and early 1980s.

She traced the designs on 49 yellow patches. After painstakingly embroidering the animals and flowers in the crewel embroidery technique, she interspersed them with 50 mint green patches to get a full-sized quilt.

Martha started the embroidery about one and a half years ago. It took her an average of one day to complete each square with colorful floss embrodiery.

She said, "I thought I'd never

Delmarva Broiler Fryer

March 29, 1990

Movement of ready-to-cook whole fryers was generally fair and about as expected. Supplies of 3 pound and over sizes were fully adequate and being pushed, lighter weights were in close balance Less than trucklot asking prices were steady at 56-65 cents Live supplies were adequate Average live weights were irregular but mostly on the heavy side of desirable Today's processing schedules were also heavy The trade sentiment was unsettled In the parts complex, supplies of breast items were about adequate for current needs, legs and leg quarters were at least adequate, and wings ranged fully adequate to ample

National Egg Market

March 29, 1990

The market tone was unsettled and cautious. Demand was mixed with current demand overall on the light side. However, several areas reported a growing interest for retail promotional activity. Although supplies were in good balance with most inventories on the increase most distributors were confident that supplies would clear for the holidays Breakers were generally unaggressive concentrating on clearing existing floor stocks.

New York & Phila. Frozen Eggs

March 27, 1990

Prices were trending lower under an unsettled and cautious trade sentiment. Inquiry was about moderate but most buyers only bought what was absolutely necessary. Raw material supplies continued to increase and further processors easily maintained desired schedules.

Buyers & Sellers Welcome

Alfalfa's Triple Crown.

Emerald. Maxim. Funk's G-2852. These hardy alfalfas from Hoffman will place you in the winner's circle with improved yields, exceptional stand longevity, and broad-based disease protection

Emerald's the yield leader from start-to-finish. It has consistently bested Hoffman trials, while producing 5½ percent better than average yields in New York and Pennsylvania state trials.

Maxim's a sure bet for exceptional stand longevity And its two-year production average of 9.6 tons/acre will give you front-running yields

Funk's G-2852 tops the field with some of the best disease resistance available Backed by years of research, this newcomer has shown annual yield advantages of ½ ton/acre

When you're looking for a winning alfalfa yield, call your local Hoffman seed representative. Or call Hoffman Seeds direct for more information about Alfalfa's Triple Crown

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

APR. 2-8, 1990

Cape Cod alewives begin to run.

Pony Express begins delivering mail, Apr 3, 1860 Silk worms begin to spin . . President William Henry Harrison dies after one month in office, Apr 4, 1841 . Pocahontas marries Jamestown colonist John Rolfe, Apr 5, 1614 . Blue herons return to Vinal Haven, Maine, Apr. 6 . When April blows its horn, 'tis good for both hay and corn.

Ask the Old Farmer: Why is it that Eastern tourists are so keen about Injun pottery? Don't Eastern Injuns make any, or how? A Y, N M

It's the shape, brother! Stow cookies in some of those jars and a kid can't get his hand out with even the corner of one in it!

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: This week ends as it begins. cold and sleet, snow in the north. Then sunny again, more rain, and the north is whitened Don't be frightened!

Greater New York-New Jersey: Gray skies and drizzly, then sunny and seasonable Wait, there's more Intermittent heavy rains (Sorry!)

Middle Atlantic Coastal: There's something for everyone First cold, then sunny and seasonable, followed by more cold and rainy, finishing a little warmer

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Rain, heavy snow in the west, and cold, then partly cloudy and rain, heavy in the east Turning milder with a cloudy finish

OPINION

Antagonistic Groups Successfully Discuss Concerns

It may not have been a Camp David accord - no pacts were finalized - but a recent symposium in which two historically antagonistic groups discussed the future of animal agriculture was more than a successfully run forum on controversial agricultural topics.

The Northeast Regional Symposium, Future Trends in Animal Agriculture, sponsored by PennAg Industries, Ephrata, was held last week at the National 4-H Center in Chevy Chase, Md.

It was designed so that representatives from animal agriculture production organizations and animal protection groups could discuss animal welfare and environmental concerns.

More than a well-run seminar?

Much more than that.

It was a glimmer of hope that reasonable people can sit down in good faith and talk without fear.

As trite as it may seem, the occurance of such a discussion seems to have been a lost ability among people.

At public meetings, on Congressional and Senate floors, in dealing with neighbors or nations, discussing topics rationally, without apparent anger or displayed disgust has become a rarity.

There have been many zealots for many causes over many years.

Zealots grab public attention. They do it in the same way that purposefully misleading, sensational headlines or cheap slapstick routines take hold of American attention.

It wouldn't be so bad if such people and tricks were not taken seriously. But zealots and others who use emotionalistic drama, do little to further understanding and growth for mankind.

To Control Wild Garlic

Dairy farmers who pasture their milking herd have the most to lose if they do not eliminate wild garlic from their pasture fields. This fast growing wild onion is already growing in pastures and other grass areas.

The young plants are much easier to kill with herbicides than mature plants. We suggest that the plants be sprayed very soon with 2,4-D. This has proven effective in keeping the young plants from maturing; by spraying early in the spring the legumes in the pasture area will not be injured. Since the wild garlic plant is very well rooted, it may take several sprays over a period of two or more years to eliminate the weed from the area. Don't wait until the plants are mature to make this spray application. Follow label directions when applying any pesticide.

To Inspect Pasture Fields

It won't be long before some permanent pastures will be ready to graze. I am afraid that some may be grazed before they are ready. However, another area that I would like to review, is that you should walk over the pasture areas before livestock is turned out. Remove all trash to prevent injury and poisoning. Unfortunately, people still use the rural areas to dispose of their solid trash. Some of this may contain glass or poisons that will be harmful to livestock. Remove the litter before the livestock has a chance to become involved. If there is any evidence in the trash reflecting the guilty party (addressed envelopes, etc.), this information should be given to local officials. Most township regulations do not permit dumping of solid waste on private property.

To Ventilate Stables

Stables can be very difficult to ventilate in the spring of the year due to frequent and drastic changes in weather. It is important to have a constant change of air to control temperature and humidity and to keep odors and bacteria to a minimum, and this should be done without creating cold drafts on the animals. That means the windows, doors and vents need to be adjusted frequently throughout the day as weather conditions change. This is not convenient to do, but it is a very necessary chore. Many of these adjustments can be automated by installing thermostatically controlled fans and self-adjusting air inlets, both of which need to be properly installed and maintained.

For good herd health, be sure your barns are properly ventilated this spring. It will help improve animals' appetites and reduce the problem of respiratory ailments associated with warm, stuffy barns.

To Know About a Powdered Milk Product That Tastes Like Milk

Have you ever tried to drink a glass of reconstituted non-fat dried milk? Chances are, it did not taste like whole milk.

According to Glenn Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent, researchers in Illinois have discovered a formula for mixing precise amounts of water, soybean oil (or other vegetable oils) with non-fat dried milk. The ingredients remain in suspension, once mixed and the product tastes like the real thing, whole milk. Like milk, it can also be pasteurized.

A concentrate mix, could be purchased and kept frozen until needed. Or, if refrigeration is lacking, the ingredients do not have to be frozen; they can be purchased separately and mixed precisely according to the formula. Marketing details are yet to be worked out.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHAT IS TRUTH?

April 1, 1990

Background Scripture:
John 18:15-27.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 7:15-25a.

The maid's question was direct: "Are not you also one of this man's disciples?" Peter's response was no less emphatic and direct: "I am not."

Peter would not later be able to say that he didn't understand the question or that his reply had been misunderstood. It was a clearcut case of denial on his part. What could have made him give such an answer in light of his earlier pledge in the upper room: "Lord, why cannot I follow you now? I will lay down my life for you" (13:47). Had he not meant this vow? I think he was quite sincere at that moment. He said it and he meant it. But in the courtyard of Annas, his fear was greater than his loyalty.

THREE DENIALS

Can you not understand how Peter felt? Have you never made a vow which you didn't keep? Have you never backed down on good intentions because you were afraid? I have, and for pretty much the same reason that Peter did. I was afraid. Afraid of what? Afraid of being thought different from other people. Afraid of being thought weak or not a "regular fellow," or even unsophisticated. Yes, at times in my life, I have been a closet Christian — willing to practice in secret what I didn't want anyone to know publicly. I like to tell myself that, if I had been there with Peter, I wouldn't have said "I am not," but who knows what one will say until we actually stand where Peter did.

Jesus had foretold Peter's lapse of loyalty that night in the Upper Room. "Will you lay down your life for me? Truly, truly, I say to you, the cock will not crow til you have denied me three times" (13:38). And that's exactly what happened at the house of Annas. Can you imagine how remorseful Peter must have felt shortly thereafter? Despite his protestations of loyalty, he had betrayed the Master, just as surely as Judas did.

WHY AND HOW?

But there is a big different between Judas and Peter. Peter was redeemed, while Judas wasn't. Terrible as Peter's denial was, God was able to free Peter from his guilt and the disciple became God's great apostle. On the contrary, Judas never recovered from his own treachery. Was it because God could not forgive Judas? No, I think it was because Judas could not forgive himself. Something in his nature kept him from seeking Jesus' forgiveness. Perhaps he was just too proud!

But the important question is not why Peter denied our Lord, but why do we? Or better, perhaps, how we deny him. In what ways do you fail to fulfill your vows to Christ? When do you let him down? How are you disloyal to him? In other words, how do you say "I am not" one of his disciples?

If Peter had been my trusted disciple, I don't know that I would have forgiven him. Yet, because Jesus was willing to redeem Peter, he saved a life that would have been otherwise lost to the church. There can be life after we've said, "I am not."

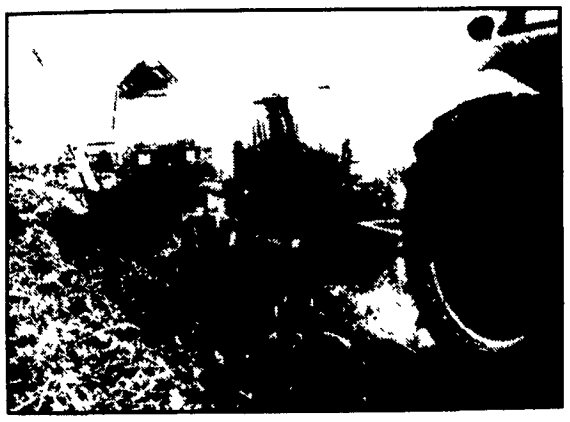
FARMING FOR THE FUTURE with



Model AW11BQ—4480 c/w transporter▲ pulling corn planter on one pass.

Quick-adjust▲ arm and roller

◀John VanDorp—
Woodstock, Ontario
Dairy and hog operation

"The Aer-Way is playing an important role in my soil-building program, and saving me fuel and labor at the same time."

Most of my farm is on rolling ground that is highly erodible. I was losing too much soil. This made it necessary for me to look at alternative tillage practices.

I found the Aer-Way to be an excellent tool for tilling the soil and relieving compaction while maintaining maximum residue cover for protection from wind and rain.

The Aer-Way works great with my legume cover crop system. The tool can be adjusted to till the soil without destroying the established growth that provides protection for wintering, while it opens the soil to allow the water to soak in.

On corn, I use the roller working angle at either 7¼ or 10 On my corn ground, I Aer-Way in the fall to partially incorporate the stalks. This helps to hold the soil and water on my hillsides and speeds up the rot-down of the residue. The Aer-Way only uses between five to six horsepower per foot of working width, so on my land I can use a smaller tractor. In the spring time, I hitch the planter directly to the back of my Aer-Way. This enables me to work and plant the field in one pass.

Due to the additional amounts of protective surface residue, I had to add a set of trash whippers to my existing corn planter. This tillage practice is helping me keep the soils in good shape for future use.

Alfalfa/Pasture. I set the roller working angle to either 0 or 2½ . Each season I use the Aer-Way on my hay and pastureland to alleviate the compaction caused from all the fertilizing and harvesting traffic. The Aer-Way ground allows the moisture and fertilizer to soak into the soil for better absorption by the roots. This allows me to maximize my fertilizer dollar.

First Annual Virginia Beef Expo

- Trade Show
- Great Food
- Entertainment
- Celebrity Cook-off
- Cattle Sales & Shows
- Exhibits, Displays

The first annual Virginia Beef Expo will include the beef seedstock industry, commercial cattle industry, the agri-industry which supplies and supports the beef industry, and beef consumers. The principle goals involve the further development of the Virginia and Mid-Atlantic seedstock and commercial cattle industries through an enlarged marketing and educational event. Antagonistic Groups

In order to further mutual understanding and social and individual growth, it has been proven that humans need time to be quiet, to listen, to look, to touch, feel, and to think things through and then talk to others; and to do so without fear of intimidation from loud commanding voices, threats in any way, or ridicule.

And, to a large degree, this is what happened on the outskirts of Washington D.C., of all places.

Incredibly, within a taxi-ride of a place known for political, personal and financial deceit and all sorts of dog and pony antics, a lee was found.

And in this quiet shelter from blowhard dogma and irrational and unintelligible spouting of diatribe, a small group of representatives from special interest organizations allowed time for each other without the games, the subterfuge, the intimidation, the masks and little lies that are more in line with people trying to win converts.

Perhaps such a thing occured because, removed from a strong supporting entourage and being on the neutral grounds of the National 4-H Center, everyone had a sense of equality — no armies to fight with or fight against.

Perhaps such a thing occured because not everyone was well known to each other; not pre-disposed to make prejudgements on the quality of information to be shared.

Perhaps it was because the issues of animal welfare and environment are not really new, but age-old and constantly in need of review.

Whatever the cause for such a climate for debate, we applaud the organizers and participants. We hope to see more.

Make Sure Water Is Safe

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Concerned about the quality of your drinking water? If you depend on your own well or spring, you should be.

"The quality of water from a private supply is the responsibility of its owner," said Dr. William Sharpe, water resource specialist at Penn State University. "If you don't test your water, no one else will."

Drinking contaminated water can be a health risk, Sharpe pointed out. "The Safe Drinking Water Act establilshed standards for water quality. If water doesn't meet those standards, it could cause problems for those drinking it."

Roof Raised At Kutztown Auction

Val VanTassel
Berks Co. Correspondent

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — Over 20 workers gathered last week to help raise the roof on the Kutztown Produce Auction. Bicycles were parked underneath a shade tree on Scheiry Lane while the Mennonite and Amish workmen took advantage of the unseasonably warm weather to pound the rafters into place. Carpenter Warren Shirk was on hand to supervise the project. T and S Construction is the contractor for the 60x80 foot structure. When finished the building will be open on three sides with an office, a box room, and restrooms. Workmen estimated it would take approximately three weeks of good weather to complete the barn.

For James Weaver, vice president of the auction, it's a dream that's been three years in the making. "In 1987 I saw how popular the auction near Lancaster (Leola) had become in two seasons for growers and buyers," Weaver said.

Weaver considered the idea for quite a while, talking it over with friends and cooperative extension personnel. Finally with the help of the Cooperative Extension, Weaver and several other vegetable farmers sent out 1000 surveys to producers in Berks, Montgomery, Lehigh, Bucks and Schuylkill Counties. "We were advised by the cooperative extension agents that with the increase in vegetable consumption and the growth in population in these areas that the time might be right for the auction," Weaver explained.

The auctions location, halfway between Reading and Allentown minutes off Rte. 222, is perfect to take advantage of the population boom in the area according to Berks Extension Agent Judy Schwank. "It's very trendy to eat vegetables right now and our population in this area is taking off. We really hope it's going to be a success."

Eventually two hundred surveys were returned expressing great interest in the idea of a Berks Co. auction. "With the price of farmland going up and developmental pressure still increasing many farmers are interested in finding another way to pay the farm off. Vegetables mean more income coming off every acre," Weaver said.

The farmers then identified 250 possible buyers in the area. They received slightly less than 20% response on that survey. "We have lots of buyers. Pennsylvania doesn't grow enough fresh produce during the season. Surburban shoppers want local, fresh produce 10 times more than the shipped vegetables," Weaver said.

The interest of growers and buyers was great enough for the group to commit themselves to opening the auction in May of this year. "We broke ground January 4," Weaver added.

In the beginning of February, the group sponsored a meeting for growers and buyers interested in the auction. According to Enos Burkholder, president of the auction, the turnout was even better than expected. "We held the meeting at the Kutztown Grange. There were 200 meals served at the grange and a number of people that hadn't made reservations either brought their lunch or ate elsewhere."

The meeting featured production information and a panel of buyers explaining their produce needs. It also produced big returns in terms of grower commitment. "We had 100 acres committed prior to the meeting. We now have a hundred more.

"We're going to be a sweet corn auction by the looks of things. Our biggest concern at this point is not buyers, there are plenty of those.

(Turn to Page A36)

Warm weather in recent weeks, gave the workers a chance to get an early start on the barn for the Kutztown Produce Auction. This wholesale vegetable auction is scheduled to open in Mid-May.

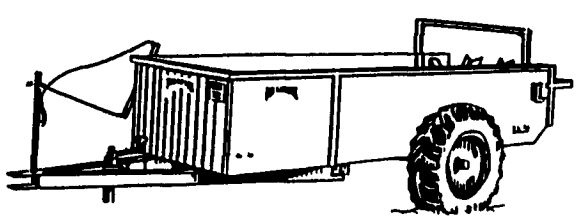
THE SPREADERS HORSE LOVERS LOVE

An affordable Millcreek spreader makes your barn cleanout easier

Hundreds of horse farm operators have discovered sturdy Millcreek spreaders are the affordable, simple answer to their manure-spreading problems. Designed especially for horse and hobby farms, Millcreek spreaders are reliable, simple to use and easy to maintain. The ground drive system was designed for spreaders with a much higher capacity. This means longer life and fewer problems. Operate behind 14- and 18-hp garden tractors. An optional horsedrawn kit is available for either spreader. PTO drive also available.



MODEL 75, 62 cubic ft capacity Operates behind 18-hp tractor

Which Corn Silage Hybrid Is Best for You?

Exclusively From Cargill!

A corn hybrid that's best for grain yield may not be the hybrid that produces the best silage for livestock, according to research conducted by Cargill.

For example, dairy cows need corn silage hybrids that can provide a high percentage of digestible fiber to help achieve top milk production and milk test. Beef cattle on a fattening program need a daily ration with a high energy density for fast weight gain.

This chart compares Cargill hybrids with each other. The rating scale is 9=Outstanding through 1=Substandard.

The above is based on the best information available in December, 1989. Sources include Cargill, university and on-farm research.

State-of-the-art techniques used include In-Vitro Digestible Dry Matter (VDDM) to stimulate the rumen environment using rumen microbial fluid, In-Vitro True Digestibility (VTD) was used to measure whole plant energy, In-Vitro Cell Wall Digestibility was used to measure the amount of digestible plant fiber available to influence dry matter intake.

The Corn Silage Menu was developed to help you select hybrids based on your livestock needs. We have evaluated our hybrids and identified those that tested highest in key silage traits. Use the Menu to make corn silage decisions.

Grain Yield rates hybrids on their grain production ability, adjusted to 15.5 percent moisture within a maturity range. Compare these ratings with silage tonnage and whole plant quality ratings and you will see differences.

Silage Tonnage rates hybrids on their ability to consistently produce high tonnage yields within their maturity range. Results of on-farm and research plots (80+ locations 1988-89) were summarized and corrected to 70 percent moisture. This enables us to analyze hybrids for silage tonnage in the same manner we do for grain yield.

The following whole plant quality characteristics are important.

Digestibility rates whole plant digestion and energy density. This is an accurate indication of a hybrid's total energy potential.

Intake Potential rates the fiber digestibility, a factor that affects potential intake of a ration. This is essential for top milk production.

Gov. Casey Visits Landis Dairy Farm

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — After the camera men, police, press secretary, and last limousine pulled away from the Landis Farm, Manheim, Earl Landis said, "They sure are nice people to be around."

Nice people refers to Gov. Bob Casey, Mrs. Casey, Secretary Boyd Wolff and his wife Peggy who visited the Landis Farm on Friday, March 23.

Ten days before the Landises had been contacted about the possibility of a visit. After advance people checked out the farm, the regional director said, "I have a big question that I hate to ask your wife."

Apologetically, he asked how Mrs. Landis would feel about serving lunch to Gov. Casey, Boyd Wolff, and their wives.

Evelyn agreed to serve lunch, but a hectic schedule cancelled the luncheon three days in advance.

"I would have enjoyed it," Evelyn said. "The women were so easy to talk with. We would have had a nice time."

The Landis's 70-acre farm is a visual showcase with it's 200-year-old sandblasted brick farmhouse, stone guest house, and landscaped surroundings.

While the men toured the barn, the women admired the Williamsburg decor guest house with its original walk-in fireplace, polished wide plank floors, and Indian door.

During the 13 years of operating the guest home, the Landises have enjoyed visiting with guests from many countries. Mrs. Landis told Mrs. Casey and Mrs. Wolff that guests sometimes sit up late at night to watch a calf being born, and that some guests join them in worship at the East Petersburg Mennonite Church.

After the tour, Mrs. Casey picked up a brochure on the guest house and said, "I'd love to stay overnight."

"Who knows?" Evelyn remarked, "She might return someday — I hope so."

As a token of their friendship, Evelyn gave Mrs. Casey a sweatshirt designed with a picture of the Landis Farm.

She was impressed that both Mrs. Casey and Mrs. Wolff are family oriented and enjoyed talking about their families.

The guests found out that Earl and Evelyn rise every morning at 4 a.m. to milk 52 Holsteins.

They were impressed that Evelyn does all the cleaning and laundry in her home and the guest house in addition to gardening, sewing, and crafts.

While in the barn, Sec. Wolff joked, "I farmed as long as I could until I couldn't get any more work out of my wife."

The Wolffs, who own a farm in Westmoreland County, have kept it no secret that they prefer farm life more than moving in political circles.

Evelyn said, "You could tell that Mrs. Wolff was delighted to be on the farm again."

The guests admired the pipeline milker hookup and studied Landis' DHIA papers. They asked about feeding schedules and examined the feed mixer.

Landis explained the underground manure storage system, which Casey had never seen before, and showed them the waterway that drains into a water trough so that former swamp land can be farmed.

Casey noted that present laws would prevent draining wetlands to use for farmland and noted that exceptions to the law should be made.

Earl said, "I didn't try to push any of my ideas on the governor. He has enough people around giving him ideas, he doesn't need mine."

Evelyn added, "I'm sure it would be hard to live a normal life and try to meet every one's expectations of what a governor should be doing."

"I'm glad we did it," Earl said. "It lasted only one hour, but it gave us a reason to clean up the place."

His wife smiled appreciately at her husband and said, "Earl always keeps the place clean. Guests can stop in any time and find it clean."

The Landis farm has been visited by bus tours, the National Young Farmers, Friendship Force groups from places such as Russia and France, the National Convention of County Agents, and by individuals.

Several years ago, a T.V. crew filmed the farm for two days to get a 60 second commercial for Bladex®. The commercial was aired in the midwest.

Earl and Evelyn Landis, right, visit with Mrs. Casey, left, and Peggy Wolff, wife of Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff. Earl Landis said that the visit gave him a different perspective on the governor.

Twelve-year-old Gary thought it was neat to have government officials visit his home.

PDPP Survey Shows Consumers Like Milk

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Pennsylvania's consumers count on dairy products for important vitamins and minerals in a healthy diet, according to recent market research conducted for the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP).

There's no doubt that milk remains the nutritious beverage of choice for Pennsylvania consumers. Among the survey respondents, 98 percent admitted they usually purchase milk for use at one glass of milk daily. Breakfast is still the most popular meal enjoyed with milk, followed by dinner, lunch and snacks.

Consumers also recognize milk as a source of good nutrition. Survey respondents selected vitamins and minerals, protein and calcium -- all found in milk and dairy producs -- as the healthiest factors among 12 nutrition and food categories.

While almost everyone agreed that milk is more nutritious than other soft drinks.

The popularity of dairy products isn't limited to milk. The survey revealed that 77 percent of Pennesylvania consumers also enjoy cheese at least once a week. American cheese is the preferred variety, followed by cheddar, mozzarella and swiss.

The research included telephone interviews with more than 700 adults in households with at least one other person. The results will be used to help develop targeted

Dairy Promotion Program Carries $760,000 Into '90

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Total funds available to the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP) ran ahead of projections by more than $320,000 or 13 percent, according to their 1989 annual report.

The PDPP, under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, provides "market, promotion, research, and nutrition education programs that maintain and expand domestic and foreign markets for fluid milk and dairy productions," according to the company's mission statement.

PDPP management expenses finished 18 percent below 1988-1989 budget. Combining increased funds and decreased expenses left PDPP with an unused contingency fund of more than $310,000. PDPP will carry about $760,000 into 1990.

Local funding programs are one area to benefit from the surplus, according to the report. In the past year, PDPP's contributions to the programs increased 38 percent, and the organization plans to "be even more active in soliciting local applications for funds in 1989-1990."

More than $1.21 million

From Allentown to Erie, Pennsylvania, PDPP spent more than $1.21 million to reach the target demographic segment of adults 18 to 54 years old.

Included in the advertising was a season-long buy on the Penn State Football Radio Network to promote fluid milk. Spots ran on more than 60 stations statewide. Sponsorship with Capital Radio Network was also included.

Holiday media schedules included commercials asking, "What would Holidays be like without real dairy products?"

The company also formed cooperative ventures to increase market penetration. According to the report, the most important partnership the PDPP formed during 1988-1989 was the cooperative marketing agreement between the PDPP and two allied Pennsylvania dairy promotion programs.

New partnership

A new partnership with the American Dairy Association (ADA), the Dairy Council (DC), and the Mid-East UDIA allowed PDPP to "pool" their advertising funds and make a joint media but of more than $545,000 to promote holiday products, according to the report.

"In early 1989 we entered negotiations with the ADA/DC and the Mid-East UDIA, with the objective of pooling and coordinating the marketing dollars spent in Pennsylvania," wrote Paul Corbin, PDPP chairman, in the report. "The result was the 'Joint Program Development and Promotional Assessment Funds Allocation Agreement.'

"The agreement took effect on July 1 and we saw immediate benefits in the form of an October-to-December media buy," Corbin wrote. "Our message not only reached more potential consumers than ever before, but we also realized substantial savings for Pennsylvania's dairymen."

Before 1989-90 is finished, the report indicated, the partnership will have spent "some $2.1 million" to advertise dairy products.

Scibilia Answers More Questions About The Prostaph Test

Editor's note: Here's the second part of Linda Scibilia's article about the Prostaph test available from the Pennsylvania DHIA. Scibilia is lab manager and she provides information that is useful to all dairy producers, DHIA members or not.

LINDA SCIBILIA
Manager, Lab Operations
PA DHIA

WHAT DO THE RESULTS LOOK LIKE AND WHAT DO THEY TELL ME?

The results of the Pro-staph test tell you how much Staph aureus antibody is in the milk of the tested cow. The results appear in a simple coding system which is described below:

0 (N) indicates that there is no Staph aureus antibody present in the milk of this cow. The N indicates that this cow is considered to be negative for Staph aureus mastitis.

1+ (N) indicates a low level of Staph aureus antibody in the milk. The N indicates that this cow is considered to be negative for Staph aureus mastitis. The fact that there is some level of Staph aureus antibody present in the milk indicates that the cow has probably been exposed, at some time, to the Staph aureus organism.

2+ (S) indicates a medium level of Staph aureus antibody in the milk. The S indicates that this cow is considered to be suspect for Staph aureus mastitis. She may be recovering from a Staph aureus infection, or may be recently infected and just developing the antibody response. These cows should be retested with the Prostaph test at the next monthly test.

3+ (P) indicates a high level of Staph aureus antibody in the milk. The P indicates that this cow is considered positive for Staph aureus mastitis.

WHAT COWS SHOULD I TEST WITH PROSTAPH?

Because of the elusive nature of the Staph aureus organism, it is recommended that the initial screening of your herd be done on all cows. There is no easy way to determine which cows should be tested for Staph. Somatic cell count, as suggested by some, is not a good indicator of Staph aureus infection. In one study, 30 to 35% of cows showing positive for Staph aureus had SCC counts below 300,000.

Some dairymen have asked us to test a tank sample first, using the Prostaph test, and plan to test the whole herd the next month if the tank sample comes up positive.

It is recommended you do not test a tank sample with the Prostaph test, as the results may be misleading. The guidelines or limits which were developed to indicate negative, suspect or positive levels of antibody do not apply in a like manner to a tank sample. This is due, primarily, to the dilution effect in a tank sample.

For example, in a herd with 50 cows, 3 positive cows would not necessarily produce enough antibody to cause the tank sample to show positive. Those same 3 cows, however, can continue to shed organisms and infect other cows in the herd for as long as they go undetected. The use of tank sample testing as an initial screening tool is still being researched, however, and guidelines for this application are expected to be released later this year.

Because of the study done at Penn State, and the number of Prostaph positives that showed negative with culture, it is recommended that any Prostaph 2+ (S) cows be retested at the next monthly test. If the cow comes back as a 2+ (S) the second consecutive month, the dairyman and veterinarian need to decide at that point what to do with the cow(s). Any 3+ (P) cows should be cultured by the veterinarian as soon as possible to verify Staph aureus infection.

Once the initial Staph aureus screening has been done on a herd, it is recommended to Prostaph test any cows new to the herd (purchased cows and new fresh heifers), as well as retesting cows each time they freshen.

Please note, however, that Prostaph may show false positives for cows less than 30 days fresh, or those producing less than 30 lbs. of milk daily, so waiting until cows are beyond this stage in their lactation is advisable.

If it is a late lactation cow, producing less than 30 lbs. of milk daily, and she will be dry the next test, it is best to have her cultured for the Staph aureus bacteria.

Initially, Staph aureus test results are being sent back on a separate report. This report is included with the other monthly reports if possible. If the results are not finished by the time the other sheets are ready to be mailed, the Staph aureus report will be mailed separately as soon as it is available, so as not to hold up the return of other reports to the member. Eventually the Staph aureus test result codes will appear on a regular PA DHIA report.

ANOTHER MANAGEMENT TOOL

In summary, the Pro-staph test for Staph aureus is another tool offered by PA DHIA to assist dairymen in making intelligent management decisions for their herd. It is new technology and is very exciting, because it may have applications, down the road, in other pertinent disease situations such as Streptococcus agalactiae and Johnes.

Because it is new, and a very different kind of test than you may be accustomed to using, we strongly recommend the inclusion of your veterinarian in the practical usage of the test results. DHIA personnel are more than willing to explain the meaning of the test results (as described above) but are not in a position to advise how to act on those results.

Questions may be directed to Linda Scibilia or Dean Amick at 1-800-DHI-TEST. Questions on practical usage should be directed to your veterinarian or extension personnel. Extension personnel associated with this project at Penn State are Dr. Robert Eberhart and Dr. Larry Hutchinson.

Good Alfalfa can Reduce Your Feed Bill

Timothy J. Fritz
Montgomery County Extension Agent

A good alfalfa crop can make a big difference in your feed bill and milk production.

The effects of last year's heavy rains, and dry weather during the two prior years, have left many alfalfa fields in poor condition.

Consequently, this spring, many new alfalfa seedings will be started and many established fields will be rotated out of alfalfa.

Before the alfalfa planting season begins, make sure you get out into the field and out of the truck to see how your alfalfa has survived.

If the alfalfa is still dormant, consider waiting until the plants start new growth.

For an established alfalfa stand to be profitable, three to five healthy plants per square foot should be present. A brightly painted metal frame is an excellent aid in counting plants per square foot.

If you don't have a frame, they are simple to make. All you have to do is weld four 12-inch metal rods together and spray paint it a bright color like orange.

When checking fields, it's a good idea to check several areas of the field and take a shovel with you to dig out the individual plants to determine if the roots are diseased. Plants with diseased roots and those that have been heaved from the soil, should not be considered healthy.

After determining the number of healthy plants per square you have a few options.

If you determine the stand is not adequate, rotate to corn. Remember, alfalfa will contribute considerable amounts of nitrogen to the following crop.

In many cases, starter fertilizer will provide enough additional nitrogen to the corn crop. For insurance and peace of mind, a soil nitrate test just prior to sidedressing of corn should be taken to insure adequate nitrogen is available.

If the stand is marginal and you decide to keep it one more year, harvest the first cutting from these marginal stands after the healthy stands have been harvested.

If you find all your fields are weak, consider delaying harvest till mid-bloom to build up the energy reserves within the plants. Remember your alfalfa just went through two stressful growing seasons.

How about weed control in these marginal fields?

Studies have shown weed control during the last growing season is not profitable.

In some instances, weed control has created large losses, because the weeds were providing a substantial amount of the forage.

For the stands that are in good condition, make sure you don't harvest to early. I would recommend waiting this year until at least 1st flower for the first cut. A slightly lower quality forage may be worth additional stand life.

On the other hand, don't wait until full bloom to start harvest.

Harvest management during all years should also consider the amount of stress placed on the alfalfa plants. Fields that are well drained, fertilized according to soil tests recommendations, and are not stressed by insects such as potato leaf hoppers can be harvested at a higher intensity than fields with less than ideal conditions for alfalfa.

Establishing New Stands Field Selection

Field selection and variety selection are two crucial decisions that must be made prior to seeding. Once the field has been planted, there is nothing you can do to change them.

Field selection, which will be addressed below, can make or break a successful stand.

Several factors should be considered before the final decision is made. The first and probably most important factors are soil related.

As way of a little backround, alfalfa originated from arid soils in the Mid-East. Consequently, the plant prefers well drained soils.

In addition, soil pH is important for two reasons.

First, the plant and rhizobia bacteria which form the nodules prefer a pH between 6.5 and 7.0.

Now you may say, "Well, I'll just get a lime truck out there and raise the pH to 6.5 to 7.0."

It's not quite that simple - in particular if the soil pH is below 6.2 or so. You have to keep in mind that lime is slow reacting.

The second reason for considering pH has to do with herbicide carryover.

If you are using triazine herbicides such as atrazine, especially under low pH situations, you should be cautious.

Triazine herbicides are less effective under low pH conditions. What happens is, the herbicide becomes tied up with soil particles.

However if lime is applied to the field, the pH rises and the herbicide is released into soil solution. Consequently, liming just prior to seeding alfalfa may cause atrazine injury to the alfalfa seedlings.

For these reasons liming should be done at least six months prior to seeding. But, better yet, liming should be done about a full growing season before you plan to seed alfalfa.

Prior herbicide usage in the Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Completes Sales Training

DeFOREST, WI. — To better meet the production and conformation needs of area dairy and beef producers, Robert Hewitt, Spring City, Pennsylvania, has completed an intensive seven-day training program at American Breeders Service.

This program is designed to provide ABS Sales and Service Representatives with a solid background in all areas of artificial insemination (A.I.) management and semen distribution.

During the seven-day program, Hewitt received technical instruction and workshop experience in insemination techniques, semen handling, record keeping, cattle breeding programs and A.I. management for dairy and beef herds.

ABS, the largest A.I. organization in the world, is headquartered near DeForest, Wisconsin. The company goes to great effort to keep its Sales and Service Representatives updated on bull power, support programs and industry trends so they in turn can confidently advise dairy and beef producers on how best to make mating decisions and manage their A.I. programs.

Heavy emphasis is placed on training representatives in using the Genetic Mating Services (GMS), the first computerized mating system which evolved in 1968. The linear measurement system so popular in the A.I. industry today, started with the GMS program in 1975. Linear evaluation is an objective method of looking at each dairy trait to determine the most beneficial mating.

Hewitt will be working with a specially-trained evaluator in identifying herd breeding objectives of individual dairymen, arranging cow-coding appointments and interpreting mating recommendations.

fields should definitely be looked into.

On herbicides used in the prior two years, check the herbicide label for any crop rotation restrictions. Many new soybean herbicides have 18-month restrictions on alfalfa.

If corn was the previous crop, low rates of atrazine should have been used. If more was used, then consider planting alfalfa in another field.

In making new herbicide applications on fields you plan to convert to alfalfa in the near future, short residual materials are preferable.

Other considerations for selecting the best site for alfalfa are insect, disease, and weed problems in a particular field.

If the field has been in a continuous crop for several years, pest build up may be high and rotating into alfalfa will have several advantages.

Alfalfa is a very competitive crop which, in combination with regular cutting, will control many hard-to-kill weeds in row crops. Canada thistle, hemp dogbane, horsenettle, bindweed, morningglory, and bur-cucumber can all be brought under control by simply maintaining a healthy alfalfa crop.

The final consideration for field selection is distance to the storage area.

You are the final judge of where the new stands will be planted. Make sure that you have made an informed decision. After all, you and your dairy cattle will have to live with it, hopefully for several years.

The alternative to light-duty finishing harrows

If you're leaving your seedbed rough consider the alternative. Heavy-duty Harogator® tillage tools from Unverferth.

The Harogator® mounted harrow is a perfect tillage tool following a field cultivator, disk or chisel plow. Mounted directly to your existing equipment, it allows one-trip seedbed preparation. Because of its heavy-duty, rigid structure, the Harogator® breaks up clods, fills in pockets and levels soil to produce a superior seedbed.

The UM Harogator® mounted harrow is available in 1-bar, 2-bar and 3-bar models. Standard widths and folding wing extensions have been designed to match your existing implements. It's the perfect companion tool to mount directly on your field cultivator, disk or chisel plow.

Put an end to poor seedbed preparation with the alternative. Harogator® For more information and the name of your dealer, contact Unverferth Manufacturing Co., Inc., P.O. Box 357, Kalida, OH 45853. 1-800-322-6301 in the U.S. • 419-532-3121 FAX 419-532-2468 • Telex 265026

Veterinarian Nutrition Seminar Draws International Interest

ALFRED, N.Y. — Veterinarians from seven states and three Canadian provinces took part in the recent veterinary nutrition seminar staged at Alfred State College.

The four-day conference drew attendees from New York, Pennsylvania, maryland, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont and from Ontario, Quebec, and Manitoba, according to Thomas J. Cannon, assistant professor with Alfred State's Plant and Animal Science Department.

Dr. Dorothy Diggs, Gap, examines a Holstein from the New York Alfred State College herd, along with Thomas Cannon, assistant professor in the college's Plant and Animal Science Department.

Seminar topics included the newest technology related to dairy cattle nutrition, robotics for feeding cows, nutritional management of the BST-supplemented herd, body condition scoring, and the use of computers in dairy cattle management.

The conference was co-sponsored by Alfred State College and by Dairy Production Consultants (DPC), of which Cannon is a member.

He said DCP is interested int he profitability of dairy farms, working with dairy farmers through the use of records analysis, nutrition management, and preventive veterinary medicine.

Besides Cannon, other Alfred State faculty members making seminar presentations were Ronald D. Stutzman, associate professor and chairman of the Plant and Animal Science Department, and George H. Granger, a professor inthe department.

Veterinarians attending from Pennsylvania include Dr. Helen S. Longacre, Susquehanna; Dr. Alan E. Oliver, Greencastle; Evelyn Crish, Honesdale; Dorothy Diggs, Gap.

From New York were doctors Peter Ostrum, Lowville; Patricia Ashley, Lowville; David R. Scoville, Palmyra; Timothy R. Vaughan, Pine City; William J. Prokop, Unadilla; Edward C. Schoene, Springfield Center; David Stockwell, Nelliston; and Arden J. Nelson, Cortland.

Others include doctors David Booth, Westminster, Md.; Robert C. Fry, Chestertown, Md.; Craig Embree, Vermont; Ollie Gellner, Ontario; Jerry Green, Ontario; Hans Wytenburg, Ontario; Henry Ceelen, Ontario; Denis Rainville, Quebec; Douglas Bazinet, Manitoba; Stathis Demson, Mass.; Howard Levine, Conn.; and Howard W. Spring Holstein Show Displays Best Bovines Yet

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The recent 37th State Spring Show of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association was one of the best the breed organization has had, according to officials.

Held March 23 at the state Farm Show building, the Grand Champion Female banner went to Lockway Holly Sexation, a 6-year-old, sired by Ocean View Sexation, the dam was Lockway Honie. She was bred by C. Richard and father H. Wayne Locke, of Lockway Farms, and is owned by C. Richard and Georgianna Locke.

Taking the Reserve Grand banner was Hardindale Mark Rosita, a 3-year-old bred by Robert Hardin III and owned by Robert C. Morrell and Candace and Wayne Morsfelder. The cow's dam was Grassy-Knowl Ron Elevation and sire was Walkway Chief Mark.

Robert Morrell, also took one of the top people awards, being named Premier Exhibitor. Taking honors as Premier Breeder was Gorewood Farms, represented by Tim, Gordon, Heather and Ron Woods.

The Junior Grand Champion Cow was Maple Flat Odyssey Ricky, a 3-year-old bred and owned by Deanna Sparling. The sire was Dreamstreet Odyssy-ET, the dam Maple-Flat Citation Ruth.

Taking Junior Reserve Grand honors was Welk-Crest Eddie Lou Ella, also a 3-year-old, owned and bred by Matthew T. Welk. The dam is Welk-Crest Locust Leanne, the sire Woodbine-K Valiant Eddie.

According to Kenneth Raney, director of membership service for the Holstein Association and therefore show coordinator, "It was a top quality show, one of the best we've had. There was good depth, quality animals and a good ringside."

In more than five years with the Hosltein Association, Raney said he has noticed some change in show entries.

"The quality (of Hoslteins) has always been pretty good in Pennsylvania. Now they are showing a lot more cows than they used to. They used to show heifers, now there are more cows, which makes for a more interesting show," Raney said.

The show was judged by Lowell Lindsay, from Ontario. Raney noted that basically judges are still looking for the same things in Holsteins.

"The cattle haven't changed. The judges are still looking for tall, clean, dairy-looking animal with a good udder. We were real pleased with the job he (Lindsay) did and he found the right one," Raney said.

The Spring Holstein Show is an important one on the breeder and competitor's calendar. Show entrants and those who place, in each class, get awards.

But more than that, Raney said, the top cows get points.

Raney explained that a coveted honor is to get a cow named All-

THE QUICK REVERSE.

You might say the L3750 is quick on its tires. With eight forward and eight reverse speeds plus your choice of a mechanical or hydraulic shuttle-shift, all kinds of front loader jobs go quick.

The L3750 is even a smooth mover under the hood. A new 5-cylinder diesel engine improves performance over a smaller engine, without the fuel consumption of a bigger engine.

Other features that help make the work go quickly include a cleanly designed operator platform with the gearshift controls within easy reach at your fingertips. Not underfoot.

So see the 36 PTO horsepower Kubota L3750 soon. Or make that quick.

KUBOTA®

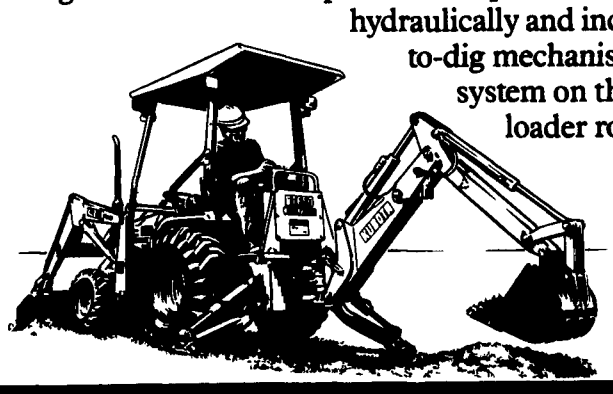
TIGHT MOVES

Kubota's first-of-a-kind B-20 diesel tractor may surprise you. Imagine the power and performance of a TLB with the compact versatility to maneuver into tight places!

The B-20 was designed to meet the needs of building contractors, landscapers and others who need to perform loader, backhoe and light construction work with versatility and ease.

Kubota-made liquid cooled 20HP engine with hydrostatic transmission, integral power steering and standard 4WD provides greater traction and power. The quick attach backhoe is driven hydraulically and includes standard return-to-dig mechanism. A Four-Bar Link system on the rigid mount front loader rounds out the package.



For your tightest and most demanding needs, Kubota's compact B-20 has full size performance all wrapped up.

Pennsylvania. The award is based on a point system and in order to qualify for the award, a certain number of points need to be accumulated for the year.

"The spring show is the first in line," Raney said. "Those who do well in regional shows in the summer and then in the fall (Holstein) show have a good chance at All-Pennsylvania," he said.

There are other benefits to the show program, Raney said.

"It is real good advertisement for our association, not only on the state level, but there are a whole lot of local shows that they (the association) sponsor and that get people involved in activities and creates interest in what we're doing," he said.

In the past, some people have questioned the value of such breed shows. Raney said they are still very necessary and still based on dariyman needs.

"Production is still the number one goal for the average guy on the farm, and along with that is that a cow has to be appealing to the eye and still be around for a while. You look for production, type and longevity," he said.

"Showing also gives an opportunity to look at daughters of some of the sires that are out there," Raney said. "And that's something you normally don't get a chance to see; what that sire is doing in somebody else's herd.

According to Raney, although displaying the results of good genetics is still the predominate reason for a show, time has changed some things.

"In the olden days, a lot of people came to shows with cows trying to sell their own bulls individually and people were merchandising for the bull end," Raney said. "Now a lot of merchandising is for the top end of the show, the top end of the classes, people are buying some of those top animals."

The Association's fall show is tentatively set for Sept. 7 at the Penn State University Agriculture Arena. More details are to become available closer to the projected show date. Anyone interesting in joining the association or getting more information should call 814-234-0364, or write to the association at 839 Benner Pike, State College, 16801.

Mt. Joy Dairyman Re-elected To RCMA Post

BATAVIA, NY — Joseph Hess Jr. of Mt. Joy was re-elected director to represent Region 17 on the Board of Directors of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) for 1990.

RCMA Region 17 includes Lancaster and York counties. As director, Mr. Hess represents the independent dairymen who are RCMA members in those counties. The RCMA Board of Directors meets monthly.

Mr. Hess, who has been farming for 18 years, is in partnership with his father, Joseph Sr., on their 300-acre farm with 150 cows. They also raise 50 acres of processing tomatoes.

In addition to his activities with RCMA, Mr. Hess is a board member at the Kraybill Mennonite School. He and his wife, Linda, are assistant superintendents of the Bible School at the Mt. Joy Mennonite Church. They have four children, Heather, 15; Aaron, 13; Katie, 8; and Laura, 5.

He is active in RCMA because he said he believes farmers must work together to assure the future of the dairy industry; that producers need an organization like RCMA to help stabilize milk prices so they can make sound business decisions for their farm operations.

Elected to the position of delegate for Region 17 was Christian G. Becker of Elizabethtown. He and his family have a herd of 50 cows. They also raise corn, alfalfa and beans.

The delegate votes on important membership issues during the RCMA annual meeting each December.

The election was conducted March 6 during the Region 17 Annual Meeting at the Clearview Diner in Elizabethtown. The election results were confirmed by the Board of Directors at their March 9 meeting in Albany, NY.

RCMA is a dairy-farmer organization working to assure a fair price for milk. It does this by collecting from milk processors an over-order price, or premium, on milk sold for fluid consumption. That premium is then disbursed among RCMA members. Over the past two years, RCMA has distributed nearly $70 million to dairy farmers. There are 22,000 RCMA members in the 11 states of the Northeast.

Kutztown Auction

We need producers to guarantee there will be plenty of produce at the auction," Weaver said.

According to Weaver there will be tomatoes, cantalopes, broccoli, peppers, and cauliflower at the auction as well. "We will have most things although no one has said they will be growing egg plant yet."

One couple that hopes to both buy and sell at the auction is Steve and Gayle Ganser. The Gansers own a farm market on Rte. 100 in Trexlertown and supply produce to 15 restaurants in the area. They also grow 68 different things on their small vegetable farm near Kutztown. "We're looking to sell extra vegetables at the auction when we have too many come in at the same time for us to sell at the market. We have also put in extra beans, watermelon, tomatoes, broccoli, squash and cucumbers specifically to sell through the auction. We're hoping that some nongrowers will get involved with a market so close to home," Ganser said.

The Gansers plan on buying vegetables they just aren't growing enough of to fill the market's demand. "We always need sweet corn and strawberries," Ganser said.

"We hope buyers are patient enough to let the auction get established. It will take a while to get going," his wife added.

The Gansers added a few tips for first time growers. "Vegetables take a lot of labor, hand labor. It is the thing that dictates how much you can do. Also start with a major vegetable because you know there will be a market," Ganser said.

The Gansers choices for a first time grower included tomatoes, cantaloupe, sweet corn, and broccoli.

Weaver cautioned growers to listen to the buyers. "Buyers are looking for quality. Produce should be picked a few hours before market."

With that in mind Weaver said the auction has great potential. "We will be selling to wholesalers not retailers. We hope to serve as a bridge between growers and buyers."

Burkholder added that the group had visited a number of other auctions and hoped to use the experience to improve the Kutztown operation. "We will be supplying boxes with our logo printed on it. We also hope to speed up the auction process by moving the produce to the auctioneer rather than moving people to the produce. We think that will save a lot of time."

The auction is scheduled to open in the middle of May. "We plan on being open Tuesdays and Thursdays. At certain times of the season, say when the cantaloupes come in, we may be open 5 or 6 days. We don't anticipate having too much of any crop unless everything comes in at once. We do recommend spreading things out with continual plantings."

The auction will close down around Thanksgiving depending on when the killing frost occurs.

For growers or buyers needing directions or more information on the auction, contact James Weaver (215) 682-6094.

Quilt Inspired By Kid's Korner Pictures

get finished."

Her daughter, Ruth Bruchart, pieced the top together and friends helped quilt it. "It only took two and a half weeks to quilt because I had so many friends who helped," Martha said.

Nine years ago, Martha lost her leg to cancer. She had been used to an active life of gardening and going to market with the produce. She also had helped helped her husband, Elvin, milk cows and butcher hogs and chickens for market.

Confined to a wheel chair, Martha thought of all the things she could no longer do.

"It really changed our life," Martha said. "My husband couldn't continue to go to market or milk cows without my help."

But it didn't take the spunky Martha long to decide that she wasn't going to waste time feeling sorry for herself.

"You can always find someone who is worse off than yourself," she said.

She learned to use a walker by hopping and to stand on one leg while preparing meals. It took a lot of strength and coordination, but Martha has so perfected her technique of getting from place to place that she can manage quite well when alone. She slips from chair, to walker, to wheelchair with no problem.

One of the things that she finds quite easy to do is sewing. She sews most of the day for others.

Each year she makes 100 dresses for relief work and other projects for her church sewing circle. Recently, she completed 17 dresses in one week.

She also makes cloth dolls. Her interest in sewing dolls began when one of her granddaughters asked, "Grandma, can't you fix my doll?"

After examining the doll, Martha made a new body out of material and attached the previous head.

She decided if she could make the body of a doll, she could make a whole doll. She embrodiers delightful faces on her handmade dolls and attaches yarn hair braided into pig tails. The dolls are marketed at the Old Country Store in Intercourse. Martha has also made some for her four children, 14 grandchildren, and 11 great grandchildren.

The Hersheys live in a stately brick farmhouse built in 1885 with a barn dated 1805 and a shed with a 1773 cornerstone. They farm 87 acres of spinach, canteloupes, sweet corn, potatoes, field corn, wheat, and hay. Elvin also raises heifers.

The quilt, which has aroused the interest of quilt collectors, will remain in the Hershey family.

"I'm not selling it," Martha said, "not at any price."

When cancer claimed one of Martha Hershey's legs, she devoted her time to sewing for others. Here she sits with a few of the hundreds of dolls that she makes. She also sews 100 dresses annually for mission relief.

AGRI-LINK

1990 BASKET

THE PRACTICAL WAY TO HANDLE SQUARE BALES FROM THE FIELD TO THE BARN.

ADVANTAGES OF "HAYBASKET"

- Reduces baling time by up to one-half since you can unload at the barn with the flip of a lever.
- Reduce the number of broken bales caused by a bale thrower.
- Eliminate maintenance cost of a kicker/thrower.
- If you presently are not using a kicker or need a new baler, eliminate the entire cost of a kicker.
- Eliminate the aggravation and back breaking labor of unloading tangled, wedged bales from a slippery floor three feet off the ground.
- Replace three hay wagons with two haybaskets since unloading time is so fast.
- Eliminate the "Swaying" problem with 4 wheel wagons on the road. Increase transport speed.
- The Haybasket acts like a "Two-Wheel" Trailer. Since the front wheel casters, it is easy to maneuver.
- The Haybasket is priced close enough to a new kicker wagon that it is very affordable.

QUESTIONS MOST FREQUENTLY ASKED.

- HOW MANY BALES DOES IT HOLD?
  The Haybasket will hold from 95-100 full size bales.
- WHAT ABOUT CORNERS?
  Owners report that they can follow average raked corners with no problem. One owner said he can make a 90 degree turn.
- WHAT ABOUT HILLS?
  With a 10' Wheelbase and a very low center of gravity the haybasket is much more stable on hillsides than a wagon with a 72" treadwidth and high center of gravity.
- WHERE CAN I GET ONE?
  Your local equipment dealer can supply you with a haybasket. Ask him for details on pricing and availability.

For more information return the coupon to the address listed and check the appropriate box.

☐ Send me literature and the name of my nearest haybasket dealer.

☐ Send me a VHS tape ($10. Plus C.O.D. Charges) and literature on the haybasket.

Farm Forum

state staffing for agricultural education reflects this fact. Once, the two senior full-time staff positions in agricultural education were abolished, Pennsylvania agriculture education was critically "wounded". While agricultural education lies in the "intensive care" unit, things could go either way. I maintain that with the help of the Governor, our Secretary of Education, Secretary Carroll, our Secretary of Agriculture, Secretary Wolff, and all our legislators, we can reverse the patient's condition and restore agricultural education to the healthy status it deserves.

I would propose the following "recovery" steps:—

1. Restore the only position we have on a state level to a full time Agriculture Education Supervisor - Senior Program Specialist. This would mean making the present position go from 50% agriculture educational position to 100% agriculture education. Every other state has at least that position.

2. Redirect the existing staff positions, which are now miniscule as far as ag education goes, to two additional assistants, working with the senior program specialist, on agricultural education. These existing staff positions are now generalist in vocational education areas.

3. Provide staff support for the FFA with the appropriate agriculture education/FFA background. Even if it was a half time position, I feel confident that the FFA Association, through support of the FFA Foundation and/or concerned agricultural industry support, would seriously consider matching funds to make this position full time.

4. Outside of the vocational education field, a major leadership effort should be given to "Ag in the Classroom", a comprehensive K-12 program aimed at curbing the illiteracy that exists about Pennsylvania, the United States, and global agricultural issues.

5. An effort should be made to redirect the existing V.A. D.M. and any additional funds to those agriculture education programs meeting quality standards here in Pennsylvania. These improvement funds stimulate further enhancement of agricultural education across the state.

6. Finally, it is vital to continue the line item support for the Pennsylvania FFA. We need this to insure the prosperity of the Pennsylvania FFA and the prosperity of the agri-leaders of the future.

Now is the time for all concerned to take an active part in insuring that this critical situation never occurs again. It is important to us involved in agriculture that all our governmental leaders and agricultural proponets in this state take active part in understanding and promoting Pennsylvania agricultural education for the future.

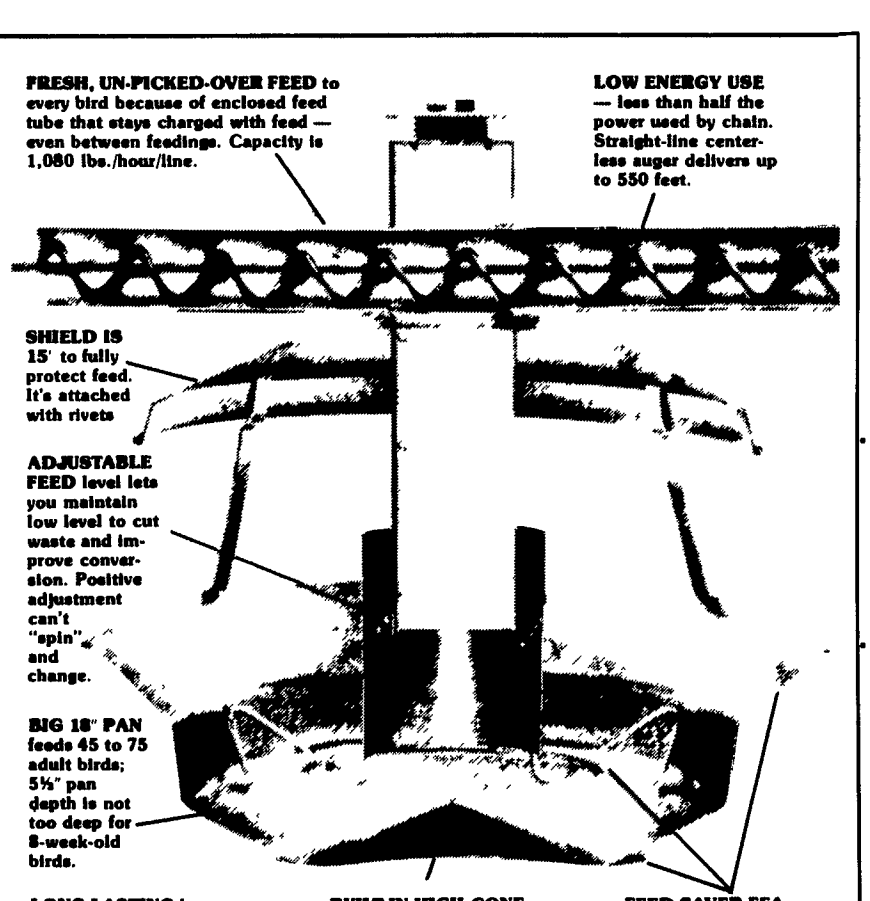
RAISING TURKEYS?

'Nothing else works like a Chore-Time...'

—that's why it's No. 1 with turkey producers

Chore-Time was first with a confinement turkey feeder, while others were trying to sell you made-over range feeders. We've kept improving on our idea. Now, Chore-Time's Turkey Feeding Systems are the standard of the world. No other equipment even comes close — in feed conversion features, in ruggedness, in ease of operation. That's why growers who have Chore-Time say, "Nothing else works like a Chore-Time system." Before you buy, consider the facts about Chore-Time's unique Model ATF Adult Turkey Feeder, plus our starter and grower systems:



FRESH, UN-PICKED-OVER FEED to every bird because of enclosed feed tube that stays charged with feed — even between feedings. Capacity is 1,080 lbs./hour/line.
LOW ENERGY USE — less than half the power used by chain. Straight-line centerless auger delivers up to 550 feet.
SHIELD IS 15" to fully protect feed. It's attached with rivets
ADJUSTABLE FEED level lets you maintain low level to cut waste and improve conversion. Positive adjustment can't "spin" and change.
BIG 18" PAN feeds 45 to 75 adult birds; 5½" pan depth is not too deep for 8-week-old birds.
LONG-LASTING because it's designed just for turkeys; 20 ga. galvanized steel, no bolts or screws.
BUILT-IN HIGH CONE distributes feed in pan, avoids build-up in tube.
FEED-SAVER FEATURES: unique "V" pan shape lets you maintain a low level; feed-saver ring; 2½" pan lip to catch feed.
CONTROL PAN at end of line operates system on demand any time of day.
10-YEAR AUGER warranty: no one else comes close.

- FEED WINDOWS and Feed Gate (1) floods feeder pan with plenty of feed to attract and start poults from the first day they are put on the feeder. After birds get started, Feed Gate in "open" position (2) can be quickly put in "closed" position (3) with a simple flick-of-the-wrist. Closed Feed Gate means feeder is adjusted to low feed levels (4) for top feed conversion.
- ALL-PLASTIC FEEDER consists of 3 simple, rugged polypropylene parts (5) for permanent corrosion-proofing. Pan easily removes (6) for clean-out and hangs from feeder for drying and storage.

Seventh Annual Cooperative Directors School Held

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff and Dr. Lamartine F. Hood, Dean of the College of Agriculture, presented certificates and plaques at graduation ceremonies held at the Penn State Nitanny Lion Inn recently.

Twenty-five directors representing thirteen cooperatives from New York and Pennsylvania graduated from the seventh annual Pennsylvania Cooperative Director School.

Twelve top executives of participating cooperatives met to address joint management and board concerns. Directors' spouses held concurrent sessions to enhance insight and understanding of the unique role and responsibility of directors.

The school is a joint effort of Penn State's College of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture with the cooperation of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives.

The five-day program is an intensive learning experience on the unique responsibilities of cooperative directors, business operations, decision making skills and many additional aspects of director and board leadership.

The directors represented cooperatives that vary in size and scope. They represent local, state and regional interests. The cooperatives are involved in purchasing, marketing, service, farm credit, artificial breeding and more while the school provides a forum for interaction between industry and academia.

Secretary of Agriculture Wolff and Dean Hood honored director graduates with a plaque and a certificate for having successfully completed the intensive multi-cooperative director leadership school.

PDPP supplemented

The PDPP also supplemented the National Dairy Board's Easter butter coupon promotion. Included was space purchased in Palm Sunday newspapers in several Pennsylvania counties.

Summer advertising closed out the year as strongly as it started, the report indicated. During July, August, and September, the program "spent more than $360,000 to purchase almost 7,000 broadcast spots — 701 on television, 6,251 on radio.

"In the same period, we teamed up with the ADA/DC and the Allied Milk Producers to buy billboards to reinforce the Summmer Love promotion and our heavy media schedule," according to the report.

The PDPP participated in 10 joint promotions throughout the state, including the Pennsylvania Finest Tailgate, the Pennsylvania Farm Show, Pittsburgh Dairy Day, and Summer Love Sundae Tuesday. Plans call for a "more aggressive and expanded Cheers! promotion schedule" and "expansion of the Summer Love Sundae Tuesday promotion," the report indicated.

PDPP's long-range goals include more dairy food industry cooperation to increase dairy sales; more publicity for productions; informational programs for consumers; proper food handling education; local dairy promotion group effectiveness training; program effectiveness research; market trend programs; and PDPP effectiveness sessions.

Begin Sampling For Corn Soil Pests

NEWARK, DE — "Wireworms and white grubs are major enemies of field corn," said Ron Breeding, University of Delaware cooperative extension agricultural agent.

"For spring corn plantings, now is the time to start scouting fields for soil pests so you can best determine your pesticide needs." Breeding said.

"Sampling before application is easy, a sound practice environmentally and can be economical — especially if the sample indicates pesticide is unnecessary," the agent said.

White grubs and wireworms, the larval form of the click beetle, are the most serious soil pests of corn.

Wireworm damage is usually spotty in fields and includes poor germination, stunted plants, and wilting and tunneling in roots and stalks near the soil surface.

White grubs favor double-crop situations and invade soybean stubble, sandy soil, and grassy areas. These grubs cause poor germination, stunted plants, and severely pruned roots.

Now There's A Farmer In Your Area Who Can Make Any Business Loan The Bank Can.

Since 1917, farmers have taken kindly to Farm Credit because we're owned and controlled by people who really understand your business.

Farmers. Just like yourself. Thing was, we didn't exactly lay out a Sunday dinner spread of loans. Our menu was limited, and we knew it.

So recently we overhauled our lending system. We now offer competitive rates and options for loans we never could offer before.
Adjustable rate mortgages.
Revolving lines of credit.
Variable and fixed rate loans.

Terms of 30 days to 30 years. There's even a variety of services including insurance plans.

Some things do remain the same, however. The Farm Credit loan officer you talk to still makes most of the decisions.

And chances are he can do it faster than most bankers can say "bureaucracy."

So think about this for a moment. Who would you rather deal with for your next loan? A banker who merely wants your business. Or a farmer who knows it.

FARM CREDITSM
Nobody knows the field better.

Farmers Will Address Legislators

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — More than 400 farmers from throughout the state will travel to Harrisburg on Monday, April 2 to meet with their state legislators concerning problems facing agriculture.

The meetings have been scheduled as part of the annual Harrisburg legislative tour of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA). PFA is a voluntary, statewide farm organization representing more than 22,600 families in 54 county associations.

Keith Eckel of Clarks Summit, Lackawanna County, president of PFA, said, "Wetland regulations, roadside litter, trespass by vehicle on private lands, and proposed nutrient management plans are among the major concerns our members will be discussing. We're looking forward to meeting with our state legislators to personally convey our policy views on these and other issues."

PFA leaders will be voicing support for S.B. 1326, which would establish a program to preserve and protect wetlands. The legislation would more thoroughly define the characteristics of wetlands to be regulated, set timetables for government agencies to review wetlands permit applications, and provide for compensation to landowners if a permit for wetlands use is denied or is excessively restrictive. The legislation would also allow wetlands, which had been farmed during the last 25 years, to be returned to production.

PFA is also supporting H.B. 193 and S.B. 1272, which would create a new vehicle code offense for trespass on private lands by motor vehicles, including all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) and snowmobiles. Penalties would include fines for trespassing on fenced or posted private roads and for destroying property or driving on cultivated fields. Violators would face a driver's license suspension for the second offense.

PFA will be asking legislators to incorporate PFA policy into two bills, H.B. 1838 and H.B. 1980, which would require nutrient management plans for farms. PFA is recommending that the legislation give the state department of agriculture a role in administering the program and provide sufficient state funds to assist farmers in implementing manure management plans. PFA is also requesting that farmers with approved nutrient management plans be protected from pollution liability. A state nutrient management program should also preempt local regulations, PFA believes.

PFA will be collecting signatures at the conference for its statewide "Cash 'Em, Don't Trash 'Em" campaign, aimed at placing deposits on beverage bottles and cans. The signatures are being collected in support of S.B. 1360, which would put the "bottle bill" question on a referendum for Pennsylvania voters to decide in a statewide election.

The results of the nonbinding referendum could then guide the General Assembly in dealing with the issue. PFA believes the recycling law will not solve the problem of roadside litter, which costs farmers millions of dollars annually in damage to farm equipment and injury to farm animals.

"We hope to make a strong case for each of these issues during our face-to-face meetings with lawmakers," Eckel said. The PFA leaders will also host their state representatives at a banquet at the Harrisburg Marriott, where Eckel will highlight key farm issues.

Ag Land Program Expects Big Year

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation (MALPF) expects, in 1990, to see the highest level of activity since the program began in 1977 thanks to its new Two-Cycle Easement Offer Program and bid consideration.

Prior to this year, MALPF considered easement sales applications once a year. According to Leonard Lowry, the foundation's new chairman, "We are seeing a major increase in applications so far this year and expect our biggest year ever."

Lowry recently became chairman of MALPF. He has a long background in Maryland's agricultural land preservation efforts, having served as a member of the original 1973 "committee to study the preservation of agricultural land. He joined MALPF's board in 1983.

For many years, Lowry operated a dairy farm in the Fairview-Cearfoss area near Hagerstown and has served as a district supervisor of the Washington County Soil Conservation District. He also is a past president of the Washington County Farm Bureau and the Hagerstown-Washington County Chamber of Commerce.

Moving up to take Lowry's post as vice-chairman of MALPF is Dan C. Shortall Jr. of Queen Anne, Maryland in Queen Anne's County. Shortall raises broiler chickens and operates a 700-acre grain farm. He is serving his second term on the MALPF board and was one of the founding members of the Queen Anne's Ag Land Preservation Advisory Board.

The next deadline for submission of applications to sell development rights easements will be July 1, 1990. For additional information, contact the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation, (301) 841-5860.

Carroll Co. Holstein Breeders Hold Annual Banquet

Maryland State sale in 1943. He served 18 years as secretary-treasurer of the Carroll County Holstein Club and is currently the Milk Marketing Representative for the Maryland Holstein Association.

Ed Derr, whose grandson, Gary, is the retiring president, reminded us of how good things are today. In 1934, he milked by hand and grain was worth 44 cents per bushel.

Frank House purchased his first heifer in 1926 for $100 and his first tractor in 1940. He has a unique collection of over 300 lunch boxes and 100 milk bottles.

At a Breed Improvement Meeting held two years ago at the Peace & Plenty Farm, the Carroll County Club decided to see if someone in attendance could predict which would be the best heifer after their first lactation and first classification. Jeff Rutts received a $100 check for correctly choosing four out of five, and Donna Myers received a pottery bowl for choosing three out of five.

The new officers elected for the coming year were: President, Lou Hobson, Vice President, Cam Davis, and Secretary-Treasurer, Susan Stonesifer. Special recognition and a gift were given to Miriam Bell, who served as secretary-treasurer. She and her husband Duane will move at the end of March to Shentomac Dairy farm in Washington County.

President Gary Derr presented a check on behalf of the Carroll County Holstein Club for $1000 to Lee Majeskie to be used by the 4-H Dairy Judging team for their trip to Europe for the International Contest in England in June.

Michael Haines, herd achievement award, Marlin Hoff, cow family production award and Roger Myers, lifetime cow award.

Beef Ads Selected 'Best Of '89'

CHICAGO, Ill. — "Advertising Age," a national trade journal of the advertising industry, has selected beef checkoff-funded ads among its 70 "Best TV Commercials of 1989."

The commercials were picked from nearly 1,800 produced last year, based on creativity and sales effectiveness. The beef industry "Manhattan" ad was one of five picked to top the food category.

"Since we launched the Real Food campaign, our research has shown consistently good results," said Ray Larson, chairman of the Beef Industry Council advertising subcommittee. "We know that consumers in our target market are getting our message, whether it's delivered by celebrities, as it was at first, or by real people, as it is in our current towns campaign.

Weaver Homestead Offers A Great Way To Live

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The Weaver Homestead, a familiar name among progressive farmers, is often cited for excellence in farming practices.

But Nelson and Don Weaver, who operate the century farm in New Holland, appear nonchalant about the media recognition they receive for their example of leadership and inspiration to others.

"We are trying to do a good job and we're thankful for what we have accomplished, but what we really are trying to do is to live in a way that our families enjoy," Don said.

He explained, "We consider ourselves progressive in management, but we don't live or die by our cows production. We get the most satisfaction out of doing something with our families and with our church because God is important to us."

D. John, 20 months, shares his mother's delight with the chickens, rabbits, and guinea pigs that are housed in a shed on the homestead.

Begin farming

Nelson, 38, the oldest son, began farming in partnership with his dad, John M. Weaver, in 1976.

While Nelson has always maintained a love for the farm, his brother Don, who is 32, recalls that, as a teenager, he couldn't wait to leave the farm.

"Back then, it seemed like everything I touched broke," he recalled. "It was so frustrating."

After high school graduation, Don left the farm and for three years was employed by a company in a supervisory position.

No regrets

"During that time, I felt no regrets for leaving the farm and I was content in my job," Don said. But in 1980, when his brother bought out his dad's share, Don decided to join his brother in partnership.

"I had matured a lot in those three years," Don said, "and we decided I would be in charge of the cows and Nelson in charge of the crops."

Working in partnership allows the team to be flexible and Nelson said, "I feel we make better decisions because we can weigh each other's perspective and come up with the right decision."

The brothers believe they balance each other. Nelson enjoys the crop and mechanical end of farming while Don prefers overseeing the breeding and feeding program for the cows.

Recognizing strengths

Both recognize that Don is more open in expressing his opinions and Nelson more reserved. Recognizing each other's strengths and weaknesses has allowed them to work well together.

"Sure we have differences of opinions sometimes — that's to be expected — but the important thing is that we respect each other," Don said.

One of the first decisions the brothers, who have both earned the Keystone Farmer Award in the FFA program, made was to cut back on diversification.

"We wouldn't have this farm if our dad hadn't kept on top of things. He wasn't afraid to expand. Over the years, in addition to dairy, he farmed tobacco, tomatoes, pigs, chickens, and steers.

"But we decided to stick to dairy because that makes the most money to support two families," Nelson said.

They have 90 Holsteins and 90 replacements on their 106-acre farm. Nelson owns the farm with the two houses.

Conservation practices

In March, the Weaver Homestead received the annual Outstanding Cooperative Award from the Lancaster County Conservation District.

The Homestead had been signed up with the conservation district in 1970. At that point, they began contour farming and soon installed a waterway to prevent ditch erosion.

Don Robinson, who heads the Young Farmers Program in the Eastern Lancaster County School District, worked with them to switch fields from square blocks to strips.

In 1974, the Weavers added to the barn and installed a 90,000 gallon liquid manure system. "It held a two-month supply and was surely better than spreading manure every day," Don said, "but it had its disadvantages too."

In 1982, they installed a slurry hold that stores a nine-month supply. "It's ideal because we haul in in the spring and the fall — whenever it's convenient for us.

"In the beginning we viewed the system as an advantage for the mere fact that we didn't need to haul it everyday. Later we saw the advantages that we needed no fertilizer at all for the last three years.

Soil tested

After the soil tested in excess for nitrogen, potash and phosphorous, the Weavers became more particular about adding additional nutrients to the soil.

"The soil is alive; it breaks down organic matter and we must treat it as something special. If we put on chemicals that are so toxic that it hurts our skin, I have to ask what else is it killing," Don said.

The reality of this possibility was magnified when Don and his wife Linda's first child was diagnosed severely mentally handicapped.

"The doctor attributes her handicap to high nitrates in our water," Don said. "Since that time, we've eliminated the water contamination but we prefer to not place blame but to accept that God gave Heidi to us for a special purpose. She is very happy and fits in well with our family."

When the Weavers observed that the soil was getting solid, they saw the importance of crop rotation and low input farming. Today they rotate from corn to alfalfa to kill off the weeds. A severe problem with shatter cane was eradicated with mowing and crop rotation. Instead of baling corn fodder this year they plowed and disced it to built up the soil.

To be successful in low input farming, the brothers contend, you must stick out your neck and do what you think is the right thing to do.

Experimentation for them did not result in crop losses, but "our corn fields didn't look perfect," Nelson admitted. But the Weavers have been pleased with crops and yields.

"It has been three years since we put on fertilizer and we're really impressed with the look of the soil," Don said."It's healthy, loose and full of earthworms."

Milk production

For two families to survive on one farm, the Weavers wanted to push for optimun milk production. "We didn't want to expand our herd because we didn't have any place to go with the excess fertilizer," Don said. "At the same time we needed more money to survive financially."

In February 1989, the Weavers began milking three times daily, at 6 a.m., 2 p.m., and 10 p.m. "It's one of the best decisions we ever made," Don said. Their milking totals have been up 10 percent during the first year.

Presently the herd is averaging 23,000 pounds with 880 of butterfat.

"Milking three times daily really helps udder health because it relieves pressure," Don said. "We have no mastitis or damage to the teats because they don't lay in a wet bed."

"It has a lot more pluses than minuses," Nelson said. "It's important to have automatic stop milkers if you milk three times daily."

Despite their success, Don said, "We don't recommend milking three times daily unless you have enough help. We don't recommend having your wife help on a regular basis or you'll suffer burnout."

Both wives can handle the milking alone, but do so only during emergencies since children and household responsibilities keep them busy.

The two-hour shifts are rotated between the brothers and they have hired help for the other.

Their milking schedule allows them to have one weekend, one Sunday, and one Saturday off monthly. The milking schedule allows their evenings to be free for family and church activities at the Weaverland Mennonite church.

Grade cows

They have grade cows because they aren't interested in marketing. Not having registered cows has not interfered with success.

Nelson said, "Because we have grade cows, I think we make better decisions when it's time to get rid of a cow. When a cow is a dud, it should go even if it is registered."

Over the years, Weaver Homestead has earned a reputable name and some farmers have begged to buy some of the Weavers' heifers.

"We have good cows and good production from using balanced rations, good quality forage and good management techniques," Don said.

Reseed alfalfa

Every three years the Weavers reseed alfalfa. They feed high moisture shell corn and no bale hay. They are extremely pleased with the results of using mega lac, a condensed source of energy.

For breeding purposes, they use AI and the best bulls for the money.

Of BST, Don said, "I kind of wish it would go away. We won't be the first to jump on the band wagon. We'll watch the results and reactions of the public. I think it's safe to drink, but to get more milk, you must work the cow harder and a cow can only eat so much. The food would need to be more dense in energy and protein," he paused then turned toward his brother and said, "That's my opinion, what about you?"

Nelson agreed and laughingly remarked, "We get along good because we agree on important issues."

Paper bedding

The Weavers use newspaper paper bedding. Nelson made a machine to grind it by using a hammermill to grind and blow the bedding into a bin and later the bedding is dropped through a chute into an electric feed cart for distribution.

"I built it for $1,000 and it shreds finer and more consistent and uniform than others we've seen," Nelson said.

Except for emergencies, Don takes care of most of the health work needed for herd care.

"I work hard to keep the cows happy," he said.

Host visitors

The Weavers also work to keep others happy. Nelson and his wife Joyce are in charge of helping a Russian family resettle in the area. They often host international students and hope someday to reciprocate the visits.

The family also offers farm tours and has enjoyed visits with people from all over the world.

Don's family enjoys music and the girls play the piano and violin. Sports occupy a lot of their time with Nelson playing softball on a church team, Jenny basketball, Jeana baseball, and Jason, soccer.

Six-year-old Justin, who likes to ride in the cab tractor with his father, said, "I'd rather plow than go to kindergarten."

Linda, Don's wife, is busy with Heidi, 8; Gina, 6; Rita, 3; and D. John, 20 months. Linda shares her love for animals with the children by raising guinea pigs, chickens, rabbits, and fish. A horse is ordered and they look forward to using a three-seated cart they own that is big enough to haul two families comfortably.

Because they enjoy entertaining friends, Don and Linda built a patio to host groups such as Sunday schools and a day camp for 60 kids which Don co-directs.

The adults are pleased with the flexibility that partnership farming allows.

"I didn't want to marry a farmer — especially a dairy farmer because of the long hours involved," Joyce said, "but now I think it's the greatest way to raise a family."

Jeana, 6, and Rita, 3, find these bunnies just the right size for them.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Fish is tender and juicy when micro-cooked. It takes little preparation time, needs few seasonings, and cooks almost instantly.

If frozen, fish needs to be completely thawed. Thaw on Defrost or Medium Low (30 percent power, about 200 watts). Allow about three to five minutes per pound. Rotate and turn over fish several times during defrosting. Separate pieces as soon as possible and cut large pieces into serving-size pieces. Remove thawed pieces when they're pliable but still feel icy cold. Run cold water over them if they need further thawing. Let stand for a few minutes; then pat dry with paper towels before cooking.

Arrange fish with the thickest parts toward outside edges of cooking dish. For fillets, tuck skinny tail parts under or roll up thin fillets. Rearrange pieces — especially thick steaks — halfway through cooking and turn over any large pieces.

Cover fish with waxed paper for a moist, baked end result. For steamed fish, cover with plastic wrap.

Typical seasonings for fish — microwaved or otherwise — include lemon juice and/or butter along with parsley, chives and a variety of other herbs. Today's recipes use some new, exciting flavor combinations. More about these later.

A pound of thin fish fillets micro-cooks in as little as three to four minutes on High. Thicker fillets take four to five minutes. Thick fish steaks cook best on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) for about 10 to 13 minutes per pound.

Cook the least amount of time given in a recipe. Slightly undercook fish. Stop microwaving when fish has barely changed from translucent-looking to solid white. Let fish stand, still covered, for two to five minutes before testing for final doneness. To test, use a fork to gently pull apart the centers of large pieces. If fish flakes (the fibers separate in natural layers) and all parts are solid white, fish is done.

The seasonings in today's recipes really spark up the flavor of fish without overpowering it. Cooking technique for Spicy Carribean Fish Fillets follows all of the fish-microwaving guidelines outlined above. The flavor is not super spicy hot because seasonings are diluted by the juices formed during cooking.

Spicy Carribean Fish Fillets remind me of fish I tasted on some wonderful tropical island. To bring back memories, I like to serve the fish on fluffy, unseasoned cooked rice, along with a mild-flavored green vegetable, such as French-cut green beans. For dessert, I like fresh tropical fruits, such as mango, papaya, pineapple and bananas.

Spicy Salmon Ring, calling for canned salmon, is another quick-cooking main dish with a spicy flavor. A ring-shaped dish or individual custard cups allow for even cooking. Microwaving time is about eight minutes, plus a few minutes of standing time. Doneness is determined by touch. When the top feels firm, let salmon stand, covered, about five minutes. Then cut into center and check to see if the mixture looks set. If still very soft and liquid-looking, re-cover and microwave a bit longer.

I've never been fond of salmon loaf, but I love this one because of its wonderful flavor and texture. I drain off the salmon liquid and use skim milk for a milder flavor. If you like a fishier taste, use the liquid and all milk to make ½ cup. I also use a gentle touch when flaking the salmon and mixing ingredients to make a more textured end result. If you like a finer texture, flake salmon finely and mash ingredients together.

Spicy Carribean Fish Fillets

1 pound non-oily fish (such as cod, pollock, ocean perch or haddock)
1 tablespoon oil or melted butter
½ teaspoon paprika
¼ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon black pepper
Garnish: lime or lemon wedges

Thaw fish, if necessary. Cut fish into serving-size pieces. In a microwave-safe 10-inch pie plate or shallow casserole, stir together oil and seasonings. Dip fish in oil mixture, coating both sides lightly with mixture. Arrange fish with thickest parts toward outside edges of cooking dish. Tuck skinny tail parts under or roll up any thin fillets. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 4 to 5 minutes or until fish starts to turn solid white. (If necessary, rotate dish or rearrange pieces after 3 minutes.) Let stand, covered, 2 to 3 minutes. Test fish for doneness. When done, fish will flake when tested with a fork. Garnish with lime wedges. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving: 192 calories, 26g protein, 9g fat, 0 carbohydrate, 105mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Hint: Vary seasoning to suit your taste, but for a spicy "hot" appearance, use the same amount of paprika.

Spicy Salmon Ring

1 can (1 pound) salmon
⅔ cup oat bran
½ cup skim milk
2 egg whites or 1 egg
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
½ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon black pepper
¼ teaspoon dried basil leaves, crumbled
¼ teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crumbled
Paprika

Drain salmon. Remove large pieces of skin and large bones and discard. (Leave small soft bones in — they're an excellent source of calcium.) Place salmon in a medium mixing bowl; gently flake with a fork to a coarse texture. Gently stir in remaining ingredients, except paprika. Spoon into a microwave-safe 9-inch round cake dish with a glass set upright in the center. Sprinkle generously with paprika. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave (High) 7 to 9 minutes, rotating dish once halfway through cooking, or until top begins to feel firm to the touch. Let stand, covered, 5 minutes. Remove glass. If still undone (center is very soft and liquid remains), re-cover and microwave 30 to 60 seconds or until center feels firm. Serve right from dish or cut into serving-size pieces and place on serving plate. May be chilled, sliced and served cold. Freezes well. Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Each serving — 1/6 of recipe: 132 calories, 15g protein, 4g fat, 8g carbohydrate, 265mg sodium, 23mg cholesterol.

Note: Vary the spiciness according to taste. For a mild but excellent flavor, omit chili powder and reduce black pepper to ¼ teaspoon.

Individual salmon loaves: Divide mixture into six 6-ounce microwave-safe custard cups. Make a shallow indentation in the center of each. Sprinkle tops with paprika. Set cups on a microwave-safe tray in a circle with the center open. Cover cups with a sheet of waxed paper. Microwave and check for final doneness (after standing time) as above. These are especially nice to freeze for later.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Our son and his family, who live in Memphis, Tennessee, just spent a week in Lancaster County. It was the week of quite warm weather and so my husband took the grandchildren for a ride in his boat. They preferred trying to use the oars rather than his electric motor to propel the boat. Of course, it was fun to splash each other too.

Another day Kenneth and his sons spent the time helping on the farm. He helped to unload a big truck that brought baled newspaper for bedding. Then he gathered brush that lay in the fields from clearing a fence row.

He and the oldest boy took sevcral walks through the woods and along the river bank. On one excursion, the five year old slipped down some muddy steps into the water and got his shoes, socks and trousers all wet. They chased rabbits and saw a lot of squirrels.

I even managed to get the sugar peas all planted before March 17 as my husband and son rototilled a part of my garden. The sixteen month old sat quietly in my express wagon and watched us work. This red haired, curly headed boy is so patient. His father, at the same age, would have been screaming for attention.

One morning they got up quite early to see the cows being milked. I'm sure the pace of life here was very different from their normal life. Our son travels a lot in his job and flies all over the western United States.

It was a pleasure to see him showing his son how to skip stones across the water. My husband made a walking stick for our grandson and he used it to flatten all of my pea row markers. I guess one must expect such exuberant behavior.

Did you know that an egg is chock-full of high-quality protein? That's the kind your kids need, to grow up healthy, well and strong. Eggs also contain every vitamin (except vitamin C) plus many minerals like calcium and iron. Crack some open today!

Deviled eggs make a great snack for kids because they're high in food value and do not foster tooth decay. Children like them because they're easy to pick up and eat and can be flavored to their taste. Why not make a batch today?

'Eggsactly' Right Recipes For Incredible Eating

It's incredible what eggs can do for any menu. Souffles, frittatas, omelets, quiches, egg salads and desserts.

Eggs are one of today's best food buys. If large eggs are selling for $1 a dozen, they're less than 70 cents a pound with no bone, little waste and no shrinkage during proper cooking.

At only 80 calories per large egg, they supply high-quality protein, iron, phosphorous, trace minerals, vitamins A,D,E,K and all the B vitamins. Compare egg prices by the pound with the prices of other protein foods and consider the value of eggs in nutritious menus.

The American Egg Board has numerous recipes, nutritional information and the answers to often-asked questions about eggs. To obtain the information, write to the American Egg Board, 1460 Renaissance Drive, Park Ridge, IL 60068.

CRISPY EGG CROQUETTES

6 hard boiled eggs
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
⅓ cup onion
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
½ cup milk
⅓ cup shredded cheese
Salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1½ cups cracker crumbs
2 eggs slightly beaten for dipping

Chop eggs and add parsley, set aside. Saute onion in butter, add flour and milk. Cook until thickened. Add cheese, salt, pepper and mustard. Fold in eggs and parsley. Chill several hours. Form into croquettes, roll in crumbs, then egg and in crumbs again. Chill and fry in deep fat. Or you can use bread crumbs and bake in the oven for 20 minutes at 350 degrees.

OVEN-STYLE SCOTCH EGGS

1 pound loose sausage
8 hard-cooked eggs
1 egg, beaten
Bread crumbs

Divide sausage into 8 portions. On lightly crumb-sprinkled surface, pat out each portion of sausage. Wrap completely around each egg, pressing edges together to seal. Roll sausage-coated eggs in crumbs and dip in beaten egg. Place on baking sheet and bake 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

'EGGTRA-SPECIAL' CHEF'S PASTA SALAD

4 cups spiral macaroni, cooked and chilled
½ cup oriental rice
½ dozen hard-cooked eggs
Sweet-n-sour salad dressing

Cut eggs in half. Remove yolks and refrigerate. Place egg white halves into a flat container; cover with dressing; set in refrigerator to marinade two or more hours.

Italian dressing
1 head Romaine lettuce
¼ cup shredded carrot
½ cup cauliflower flowerettes
½ cup broccoli pieces
½ cup chopped tomatoes
¼ cup cucumber wedges
¼ cup zuchinni or squash pieces
½ teaspoon Greek seasoning
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese
½ cup shredded American yellow cheese
2 ounces sauteed Canadian bacon, cut in bite-size pieces
2 ounces deli Swedish ham strips
Russian dressing

In a large salad bowl, break lettuce into bite-size pieces. Add the spiral macaroni, carrot, cauliflower, broccoli, tomatoes, cucumber, zuchinni, and seasoning. Add enough Italian dressing to coat. Toss well. Arrange meats and cheeses across the top. Spoon oriental rice into the reserved hard-boiled egg white halves. Crumble egg yolks over rice and salad. Place stuffed eggs onto salad. Drizzle with Russian dressing. Serve with French rolls. Serves 4 to 6.

Featured Recipe

When Gov. Robert Casey, Sec. of Agriculture Boyd Wolff and their wives visited Lancaster County last week, they stopped by the picturesque farm of Earl and Evelyn Landis, Manheim.

"We found that they are ordinary people — just like us," Earl said.

Evelyn served the group whoopie pie brownies, lemon bars, apple bars and a milk punch. To read more about the Landis's reflections on the visit, look for their story that begins on A1.

WHOOPIE PIE BROWNIES

4 eggs
1 cup melted butter
½ cup cocoa
2 cups granulated sugar
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon soda
1 tablespoon vanilla

Mix together all ingredients, adding melted butter last. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. With wax paper, line a 9x12-inch and a 8x8-inch baking pan. Cut in half and fill with whoopie pie filling.

Filling:
2 egg whites, beaten
1½ tablespoon vanilla
4 tablespoons milk
4 tablespoons flour
4 cups confectioners' sugar
1½ cup shortening

Combine and beat all ingredients except egg whites. Fold in egg whites after other ingredients are thoroughly mixed. Spread the filling between the halved cake layers.

QUESTION — Grace Barley, Conestoga, would like a recipe for rock salt cabbage. She heard about the recipe from a nephew who lives in Oregon.

QUESTION — Lois Hostetter would like to know where she can purchase ground cherries.

QUESTION — William S. Bryan from Bucks County would like a recipe for a mustard dressing that his mother had made for yellow string beans. He said that his mother was from Pennsylavania Dutch heritage in Bucks County, and he has searched many cookbooks but cannot find it.

QUESTION — Grace Ikeler, Bloomsburg, would like a recipe for seafood salad and one for seafood Newburg.

QUESTION — A reader would like a recipe for crab cakes that doesn't use crab but does include seafood seasoning. The recipe had appeared in this paper several months ago.

ANSWER — Mrs. Glenn Martin, Ephrata, wanted to know how to substitute sweetened condensed milk. Thanks to Esther, High, East Earl; Faye Dove, Myerstown; Anna Martin, Denver; Linda Horst, Chambersburg; and others for sharing numerous ways to make condensed milk.

Sweetened Condensed Milk

½ cup cold water
1½ cups nonfat dry milk powder
¾ cup sugar

Measure water into 2-cups glass measure. Stir in milk powder until smooth. Microwave almost 1 minute on high or until milk is steaming. Stir in sugar until dissolved. Cool. Yields: 14 ounces milk.

Condensed Milk

Boil together one part sugar and 2 parts milk until thickened or until milk registers 225 degrees on candy thermometer.

ANSWER — Lewis Berkenstock, Emmaus, requested a recipe for meat pie. Thanks to Anna Martin, Denver, for sending a recipe.

Meat Pie

1½ cups leftover meat
3 tablespoons flour
¼ cup broth or drippings
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons grated onion
⅓ cup chopped pepper

Add flour to drippings and stir until blended. Add milk and cook until thickened. Add salt, minced onion and green pepper. Stir meat into gravy and pour into pastry-lined dish. Cover top with pastry. Bake at 425 degrees for 25 minutes. Serves 6.

ANSWER — Suie Trimble, New Providence, requested a recipe that she had and misplaced that includes corn flakes, peanuts, and syrup. Thanks to Norma Maneval, Cocolamus, for sending a recipe.

Coconut Chews

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
½ cup light cream
4 cups corn flakes
1 cup coconut
1 cup chopped nuts

Combine sugar, syrup and cream in sauce pan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking without stirring to soft ball stage. Remove from heat, fold in cornflakes, coconut and nuts. Drop on waxed paper or press in buttered oblong pan. Cool.

ANSWER — Sondra Sanger, Lebanon, wanted a recipe for baked soy beans that uses honey or molasses. Thanks to Lois Hostetter and to MaryElane Fritz, Boothwyn, for sending in two recipes. She recommends buying The Soybean Cookbook by Dorothea VanGundy Jones published by the Division of Crown Publishers, Inc.

Boston Baked Soys

1½ cups soybeans
¼ pound bacon
1 small onion, chopped
2 tablespoons molasses
½ cup catsup
½ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Soak and cook soybeans. Dice all but 2 strips bacon and mix with beans; add remaining ingredients and ¼ cup water or bean cooking water. Turn into 1½ quart casserole. Crisscross the 2 bacon strips on top. Cover and bake in preheated 300 degree oven for 30 minutes. Stir, then bake, uncovered, 30 minutes longer, or until thick. Serves 4.

Baked Soybeans 1

2 cups dry soybeans
6 cups water
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons molasses
1 tablespoon powdered vegetable broth OR ¼ cup finely minced celery

Wash and soak beans in salted water overnight. Cook until almost done. Drain and save water. Place beans in casserole or bean pot. Put broth and molasses in measuring cup and fill with water from the beans. Pour mixture over beans, adding more water to almost cover. Cover and bake 2 to 3 hours at 350 degrees. Serves 4 to 6. For 2 or 3 persons, cut recipe in half or prepare the whole recipe and freeze half for future use.

Bunker Hill's Baked Beans

2 pounds (5⅓ cups) dried soybeans
½ pound bacon, cut in ½-inch pieces, fried and drained
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup honey
⅓ cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons dry mustard
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Soak beans in fresh water overnight. Boil gently for 30 minutes. Drain, reserving liquid.

Combine all ingredients with 3 cups of the reserved liquid. Cover and bake at 325 degrees for 3 to 3½ hours or until tender, stirring occasionally.

Add small amount of liquid if necessary to keep moistened. Uncover and cook 30 minutes more. Yields about 3 quarts.

'Eggsactly'

EASY HARD-COOKED EGGS

Use a deep saucepan that has a cover. Gently put the eggs into the pan in a single layer. Add enough water to come at least 1 inch above the eggs. Cover the pan and set it over high heat. Let the water come to a boil.

After 3 or 4 minutes, check to see if it is boiling. You'll see big bubbles that break. Re-cover the pan and turn off the heat. If your stove is electric, move the pan off the burner. Set a timer for 15 minutes. When the bell rings, uncover the pan.

Carefully move the pan to the sink. Run cold water over the eggs until they are cool, about 5 minutes. Take the eggs out of the pan and put them into the refrigerator until you're ready to use them.

TO PEEL: Tap the egg on all sides on the countertop. Roll the egg gently between your hands to crackle the shell all over. Start to peel at the large end of the egg. Hold it under cool running water to help the shell come off.

BASIC FRENCH OMELET

2 eggs
2 tablespoons water
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
1 tablespoon butter

Beat together eggs, water, salt and pepper until blended. In 7- to 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium-high heat, heat butter until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. (Mixture should set immediately at edges). With an inverted pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions can reach hot pan surface, tilting pan and moving cooked portions as necessary. While top is still moist and creamy-looking, fill, if desired. With pancake turner, fold omelet in half or roll. Invert on to plate with a quick flip of the wrist or slide from pan on to plate.

It is better to fill omelet when it is slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

Cheese and chives: Add 1 tablespoon chopped chives and ¼ teaspoon basil, crushed to basic omelet mixture. Cook as directed. Fill with ½ cup cottage cheese or shredded mozzarella or Muenster cheese.

Denver or Western: Cook ¼ cup finely chopped cooked ham, 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper and 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter until vegetables are tender but not brown. Pour in basic omelet mixture. Cook as directed.

Dieter's Special: Add about ¼ teaspoon dill weed or basil, thyme or oregano leaves, crushed to basic omelet mixture. Cook as directed in nonstick pan coated with vegetable spray-on. Fill with ⅓ to ½ cup chopped, cooked and drained vegetables.

Garden: Cook ¼ cup chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter until tender but not brown. Stir in 2 medium tomatoes, chopped; 1 medium zucchini, sliced; ¼ cup chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons snipped parsley and 1½ teaspoons seasoned salt. Simmer, uncovered, until thick. Use to fill 2 cooked French omelets or 1 cooked puffy omelet. Fold. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

For years, they seemed so elusive, so distant, so mysterious.

Their overhead passage has always been a seasonal indicator, as much a part of the natural lore as woolly caterpillars and volumes of berries on bushes. In fact, the raucous honking from their V-shaped formations winging over the farmstead still stir our immediate interest.

And always, always, we hoped that a few of the majestic Canada geese might look down with favor onto our meadow and ponds. While a few geese did occasionally take rest stops, even paddling around the water or grazing the fields nearby for a few hours, none ever stayed for long.

So what was wrong with our pond, anyway? Wild mallards come, enjoy our meadow amenities and occasionally raise families. Lately, though, even they have been fewer and fewer in number.

One problem we suspected is our abundant fox population. Foxes grin wider than usual at the prospect of a sitting duck - or goose - hunched tight to a nest of eggs. That's the fox equivalent of petty shoplifting. Only surrounded by water would a nesting spot in our pond be relatively safe.

An island. What we needed was an island.

Now, islands most commonly form from nature when a volcano or earthquake-created cataclysmic event reshapes Mother Nature's face. In the absence - thank goodness! - of either, any island here was going to have to be manmade.

An anchored raft of locust logs was fashioned mid-pond last year - promptly sinking after it had soaked a couple of days. So much for the theory that our common types of wood float.

When several Canada geese began hanging out at our pond in recent weeks, and one pair returning daily, the island plan got a jump-start.

That first wonderfully-warm Sunday afternoon found us pond side, adding final touches of camouflage brush and branches to our creation. Already in place were four pilings driven into the pond's soft bottom, onto which the wooden-pallet-foundation would be fastened.

Ever try to launch an island?

It took the pushing and pulling of both of us to get the first corner over the low bank, at which time it promptly hung up in the mud of the shallow edge and began soaking up water. By the time we'd maneuvered the rest of it onto the water, that first corner was already listing like the gashed side of the Titanic.

Strategy was for The Farmer to paddle the launch craft, the canoe, from the front. I was the towing hookup, hanging onto the heavy, taking-on-water island with my right hand, while trying to remain firmly seated mid-stern in what is not the world's most stable floating object.

While I didn't completely disbelieve our ability to pull this off, let's just say I removed my non-waterproof watch and laid it on the pond dock before climbing into the canoe. And I hoped none of our neighbors happened to glance out their back windows.

After at least an hour of groaning, grunting, leaning, stabilizing, paddling, back-paddling, one claw hammer had sunk to the pond's bottom. It took several trips back bankside to the pickup for more long spikes and baling twine before the island was secured. Actually, it looked more like a duck blind with a front and back porch, rather than something designed to offer a secure nesting spot. The Goose Hotel I dubbed it.

Twenty-four hours later, we heard the first returning geese. They glided toward the pond, honked loud and furious, and frantically winged back off in the direction from whence they'd come. In fact, it went several days before a duck or goose would set a single webbed foot even on the bank.

This morning, as the sun cast sparkling diamonds across the pond's waters, one of the two geese climbed onto the "hotel" and sat in the sun. Later, as the mallards paddled around its edges, the geese swam by and bullied the smaller ducks away.

We think our island has finally been discovered — and is already the site of territorial dispute.

FFA HAPPENINGS

Mifflinburg FFA Holds Banquet

MIFFLINBURG (Union Co.)— For 60 years, Mifflinburg FFA members have been preparing for careers in agriculture, developing leadership skills and serving their community.

The FFA chapter celebrated its 60th anniversary with a banquet March 8 at Mifflinburg Area High School. Charter members, state and national achievement degree winners, and past presidents, vice presidents, and advisors were invited to be special guests at the event.

The chapter received its charter Nov. 25, 1930, the same year a department of vocational agriculture was established at Mifflinburg High School, and two years after the national FFA was formed. Vocational agriculture teacher Donald Rexrode served as advisor to 22 charter members. Today, 134 members are continuing the organization's tradition of involvement in local, state, and national activities.

The Mifflinburg chapter has received 13 national chapter awards at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City. It has earned 2 national safety awards and 5 community service awards.

During its 60-year history, 149 members have received Keystone Farmer Degrees, the highest achievement award granted by the Pennsylvania FFA Association, and 13 have earned American Farmer Degrees, the highest national award.

Chapter highlights through the years include the following:

- Scott Sanders, Joe Mayer, and Steve Chick participated in the FFA's Work Experience Abroad Program, working in agriculture in foreign countries.
- Tom Mincemoyer and Steven Richard were on the award-winning state farm business management team in Kansas City in 1978.
- Chapter parliamentary procedure teams placed first in the state in 1979 and 1986.
- Lorne Miller and Barry Spangler won the state agronomy contest in 1979 and 1986, respectively.
- Sherri Ebright qualified for the 1984 state livestock judging team, competing in Richmond, Va.
- Barry Spangler and John Rishel won the state conservation public speaking contest in 1986 and 1989, respectively.
- Alan Kaler placed second in national tractor driving competition after winning the state contest in 1987.
- Jonathan Boop had the Reserve Champion Holstein at the Pennsylvania Dairy Show in 1987.
- Chris Sauers won the 1988 state agricultural mechanics contest and led the award-winning state team in national competition in Kansas City.
- Twenty members earned state proficiency awards, and many others took honors in state public speaking and other contests.

The Mifflinburg chapter counts nine state officers among its members: Karl Wehr, president in 1939; William Wehr, secretary; Robert Renninger, Chaplain; David Hackenberg, reporter; Stephen Showalter, secretary; Dean Snook and Daryl Beiler, regional vice presidents; and Douglas Walter and Patti Snook, sentinels.

Members Wayne Keefer and John Hauck received the State Star Farmer Award in 1969 and 1984, respectively, and 10 keystone farmers -- Kenneth Rishel, Carl Everitt, David Dietrich, Leroy Troester, Joe Moyer, Dean Snook, Shawn Walter, David Gessner, Robert Sauers and John Rishel -- received Pennsylvania north-central region star awards.

The Mifflinburg vocational agriculture department has had 20 teachers in its 60-year history, including current staff David Woodling, Glenn Spangler, Timothy Weller (on leave), and Michael Sanders.

Tractor Safety Certification

LAWTON (Susquehanna Co.) — Boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 16 must have proper certification if they plan to operate a farm tractor or machinery on a farm. Under the child labor regulations, the law requires that boys and girls between 14 and 16 be certified in tractor safety, and they must carry a certification card before they are permitted to operate hazardous equipment.

Some of the hazardous equipment listed in the law include: a tractor with over 20 PTO horsepower, corn pickers, hay balers, feed grinders, and forklifts. The law does allow children to operate any equipment that the parent feels is safe for them to operate on their parent's farm without a certificate.

The certification process will consist of five meetings for the youth led by an adult volunteer. The meeting time will be spent going over slides, films, videos, worksheets, and a machinery safety manual to give the youth a thorough understanding of the importance of farm safety. At the conclusion of the meetings, the participants are required to take a written examination, and they will need to demonstrate their safe driving techniques on a driving course. A certificate will be given to the youth after they pass both the written and the driving tests.

Youth that are not yet 14 may take the course, and we will mail the certificate to them for their 14th birthday. This gives them a chance to get the tests out of the way and to operate machinery legally as soon as they turn 14.

This year there will be two meeting locations in the county. One will be held at the Rush Community Hall (the old Fire Hall) in Lawton. The other location will be at the Mountain View High School.

Two locations were set up this year because of the response we had for this certification. The meetings in Lawton will begin on Wednesday, March 28, and will be on every Wednesday through April. The meetings at Mountain View will begin on Thursday, March 29, and will then run every Thursday through April. Each meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. and each will finish up by 9 p.m.

The only cost for the meetings will be $2.50 for the handbook. This will be payable at the first meeting.

Conservation School For Youth

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)— The Federated Sportsmen of Lancaster County and the Lancaster County Conservation District are sponsoring the 12th Annual Lancaster County Youth Conservation School from July 22 to 28. The week-long resident School is geared for boys and girls 14 to 16 years of age who have an interest in the environment. The school is held at the Northern Lancaster County Game and Fish Protective Association in West Cocalico Township.

Natural resource professionals from government agencies and other knowledgeable outdoorsmen conduct classes on the various conservation fields.

The goal of the School is to stimulate interest in natural resource conservation. Youth interested in learning more about the environment or pursuing a conservation career would benefit from the School. Students sleep in tents for the week and assist in the preparation of the food. For more information, contact Nevin Greiner at the Conservation District office at (717) 299-5361.

School Shows Ways To Improve Your Garden Center

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

CENTERVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — "This year, the cold spring we've been having will probably damage a lot of fruit trees," said Jay Stauffer, from Stauffer's of Kissel Hill, at the 1990 Capital Region Garden Center School last week.

Stauffer was one of four who spoke on the panel, "1989 In Review: A Look Back On Last Season's Insect And Disease Problems," at the two-day conference. The conference was attended by about 55 gardeners, nursery managers, and garden center professionals.

"Our biggest problem by far was peach leaf curl on things we didn't expect it on," said Stauffer. "Who would expect to find peach leaf curl on an apple tree? But if you see it, it's already too late."

Anthracnose, which includes lesions on sugar and silver maples, was the most common problem faced by Mt. Lakes Roadside Marketing, said Keith Pomeranie. The problems his company faced were aggravated by the 1988 draught and the wet spring of 1989, which contributed to plant stress and many plant diseases.

Fire blight

Fire blight on mountain ash was a common problem. Pomeranie emphasized the importance of trying to find host-resistant plant varieties to help fight disease. Also, many problems can be attributed to insect bores, rather than some fungi or plant infection.

"It was a great year for grubs, and insect controls were a big seller," said Stauffer. Other common problems included black rot, scab on apples, fireblight, bag worms, webworms, root weavels, gypsy moths, scale, tip blight, and rose black spot.

For lawn growers, common problems include crabgrass and nutsedge. "It was worse last year for crabgrass than ever before," he said.

Alan Michael, multi-county extension agent, moderated the panel. While the japanese beetle was a common pest, he cautioned that the use of certain pesticides, particularly Sevin, were deadly to bees.

Dormant oil

"Dormant oil is not harmful to the environment and provides another way to kill off eggs and insects on shrubbery and trees," said Tom Piper, Adams County extension agent.

Piper stressed the importance of timing when using pesticides.

Problems encountered in Adams County included scab disease, anthracnose, oak leaf blister, peach leaf curl, bag worm, leaf minor, bore (birch and dogwood), mite, gypsy moth, and galls. Piper offered ways to prevent or stop the spread of the diseases and disorders.

Piper recommended the book by Pascal Parone, "Diseases and Pests of Ornamental Plants," published by John Wiley and Sons, for helping diagnose and treat plant diseases.

Alternative methods

H. Bruce Hellerick, horticulture extension agent, stressed the importance of using alternative methods to control weeds and pests. He urged everyone who attended the conference to become more environmentally aware when using herbicides and pesticides.

"The IPM logo will be a rubber stamp, like 'low cholesterol' or 'no cholesterol,'" said Tom Becker, York County extension agent.

Becker introduced the topic, integrated pest management (IPM), and what it would mean to garden centers in the future.

IPM includes the methods in determining when, where, and how to to treat an area with a pesticide. It avoids relying exclusively on using chemical and chemical controls for pests, said Becker, and uses sound agricultural principles.

Emphasized need

A video emphasized the need, because of increasing governmental pressure to heavily regulate the use of pesticides, for gardeners to use a combination of methods to suppress pests, including traps, appropriate selection of plants, and habitant sanitation.

"This involves a rethinking of values," said Becker, "and ways to help get growers off the 'pesticide treadmill.'"

"Water gardening is becoming more affordable for the average person," said Virginia Crum, from Lily Ponds Water Gardens. She spoke about the burgeoning market for water gardens and how the average person can now afford a small water garden, with prices from $500 to $1,000.

The materials needed are PVCs, fiberglass pools, or concrete ponds.

Various shapes

Fiberglass can be formed into various shapes and placed on an excavated shell. "However, PVC is the most popular and the least expensive," Crum said.

But before gardeners install water gardens, sunshine must be present.

"They need 5 to 6 hours of sunshine for water lilies to bloom, as well as most other aquatic plants," she said. "In general, avoid trees."

Also, water runoff must be checked, by either creating some kind of "mote" around the garden or raising the garden a few inches from ground level.

Two cubic feet

"As long as you have two cubic feet of water, you can have some kind of water garden," said Crum. "By using PVC liner, you can make the garden as big as you want."

Crum explained the hardy perennial water lilies as well as the tropicals. Each water lily must have 14 quarts of clay and 18 inches of water to grow.

The average water lily needs about 12 square feet of surface area. All water lilies in the pond should fill up no more than 70 percent entire surface area.

Various types of water lilies were shown, including the Night Bloomer, which opens at about 10:00 p.m. and closes about 11:00 a.m.

"The James Bridge water lily can run $50 and up at the retail level," Crum said.

Who's answering the phone? And what are we going to do about Mrs. Greenbottom?* were some of the questions answered after a "Greehouse Effect" skit by the Lancaster-area improvisation troupe Co-Motion, whose members include, left to right, Eric Fulmer, Camilla Schade, and Lou Ziegler.

The burgeoning market of water gardens was discussed by Virginia Crum, Lily Ponds Water Gardens, last week at the Garden Center School.

Consider Nature As Additional Income Source

Landowners who leased hunting rights as a source of income may have been disappointed this past year. The Canada goose population was down. If the decline continues, other sources of income will need to be investigated, according to Dean Belt, retired University of Delaware Extension renewable resources agent.

"Good planning and management can improve income from other areas," he says. "The public is looking for a variety of outdoor, environmental experiences, and they are willing to pay to use them. Camping, trail walking, bird-watching, pond fishing, nature photography, hunting preserves, spotting clay and fee hunting or day hunting are just a few of the areas with potential."

The value of any of these will depend on the convenience, quality and the management input of the landowner, Belt says. One area with a great need and major environmental potential is habitat improvement for upland game. Much of this land has been destroyed by cultivation and development. Farmers can take advantage of this opportunity with only minor changes in their operation. Habitat enhancement can be done at various times of the year to be compatible with regular cropping practices.

"Obviously the first year or two will require the most effort and costs associated with planting, fertility and modifications," Belt says. "But in time, a blend of perennial and annual plantings and reduced annual maintenance will modify the costs and time involved.

"High-quality habitat has the potential for attracting and holding wildlife," he notes. "The income potential can be realized from hunting, wildlife observation and photography. The sooner you start, the sooner you'll be in a position to attract those interested in your resource."

Belt recommends that persons interested in establishing wildlife habitat on their property contact the Fish and Wildlife Division of Delaware's Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, Soil Conservation Service, Conservation Districts or Cooperative Extension

Pennsylvania Foods Star In Ag Day Celebration

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Despite snow coating the state Capitol on Tuesday, a celebration of National Agriculture Day brought Pennsylvania's farm representatives and legislators together on the first day of Spring.

The Ag Day celebration saw the unveiling of a new state logo to identify Pennsylvania-produced foods and offered legislators, staff and Capitol visitors a chance to sample first-hand some of the state's tastiest products.

In announcing the new logo for identification of Pennsylvania food, Governor Robert Casey paid tribute to the Commonwealth's number one industry. Agriculture generates more than $35 billion in the Pennsylvania economy through food production, processing and distribution.

Blue, white, and gold, in a rectangular design, the new "Pennsylvania pride" logo carries the slogan "Quality....From Our Home To Yours."

"This logo will soon be seen on store shelves across the nation and around the world," predicted Governor Casey.

In the historic rotunda under the Capitol's landmark dome, members of Penn Agri-Women spread a buffet offering tasting of some of Pennsylvania's most delicious and traditional foods.

"The purpose of this is education and communication between farm and non-farm entities," said Tressie Caton, Reading, Penn Agri-Women's vice president and chairman of the Ag Day buffet.

She estimated that nearly one thousand filed through the lines which for three hours wound past the buffet spread and at times backed up into the halls and beneath the wide, white marble stairs rising the rotunda to the Capitol's second floor.

Foods offered in the Ag Day buffet represented the bounty of Pennsylvania ag production found across the state. From mushrooms to grape juice to homemade bologna, the buffet presented a colorful and delicious tribute to "home-grown" foods.

Legislators, aides and visitors alike selected from a selection of breads, cheeses and cold cuts, fresh vegetables with dairy-based dips, potato chips, pretzels, cider, cookies, cakes, and milk, white and chocolate. Traditional red-beet eggs proved to be a special favorite of the buffet partakers.

Eat For Life

Based on what we know, the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute and the National Cancer Institute have joined together to suggest some ways we may reduce our risks of heart disease and cancer. These suggestions emphasize the need to eat a variety of foods each day. They also include some "mealtime strategies" that can be used to plan meals that avoid too much fat, saturated fat, cholesterol and sodium, and that help us to get adequate starch and fiber. These strategies are consistent with the Dietary Guidelines for Americans. These strategies should encourage us to think about the foods we eat, how to prepare them, and what food choices we can make when we go grocery shopping or eat away from home.

The key is following a Choose More Often approach. It doesn't mean giving up your favorite foods. It means taking steps to choose more often foods that are low in fat and high in fiber. For example, if you enjoy eating steak, choose a low-fat cut such as flank or filet mignon, trim off the excess fat, broil it and drain off the drippings. Pizza? Try a low-fat version that is rich in fiber. Use a whole-grain English muffin or pita bread topped with part-skim mozzarella cheese, fresh vegetables, and tomato sauce. And cookies or other desserts? In most recipes you can reduce the fat, and substitute vegetable oil or margarine for butter. To increase fiber, use whole wheat flour in place of white flour.

Choose More Often:

Lean cuts of meats trimmed of fat (eye of round roast, pork tenderloin, loin lamb chops), poultry without skin, and fish, cooked without breading or fat added.

One percent or skim milk, buttermilk, low-fat or nonfat yogurt, lower fat cheese (part-skim ricotta, port, and farmer), ice milk, sherbet.

Dry beans, peas and lentils which are all good sources of protein and fiber.

Breads, bagels, and English muffins made from whole wheat, rye, bran, and corn flour or meal, whole grain or bran cereals, whole wheat pasta, brown rice, bulgur.

All fruits and vegetables. They are excellent sources of fiber and vitamins and minerals. Choose one that is high in Vitamin C every day (oranges, grapefruit, tomatoes), and one high in Vitamin A every other day (broccoli, brussel sprouts, carrots).

Use unsaturated vegetable oils, such as canola oil (Puritan), corn oil, cottonseed oil, olive oil, soybean oil, margarine, reduced-calorie mayonnaise and salad dressings.

To assure an adequate diet, choose a variety of foods daily including selections of vegetables, fruits, whole-grain breads and cereals, low-fat dairy products, poultry, fish, and lean meat, dry beans and peas.

4-H Travel-All Club Sponsors Salad Bar

LATROBE (Westmoreland Co.)— The Westmoreland County 4-H Travel-All Club will sponsor their annual Salad Bar with entertainment on Sunday, April 8, from 1:00-4:00 p.m. at the Greensburg Sheraton Inn, Route 30 east of Greensburg.

Ticket prices for the all-you-can-eat salad bar are $5.50 for adults, $3.50 for children 6-12, and those 5 and under are free. Tickets are available from any club member or by calling 423-3066.

The club members will be providing entertainment through music and skits. Other entertainment for the day will include vocalist Annette Waller, country gospel by Loose Change, and the 4-H Fashion Revue members will be modeling their projects from last year. Formalwear from El-Dawn Bridal in New Alex and the Tuxedo Room in Latrobe will be modeled by club members. Children's wear from The Young At Heart in Mt. Pleasant will be modeled by younger family members and friends. Flowers will be provided by Lillies Of The Field in New Alex.

Families of the 4-H members have donated many door prizes to be given away during the day.

Proceeds from the day will be used to defray costs of hosting the 4-H delegation from Rice County, Minnesota, this summer. Last summer, the Westmoreland County 4-H Travel-All Club traveled to Rice County and stayed with a family for a week. Now it is their turn to host their new friends and show them their county and surrounding areas. Activities planned include farm tours, a visit to Smith Glass, an evening at Seven Springs, trips to Harrisburg and Pittsburgh and some free time for the members to show their visiting 4-H'er what is special in "their little corner" of the county. A welcoming party and a farewell picnic are also being planned.

For more information on the Salad Bar or the Travel-All Club, please call Betty Harr, organizational leader, 423-3066, or Joanne Logan, 837-1402, 4-H extension agent for Westmoreland County.

4-H Tractor Club Holds Banquet

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The 37th annual Franklin County 4-H Tractor Club Awards Banquet held at the Franklin County Vo-Tech School cafeteria on Thursday, March 15 was attended by more than 130 members, parents, and guests, according to county agent, Bill Reagan.

The family style dinner was held to recognize the project club winners and to complete the annual winter program that involved 45 members this year.

The first year group winners were recognized by club leaders Ronald Hissong, Mercersburg and Daryl Hawbaker, Greencastle. First place honors went to Jason Beery, Chambersburg; second to Luke Zaiger, Waynesboro; and third to Peter Byers, Mercersburg.

Second year winners were recognized by club leader Roger Dice, Chambersburg, as follows: first place to Simon Zaiger, Waynesboro; second place to Solomon Hess, Waynesboro; and third place went to Sammy Myers, Chambersburg.

In the third year group, club leader Myron Young, Chambersburg recognized winners as follows: First place went to Jennifer Rosenberry, St. Thomas; second place to Melanie Burkholder, Chambersburg; and third place to Joshua Benchoff, Waynesboro.

In addition, all third year members who represent the graduating class were awarded individual 4-H tractor trophies in recognition of their completion of the 3-year program.

Awards were made possible through the Franklin County 4-H development fund.

The evening's program was a tractor safety demonstration by Dr. Dennis Murphy, Penn State University agricultural engineer. This demonstration utilizes a model tractor, built to 1/20th scale, to graphically demonstrate backward tipping and side tip-overs that occur frequently with farm tractors. Showing how to prevent tractor accidents is the major theme of this demonstration.

Spring Greenery Found At Nickeson Greenhouses

Grower Jody Applebee is taking geranium cuttings.

Karen Hicks
Bradford Co. Correspondent

HORNBROOK (Bradford Co.)— On the first day of spring, Bradford County lies covered in a layer of new-fallen snow. A winter storm warning is in effect, schools will close early, and the green of spring is nowhere in sight.

At Nickeson Greenhouses in Hornbrook, however, preparation continues for the inevitable return of mild days and longer nights. Owner Jerry Nickeson makes numerous decisions about which plants should be moved to colder greenhouses, which plants should be moved to warmer areas. It's the critical game of timing to ensure that the blooms for the busiest season of the year will precisely match supply and demand. Flowers for Mother's Day, Easter, and Memorial Day constitute 80% of his greenhouse business.

This year is particularly difficult because Easter is 21 days later than last year. It is not a simple matter of starting the plants 21 days later. The differences in growing conditions in March and April may require some tulips to start 41 days later to get them ready for an Easter that's 21 days later.

Seventeen years of experience predict that Jerry will time things just right. He had started his first greenhouse in a cornfield in 1973. That February, the piece of land was a barren field; in March a 26x100 foot greenhouse was erected. He bought 7,000 cuttings of geraniums, and by June 1 his entire stock of potted geranium plants was sold to a wholesale garden center buyer.

All those nights of worrying, and early mornings up early worrying, were suddenly replaced with an empty building and time on his hands. What was he to do? He started building his second greenhouse in September and filled it with poinsettias for Christmas.

Nickeson Greenhouses now comprises 28,000 square feet in eight greenhouses, with construction of number 9 just begun.

Jerry jokingly admits, "If I could have known at the beginning what I knew five years later, I probably never would have begun. I simply would have been overwhelmed."

Yet 17 years later, not for sentimental reasons, geranium propagation remains a solid foundation of the Nickeson greenhouse business. Geranium propagation is now an 8-month project, beginning with 500 new stock cuttings from Oglevee in Connelsville. Oglevee supplies greenhouses across the country with plants developed in cooperation with Penn State and other universities. The plants are free from the bacterial wilt that nearly decimated the geranium industry.

From these 500 stock cuttings, Nickeson produces over 100,000 rooted plants. Nickeson learned his trade at Penn State's Horticulture Department and by working for over two years for the greenhouses of Marcus Sensinger in Lehighton. Working from the original 500 cuttings, rooted in movable propagation benches warmed by coils of Biotherm polyethylene plastic that circulates warm water through the soil, Nickeson maintains 74° soil temperature and an air temperature that may drop to 60° without harming the plants. By June 1, the multiplication from cuttings is up to 5 to 1. By December 1, the stock geranium count is up to 19,000 plus the original 500. From these they take cuttings, and in January, February, and March they start shipping the small, rooted plants to other greenhouses to pot and sell as finished plants for Memorial Day.

At the peak shipping season, mid-March, the turnaround from cutting to rooted plant is two weeks, with each bench refilled as soon as it is emptied and the soil pasteurized. Nickeson ships 10,000-12,000 plants per week during this height of production.

The two techniques of the Biotherm soil warming, and the soil pasteurization between plantings save Nickeson hundreds of dollars in energy cost and lost plants. The energy saved by backing off the air temperature, a harmless practice if the roots are kept warm and cozy, is tremendous. The Biotherm practice actually saves energy and allows Nickeson to speed up plant growth.

Soil pasteurization involves heating the soil to 180° for 30 minutes to kill the harmful bacteria. The steam process takes about 2.5 hours to force the coldest spot in the soil to the necessary 180° for the full 30 minutes. Before steam pasteurization, it was common to lose 50 percent of the cuttings; now, Nickeson loses less than 1 percent of his rootings.

Studying industry advances, combined with old-fashioned ingenuity are the major causes for Nickeson's success. In his words, the adage "the Greenhouse business is selling space," motivates every aspect of his business. He installed rolling benches so that for the 6x12 feet, 2,000-pound benches he needed only one aisle instead of one for each bench. His large greenhouses now hold 15 benches instead of 13, resulting in a 20% increase in capacity with no additional construction, energy, or property tax costs.

In his germination room, the space-saving technique was his own devising. All the bedding plants at Nickeson begin in this room. The 20'x20' space contains 1,000 square feet of growing area, with 32 square foot shelves stacked five high. The stacking allows the warm-loving plants to grow near the ceiling, the cool loving plants to grow near the floor, to take advantage of the natural air stratification. The room is temperature controlled, with the room also controlling the heat in Jerry's office next door. He is quick to apologize to visitors for the coolness of his office by stating, "The building is controlled by the plants next door -- so I'm second class here."

From mid-January to mid-May, the bedding plants, one-half of which will be sold wholesale and one-half retail at the property, are started from seed. With some plants, that is more difficult than others. The popular wax begonia plants begin from seeds that number over 1 million per ounce. Nickeson used to mix the seeds with Knox gelatin so he could plant them.

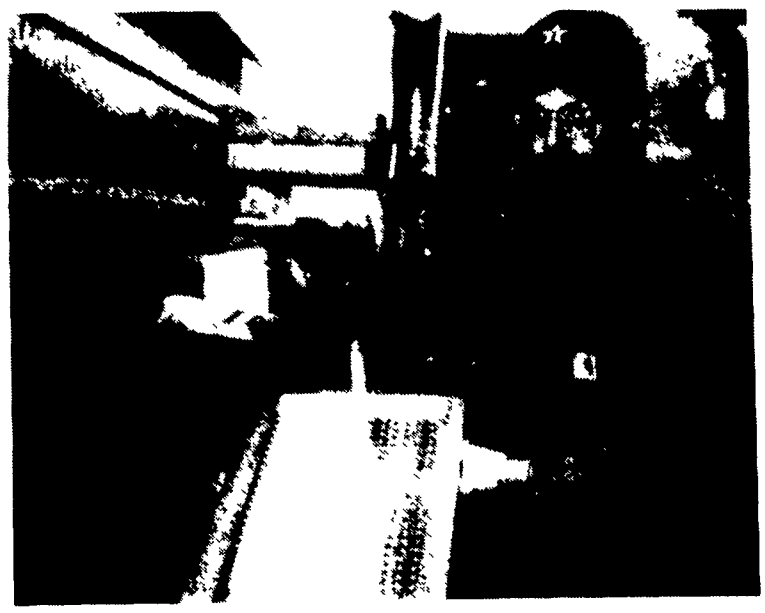
The one-inch plug trays that Nickeson now uses so that he can transplant the wax begonias without disturbing the roots require a greater precision -- one seed to each plug. Nickeson could have bought a $10,000 Hamilton seeder. Instead, he designed his own machine -- the cost, $4. Using a drill press, he drilled 400 wells exactly the diameter of a seed in a metal plate. Then he drilled a catch basin around each well. Four hundred seeds on the plate equals 400 seeds in the flat. Just right.

The technique is simple. You spread 2,000 pelletized seeds over the plate, rock it gently, and the excess seeds will roll into the tray at the edge of the planting box. Place the box over the flat. Slide the plate so the wells are open, and the seeds drop right into place on the flat.

Simple. When you know how. And know-how is the key to the business. When they first started using the plug flats at Nickeson's, they were having very little success. Then they learned that the simple act of scooping the soil mix into the middle of the flat, then spreading it to the sides, was compressing the soil so that the young roots had no airspace. Now, they fill the flats carefully, and water the soil mix before they fill the trays, not after. With the small plugs, the water drainage can be a serious problem, literally drowning the roots. Nickeson resolved the problem by placing each plug tray on top of a regular tray. This increases the column of water, and allows the water to drain down into the bottom flat.

Years of accumulated know-how such as when to pull the first daffodil and crocus pot from the freezer to check the number of days to flowering, how to circulate 20,000 cubic feet of air per minute through the greenhouse to cool the air when the sun is shining steadily, where to position the cold frames with circulating water coils and roll-down plastic to produce some of the sturdiest garden plants in the region, why pay for peak electric use in the germination room when you can turn on the cool white lights on off-peak hours and also take advantage of the cool night air to lower the temperature in mid-May; ensure that Nickeson Greenhouses will continue to produce. The three full-time, year-round employees and the 10-12 full-time peak-season employees are thankful that the brave, foolish, naive young Jerry Nickeson had the guts and ingenuity to chance it 17 years ago.

Rows of Cineraria and Calceolaris for a local flower show are being grown.



Nickeson built this seeding machine for $4. He says 8 to 10 stacks of lights in germination room contains 1,000 square feet of bench space.

Clothing For Special Needs Workshops

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Do you know someone with a physical condition that makes dressing difficult? Perhaps they can't move that arm over their head or stand to put on slacks. Older adults with limited range of motion resulting from arthritis or other conditions often need assistance with putting on certain clothing items or using small fasteners.

Penn State Cooperative Extension will offer a workshop in two different locations to help you learn to adapt clothing for special needs: Monday, April 23 10 a.m. to 12 noon, Norristown Library, Swede & Elm Streets, and Tuesday, April 24, 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Indian Valley Library, Church Avenue, Telford. Both programs are free but advance registration is required. Call Penn State Extension at 489-4315 to register or for more information.

Workshop participants will learn to adapt slacks, shirts, pajamas, underwear and more for adults as well as children. They will view a video on adapted clothing and will see an entire wardrobe of clothing items that have been changed to make dressing easier for persons with physical limitations. Written directions and other resource material will be available. The workshops will be taught by Penn State Master Clothing & Textiles Volunteers, Eileen Garges and Nancy Eidman, and Penn State Staff, Nancy Stevens and Helaine Brown.

Learn To Sew

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — The Montgomery County 4-H Program invites all young people ages 8 to 12 to sign up for the sewing program, sponsored by the Creamery Crafters 4-H Club, at the Creamery 4-H Center, on Wednesday, April 18, at 6:30 p.m.

A parent or guardian must accompany prospective members to the first meeting.

4-H clubs meet year 'round, but during the spring and summer, sewing is the featured activity of many 4-H home economics clubs. A minimal registration fee is required to help maintain the sewing machines used by the club. Members are instructed in small groups by qualified 4-H adult and teen volunteer leaders. Educational materials are provided free. Members must provide their own fabric and pattern, according to the level they enroll in.

For more information or to register your child, please call Helaine Brown, 4-H Agent, at 489-4315, 9:00 AM-4:30 PM. Registration is limited for maximum leader/member interaction. The 4-H Center is located on Route 113, near Skippack, between Routes 29 and 73.

A microwave browning dish uses a special coating on the bottom which absorbs microwave energy and becomes very hot when preheated. Use a browning dish for attractively colored French and puffy omelets and fried eggs. Keep in mind that eggs require less heat for browning than do other foods, such as chicken and meat.

The microwave produces exceptionally tender, fluffy scrambled eggs in a flash. You can save time on clean-up, too, by cooking them in the serving dish, along with your favorite add-in ingredients. As with many micro-cooked dishes, stirring during the cooking period, rotation of the dish and a standing time are the steps to success.

NOTICE TO DAIRY FARMERS

Why is the Greenhouse Effect so hazardous to the competition?
Because as the word spreads how well they Grow Calves, they sell less and less open huts. Seems that all the competition can snivel about is Heat. They don't seem to recognize that cold, wet, dark and drafty huts KILL MORE CALVES, and cost more to use because of lost growth, than heat ever will. Properly MANAGED for summer use, Poly Domes will give you uncomparible GROWTH and LUNG POWER needed for your replacement Herd. The intolerable heat variation is about 22 degrees in Poly Domes, not as excessive as open Huts. The moisture problems are less than competitive huts because of a properly designed vent system. Poly Domes have less condensation than the competition. Your Vet would agree, if things happened as the competition says, BUT THEY DON'T.

It's Time To Make A Change!

ALUMINUM FOIL INSULATION GUARANTEED FOR LIFE
Direct factory to you sale on 1 million square feet of lifetime Radiant Barrier aluminum foil reflective insulation. Designed for poultry & livestock buildings, metal buildings, hog farms, horse barns, cold storage houses, etc... Update & insulate your buildings. Makes a cleaner & healthier environment, lower mortality rate.You will never have to reinsulate again. Buy any amount for 18¢ a square foot while it lasts. Farmers, growers, contractors & dealers inquiries welcome.

10 REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER RADIANT BARRIER REFLECTIVE INSULATION

1) Our reflective insulation has an insulating value equivalent to conventional types of insulation 8 times as thick in certain applications.
2) Completely eliminates condensation, even in metal buildings
3) Controls Heat - Keeps environment considerably cooler in Summer months and warmer in the Winter months. This will result in lower utility costs and healthier livestock.
4) Specially coated outer surfaces can take power washing.
5) Resistant to stains, mildew, chemicals, abrasions and animal waste.
6) Light reflective, provides a brighter work place with less lighting requirements.
7) Tough and durable, structurally very strong while still remaining flexible. Not affected by vermin, birds or any rodents.
8) Ease of installation and maintenance, there are no special clothing requirements needed like gloves, masks or eye protection. all you need is a staple gun and razor knife.
9) Our reflective insulation surpasses all building code requirements. Fire resistant NFPA class A. UBC class 1. Flame spread 25. Smoke density 15.
10) Our reflective insulation is not affected by moisture, so you will never have to reinsulate again. Radiant Barrier has been designed to last forever. A smart investment that will pay you forever.

CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

You'll get more out of an Eby aluminum grain body. Lightweight and rugged aluminum provides rigid, fuel-efficient support to fill your grain hauling needs.

Eby packs years of experience, workmanship and performance into every aluminum body it manufactures. And special Eby options let you customize your body to your individual operation. Available in standard lengths, each unit is designed to provide you with an investment in durable performance and practical economy.

Look over these outstanding features.

- Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction
- Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting.
- Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

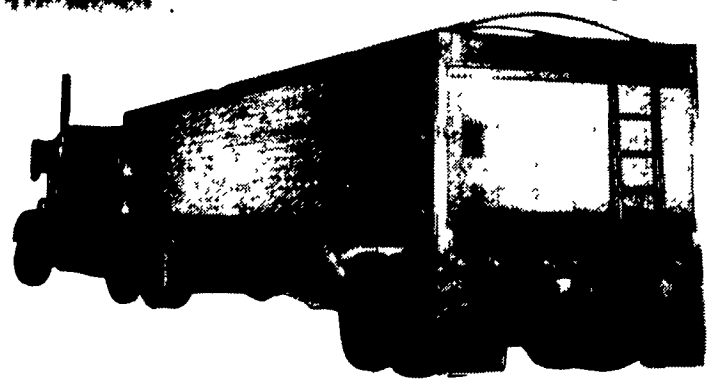
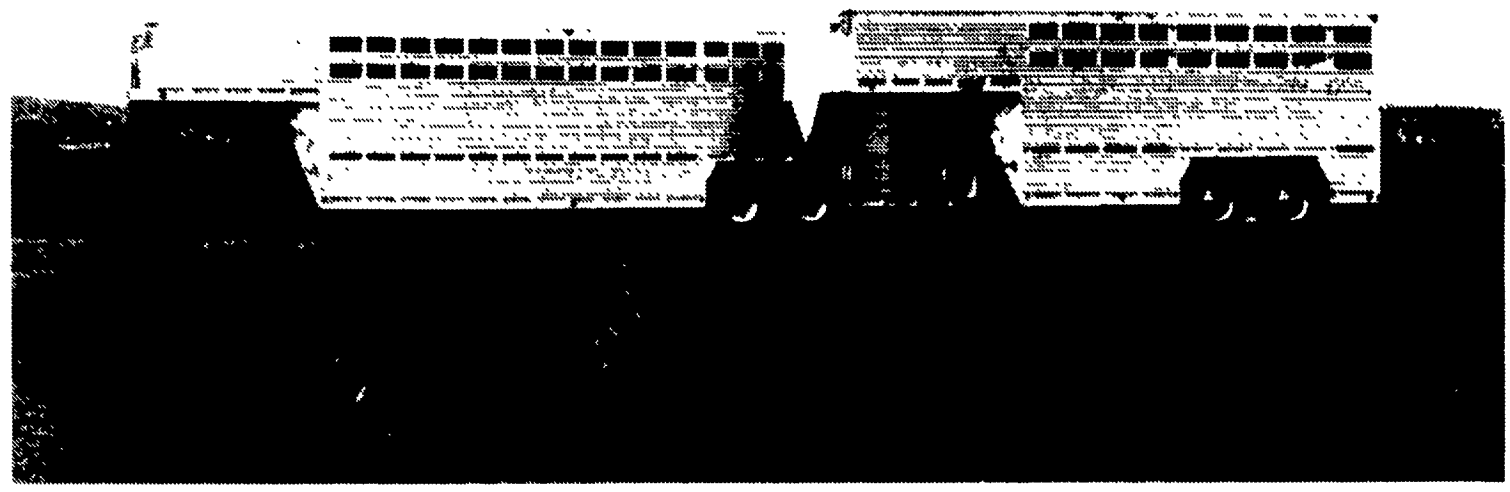
Flash (2) Late Model Used Timpte's Nice Priced Right



Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

M.H. EBY, INC.
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971



24 foot Ruff Neck trailer on left is Eby's workhorse. Trailer on the right is an economical, 16 foot Wrangler.

Get outstanding value in EVERY Eby trailer.

Whether it's a top-of-the-line Ruff Neck or an economical Wrangler, you know your livestock trailer is built to last if it's from Eby.

Aluminum construction is one of the main reasons these trailers are so durable and reliable. They'll never rust through or need welding. In fact, without ever being painted, an Eby livestock trailer will stay looking new for years.

Standard features make your Eby trailer a profitable investment. Extra-heavy axles, brakes, wheels and tires. Thick aluminum sheet flooring. Sturdy posts and rails. Even an aerodynamically designed front end is standard.

And, while standard features make even the economical Eby Wrangler far more than an average economy-model, we custom-build everything we make. So you tell us what you want. Choose from a long list of options. Select those features you need for your particular operation. Whether it's a Wrangler or deluxe Ruff Neck, the trailer you buy will be the trailer you need.

hillsboro
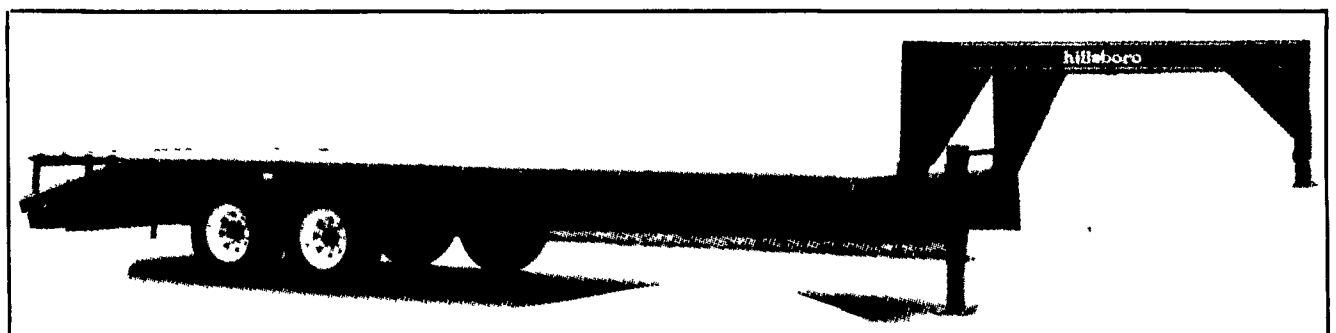
with flip-up beaver tail



24 Foot Length Shown

28 Foot Length Shown

Optional deck over the neck is 7½ 'x8'

The FLIP-UP BEAVERTAIL raises and lowers in seconds -- slide out ramps are stored under the beavertail. The Hillsboro Flatbed features a full 96" deck width which is more value than the competition.

The Hillsboro Flatbed is available in two styles; the 20' and 24' trailer with standard neck, and the 28', 30' and 32' trailer with heavy duty neck.

VERSATILE — RUGGED — RELIABLE and REASONABLY PRICED!

The Hillsboro Flatbed Trailer with flip-up beavertail can be the one trailer that means lower cost for you. Here's why!!

VERSATILITY! That's what makes a Hillsboro trailer such a good investment. With the beavertail down it's an excellent trailer for moving wheeled equipment. Flip the beavertail up and it adds an extra four feet of deck space for hauling hay and other bulky loads.

HERE'S WHAT HILLSBORO QUALITY MEANS - All Hillsboro trailers are manufactured in precise jigs and fixtures which assures excellent alignment of axles, a better pulling trailer, a level and square trailer.

HILLSBORO WORKMANSHIP INCLUDES-Exceptional weld quality, material that is chemically cleaned, two coats of high quality paint, material strength engineered into the best flatbed value.

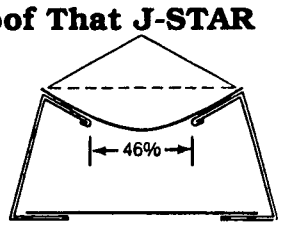
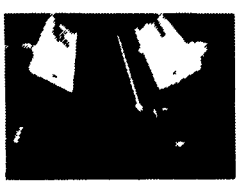
Here's More Proof That J-STAR Builds It Best:



Deep-trough air-borne 14 in belt carries 27% more feed than a flat 16 in belt 105% more than a flat 12 in belt Also, because 46% of the belt rides over thin air - instead of sliding on a metal surface there's less drag Requires less HP, less energy reduces wear on the belt Belt returns conditions for reduced friction



Convenient and simple belt cable tightener maintainer belt or cable tension with a turn of a self-locking ratchet Ratchet is easy to get to, requires only a wrench for adjustments

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy-duty steel welded seams, and reinforced for even more strength.

Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5-inch steps to lengths from 6'3" to 7'11". To allow for different row crop spacings, you can offset either right or left 5, 7½, 10 or 12½ inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching, during dumping cycle, and when departing.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight-through air flow

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20,000 lbs. quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly.

Make your operation safer • Use year round • Variety of crops • All field conditions • Operate in wet and muddy

only $220.00

Although your Case IH dealership is one of the newest pump dealers in the area, it already is established as the best because they handle the industry-leading IPT pump line. Just one proof of this is the Model 2S5 trash pump which sports these credentials.

- 2 in. suction and discharge along with a 5 hp engine.
- Capability to handle 1-in. spherical solids in tough pumping jobs.
- Die cast aluminum housings for light weight ...you can take it anywhere.
- Quick release handles and removable front housing make cleanout a snap.
- Ductile iron impeller for abrasion resistance.
- Built-in check valve facilitates fast repriming.

MAXXUM™

Introducing the new 5130 MAXXUM tractor.

86 H.P.

IN STOCK!

Two years ago, Case International MAGNUM tractors set new standards for big tractors. Now new MAXXUM tractors do it again in mid-range utility and field tractors.

- Power from a six cylinder, 5.9 liter naturally aspirated Case International diesel engine, with 86 PTO hp (64 kW).
- Powershift transmission with 16 forward and 12 reverse speeds, a standard forward/reverse shuttle shift.
- Comfort and convenience in a deluxe cab, custom canopy or foldable roll bar.
- Protection with the industry's best warranty* — five years or 5,000 hours on the entire tractor, whichever occurs first.

Stop in to see the all-new 5130 MAXXUM tractor today.

* Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturers' warranties. A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year

FULL 10-YEAR WARRANTY ON FLOOR & SIDES

Gehl-Tuff floor
In cold weather, the slick Gehl-Tuff surface reduces the force needed to break a frozen apron loose from the floor So your whole load glides out with little resistance And less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains

Heavy-duty gear boxes
Two heavy duty gear boxes, one a 90 degree beater drive, the other a two-speed worm box with bronze gear and steel worm, provide efficient power transmissions, smoother operation and long life

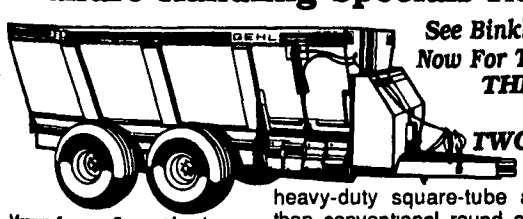
Round bale silage. The concept of baled silage, or balage, is rapidly growing as an alternative to regular baling. It's ideal when weather conditions are unfavorable for quality haymaking. Gehl balers, with their ability to make bales of various sizes in addition to nearly infinite densities, are perfect balers for making balage.

Manure Handling Specials Ready To Work!



See Binkley & Hurst Bros., Inc. Now For The Spreader You Need!
THE ONE SPREADER FOR A TWO-SPREADER FARM

Manure from confinement housing can be quickly and easily loaded and delivered to your spreader with a versatile Gehl skid loader. The heaviest loads are no problem with a Scavanger® II manure spreader. It's built with heavy duty chain drive and rugged construction throughout. Your first glance will tell you the Scavanger® II is unlike any spreader you've ever seen.

heavy-duty square-tube auger that works harder than conventional round augers. The auger powers up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. Variflo front, right-hand discharge gives you complete application control

Handles All Kinds Of Manure - Liquid, Semi-Solid, Pen Packed, Even Frozen Fewer Moving Parts, Fewer Breakdowns

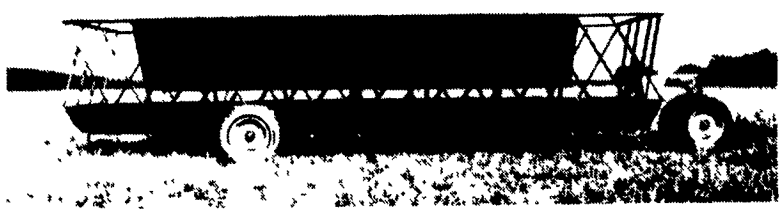
Feeder Wagons In 16', 21' and 27' Lengths Available With Hopper and Dolly Wheels



Also Available With Self-Locking Head Gates

A great feature for feeding cattle in meadows and feed lots. These wagons can be used for feeding round bales, square bales, silage & etc. Especially where ag bags and piles are being used. The added feature of having the head gates makes it easy for quick vet checks, etc.

Also available - Headlocks in sections.

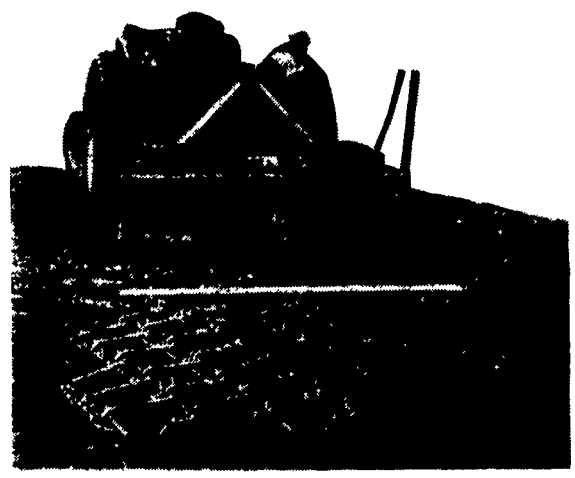
THE BETTER WAY

TO REVITALIZE THE SOIL AND INCREASE YIELD



The AER-WAY is an utility implement that can function as a rotary hoe, a disc, a roller and a harrow. It saves fuel, time and fertilizer. It increases water percolation, bacterial life and root growth. It is an implement for pastureland, grasslands, horse paddocks, general field crops, vegetable production, orchards, vineyards and turfgrass. The AER-WAY will increase your profits through lower costs and higher yields.

Aer Way

AerWay Aerators Ideal For:

1. Relieving Compaction
2. Aeration
3. Cultivation
4. Waterlogged Soil Relief
5. Erosion Control
6. Renovation

AerWay Chain Harrows Ideal For:

1. Spreading manure for parasite control
2. Preparing seed beds
3. Covering seed (esp. winter rye grass)
4. Incorporating herbicides
5. Harrowing in fertilizer on hay fields
6. Root raking, land leveling & landscaping

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

Over the past 8 years, we have sold thousands of T.A.'s to satisfied customers across the U.S. Some of our best customers are I.H. Dealers.

We do complete job or center housing while you wait or will sell you the parts.

Our prices on T.A.'s with the Dana Sprag, are now $645.00 with a 2 year warranty.

We also have units and parts available to rebuild old style T.A.'s, including Ramp & carrier sets for $300.00

Clutches, Pressure Plates
PTO Drives & Water Pumps

We have clutches available for most all IH tractors; including many heavier than original. We also have clutches for many other brands.

- Compare Our Prices -
All clutches & T.A.'s will ship U.P.S. and are sold on an exchange basis. Core charges Apply.

QUALITY USED PARTS

We specialize in IH tractors but we also have Case, Oliver, White and Massey tractors in our inventory.

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS
Check Your Silo Now For Rotten Staves. If You Have Been Using Your Silo For 10 To 15 Years For Either Corn Silage Or Haylage, It Is Time To SHOTCRETE.

If you have a 15 year old silo... get it fixed or insure it better! But don't wait until the last minute to have it repaired because we may not be able to fix it if you wait too long.
REMEMBER your silo will not fall over when it's empty - it will fall over when it's full. It cannot stand on deteriorated concrete...

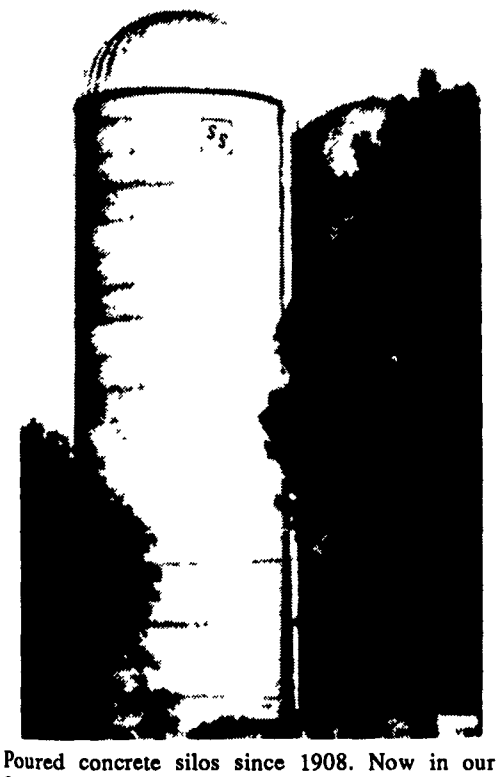
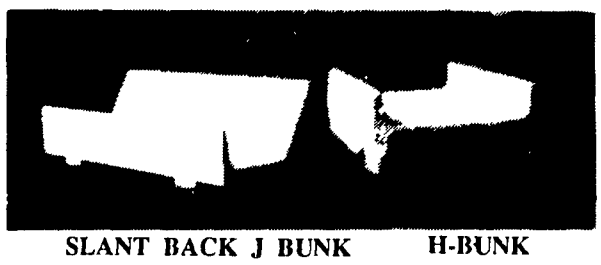
Manure Equipment

"Consider The Concrete Advantages"



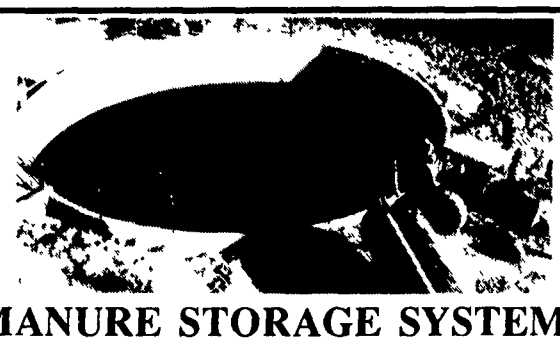
Poured concrete silos since 1908. Now in our 81st year and recognized as the leading silo manufacturer in the east. This quality storage system is available now. Top unloading - bottom unloading - and the unique Big Jim System.

Solid 6" concrete wall, heavily reinforced with hi grade steel, and equipped with concrete chute, fill pipe, ladder, safety cage and aluminized steel roof. Our conventional top unloading silo has a door system 2nd to none!



SLANT BACK J BUNK H-BUNK

Let Us Know Your Needs. We Can Deliver From Our Large Inventory And Set On Your Prepared Site. OR: We Can Load On Your Truck To Help Save On Freight Costs. We Have Several Sizes And Styles To Choose From, Plus Metal Posts, For Cable, Which Can Be Bolted To The Bunk To Keep Cattle Out.



MANURE STORAGE SYSTEMS

- Manure Storage Systems For The Small Herd - or The 400 Cow Herds And Larger.
- Systems Adaptable To Any Type Equipment
- SCS Approved
- Circular Tanks Poured-In-Place Above Ground - In Ground - Or Uneven Backfill.
- Pre-Cast Concrete panels Delivered And Set On Your Prepared Site.

NO REBUILT SILOS
NO PRE-OWNED SILOS!

The SOLLENBERGER Silo is all new, And is poured in place on your farm. Built for generations of use, With absolute minimum maintenance.

FACT: Our poured concrete wall has 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel. Heat damage occurs when stored feed is heated above 95° F. Our silo protects your valuable feed quality

PRE-CAST BUNKER SILOS

"THE ECONOMICAL CHOICE"
STORAGE FOR ANY FORAGE
Also Suitable For Grain Storage, And Practically Any Other Bulk Material.

The Sollenberger Pre-Cast Bunker Silo Panel Is Designed To Be Free-Standing With The Tongue and Groove Edges It Can Be Coated With Mastic & Bolted Together To Give An Air-Tight Smooth Wall That's Easy To Pack And "Keeps Feed Good." Delivered And Set On Your Prepared Gravel Base

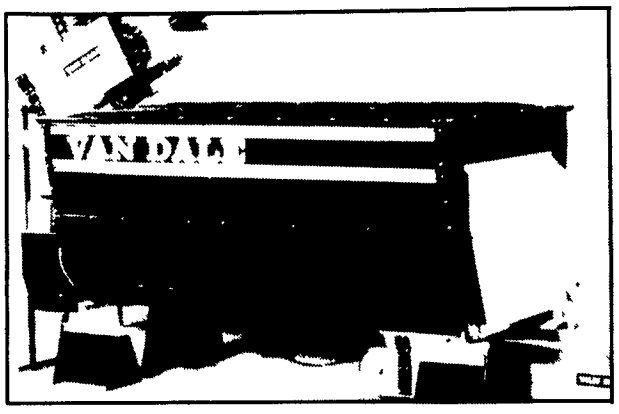
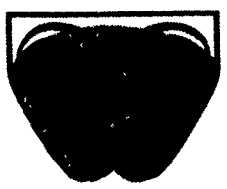
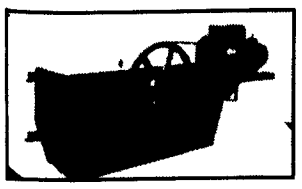
VAN DALE

ST-100 STATIONARY MIXER





Four Auger System
Since we are moving feed half the distance and have four augers to do it VAN DALE requires minimum horsepower and means a fast, thorough mix



Enclosed Oil Bath Drive
Chain case means roller chain works in continuous oil bath.. more complete lubrication, minimum maintenance, longer life.

Bottom Drop Out Door
Located underneath the mixer. This means complete cleanout of all material from each mixing cycle Here is your assurance that each load gets honest mixing without leavings from previous loads

SPECIFICATIONS
Width(mixing box)	53
Overall	70
Length (mixing box)	96
Overall	118
Height (w/weigh bars)	48
(w/o weigh bars	44
Motor	5 hp
Lower augers	10 OD x 1/4 sectional flighting 2 7/8 OD x 3/8 tubing
Uppers augers	18 OD 3 dia standard pipe 1/4 sectional paddle augers
Bearings	1 1/8 1 3/8 1 1/2 2 dia
Roller chain	#50 #60 #80 heavy duty sprockets
Mixing time	1 3 min
Capacity	95 cu ft /76 bu 3325 lbs at 35 lbs per cu ft
Lower floor pan	10 gauge
Side panels	12 gauge
Discharge door opening	12 x 12

Heavy Duty Augers
Bottom auger flighting, top paddle augers are made of heavy gauge steel Full mixing takes 1 to 3 minutes Bottom augers connect to drive shaft through a star engagement which lessens stress for longer life

Bolt-Together Construction
Because of its bolt-together construction the ST-100 can be assembled in cramped spaces impossible with larger units or with single piece units For instance, a disassembled ST-100 will easily clear through a standard 2'8" x 6'8" doorway
You assemble the ST-100 on whatever site you choose Two people can usually complete the assembly in about half a day You need no special tools, no special training, no special procedures
Thanks to such special features as bolt-together construction and swingaway chain case, you can perform regular maintenance, make any repairs with a minimum of effort.

ADVANTAGES OVER TUMBLE MIXERS:

• Open Top • Can Be Filled Without Running Unit • Low Profile-Will Fit Most Feed Rooms • Chains Run In Oil • Beam Scale Or Electronic • Bolt Together Construction - Can Go Thru A Walk-In Door
★ In Stock For Immediate Delivery ★ Price Competitive w/Other Mixers
★ Also Available - Rebuilt Mixers

Families Receive Pa. Century Farm Awards

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Twenty-six farm families received Pennsylvania Century Farm designation during the first quarter of 1990.

This brings to 1,431 the number of families that have been recognized by the State Department of Agriculture for owning a farm that has remained in the family for 100 or more consecutive years.

"The Commonwealth has a long and proud agricultural tradition," said Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff," and the Department of Agriculture is committed to preserving that legacy for our children and grandchildren.

"We are proud to honor Century Farm owners for their hard work and dedication, as they continue to feed the citizens of Pennsylvania and our neighbors around the world."

To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for at least 100 consecutive years, a family member must live on the farm, and the farm must consist of at least 10 of the original acres or gross over $1,000 a year in the sale of farm products.

Wolff urged other families who might qualify for the Century Farm designation to call 1-800-AG-PENNA for an application and additional information.

The following families received certificates during January, February, and March:

ARMSTRONG COUNTY — Howard, Ernest, Robert and William Anderson and Lois Jane Anderson Farster (brothers and sister) of Spring Church, purchased in 1875 by their great aunt and uncle Mary and James Anderson.

Ralph & Doris Myers of RD 2, Vandergrift, purchased in 1866 by his great grandfather Joseph Myers.

BEAVER COUNTY — Mary Ellen and Roy J. Estel Sr., Hookstown Grade Road, Clinton, pruchased in 1871 by her great-great grandfather Samuel Gorsuch.

BLAIR COUNTY — J. Edward and LaDonna Biddle, Cross Country Farms, RD 1, Williamsburg, purchased in 1875 by his great grandfather John Biddle.

BRADFORD COUNTY — Judson and Hilda Titchen, RD 2, Wyalusing, purchased in 1866 by his grandfather John Titchen.

DPC Donates To Scholarship Fund

Veterinarians Arden J. Nelson, second from right, and Howard R. Redlus, far right, co-founders of Dairy Production Consultants of Cortland, New York, present $1,000 in scholarship monney to Thomas J. Cannon, far left, assistant professor of plant and animal science and Ronald D. Stutzman, chairperson, plant and animal science department, School of Agriculture and Allied Health, SUNY College of Technology at Alfred.

ALFRED, NY — Dairy Production Consultants (DPC) of Cortland has donated $1,000 to the scholarship fund at the State University of New York (SUNY) College of Technology, to be distributed as two $500 scholarships.

The scholarships will be awarded to incoming, out-of-state students who enroll in a curriculum directly related to dairy cattle management.

Each student will be awarded half of the scholarship at high school graduation and the remaining half after completing the first semester at the College of Technology at Alfred with a minimum grade point average of 3.0 out of a possible 4.0.

Student applicants will be required to submit a written description of their current dairy cattle background and their plans involving dairy cattle management after graduation. Application deadline is May 1, 1990.

Mail application material to or request more information from Thomas J. Cannon, assistant professor, School of Agriculture and Allied Health Technologies, SUNY College of Technology, Alfred, NY 14802, (607) 587-4714.

Alfred State Has Robotic Grain Feeder

ALFRED, N.Y.— Alfred State College has the only college farm in New York State equipped with an "around the barn" automated feeding system, thanks to a gift from DeLaval, a division of Alfa-Laval Agri, Inc., headquartered in Kansas City, MO.

The DeLaval Feed Car, valued at $15,000, is a robotic grain feeder for conventionally housed dairy cattle, according to Thomas J. Cannon, assistant professor in the college's plant and animal science department.

The direct benefit of the feed car to Alfred State's farm is a reduction in the time to feed cows of nearly four hours per day, Cannon said.

"This time can be used to better manage the herd in breeding and sire selection decisions, hoof care, replacement herd management, and during crop season so that attention can be given to timely planting and harvesting of forage crops," Cannon said.

The feed car is designed to feed two types of grain simultaneously. The use of a two-variable grain feeding system will allow the herd to be fed more in tune with their individual nutrient requirements, he said.

Aside from "down-on-the-farm" uses for the feed car, the gift from DeLaval has campus-wide implications, college officials reported.

Students in all curriculums will be exposed to "the newest in computer technology through the use of robotics" to feed the dairy herd and the computer integration of feeding, milk production, and herd management information, according to Cannon.

Students also will be able to apply the latest concepts of ruminant nutrition (the use of special protein types and amino acid levels) in feeding lactating dairy cattle, he said.

The implementation of robotics to feed the dairy herd at Alfred State is further proof that agriculture is merely a specialized application of biology," according to college officials.

Law Aids Land Owners

COLLEGE PARK, Md.— The Maryland state legislature recently passed a new law that will make the posting of private lands against trespassing easier and cheaper.

"Instead of having to post, maintain and replace signs destroyed or damaged by vandals, land owners will have the option of marking their property with stripes of bright blue oil-based paint," said Jonathan S. Kays, a regional natural resources specialist with the University of Maryland cooperative extension service.

"The signs or paint marks will indicate to people that they are entering private property that is posted against trespassing," Kays said.

Maintenance of the paint marks will involve nothing more than reapplying paint with a brush or roller as necessary.

The law states that the paint marks must be:

- At least two inches wide and eight inches long.
- Located at least 3 feet, but no more than 6 feet, above the ground or water.
- Placed on trees or posts at each road entrance into the property and along public roads and waterways and adjoining land.
- Visible to any person with normal eyesight who approaches the property.

"Although the law does not specify the distance between marks," said Kays, "a spokesperson from the Maryland Department of Natural Resources recommends that they be close enough so that a person standing in front of one mark can see the adjacent marks off to each side."

Delmarva Poultry Sets Record

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The Delmarva poultry industry recently set an all-time record when growers placed 10,964,000 baby chicks in grow-out houses during the week ending March 10.

The previous chick placement weekly total high was 10,876,000 birds, which took place the week of July 14, 1989.

In noting this new milestone for the Delmarva poultry industry, Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. said, "Poultry is our largest agricultural business in Maryland and on Delmarva. High production rates not only benefit poultry producers and the poultry integrator companies, but are a great market for grain producers in the regions as well.

"If all the 10.9 million birds placed in this one week live out through the normal grow-out cycle, they will consume over 87 million pounds of grain, which amounts to a lot of corn and soybeans which make up the bulk of poultry feed.

"The consumer benefits as well because today's chicken is in tune with the times both as a value-packed food and as a perfect diet partner for today's leaner diets.

"Production rates on Delmarva have been running at very high levels this year. For the first 10 weeks of this year, an average of 10.4 million chicks have been placed each week," Cawley said.

Poultry production figures are compiled each week by the Maryland-Delaware Agricultural Statistics Service, a U.S. Department of Agriculture agency which works with the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Livestock Notes

American shepherds are on the doorstep of the trend to natural fibers, especially wool. At this point in time, foreign wool has made it through the door, receiving the buyers top dollars. If each producer improves the quality of his wool, American wool will find favor with the same buyers.

Farm Animal Protection Act

Congressman Charlie Stenholm (D-TX), along with 45 other co-sponsors, introduced a bill called "Farm Animal and Research Facilities Protection Act of 1989," on September 13.

The bill would make it a felony to break into any vehicle, building, structure or premises where animals are kept, handled, or sold. It also makes it a misdemeanor to trespass in animal facilities.

Congressman Ron Marlenee (R-MT) also drafted a bill aimed at organizations that encourage environmental sabotage against users of public lands. The bill would penalize anyone guilty of acts resulting in damages of $100 or more to property, and calls for fines of up to $10,000 and up to 10 years in prison. Solicitation to commit such a crime would warrant half the maximum prison term and/or fine. He is seeking co-sponsors for the bill.

Preparing For Shearing

Sheep must be dry at shearing time, as wet wool will form mildew in storage, lowering its quality.

Shear on a clean wooden platform or cover dirt and cement floors with heavy tarps or old rugs. Do not use straw or other bedding in holding pens.

To tie the fleece, turn the flush side down. After skirting turn the neck back to the shoulders, turn the breech and shanks up to the point of the hips, and turn the belly in until the better wool appears. Roll the fleece in such a way as to show the greatest amount of clean fleece.

Use only paper twine for tying. Two strands, one each way, are usually enough.

Your skirted wool, discolored wool, and fleeces with excessive vegetable matter must be kept separate.

Annual Meeting

The Berks County Sheep and Wool Growers will hold their annual meeting on May 10, 1990 at the Berks County Ag Center.

Dr. Harold Harpster, professor of animal science at Penn State University, will discuss pasture management, including species to plant, grazing management, and extending the growing season.

Malformed Lambs

A number of reports throughout Pennsylvania have been received concerning lambs being born malformed.

The associated conditioned and gross appearances are lamb(s) dead at birth, with curved and rigid spinal column. Limbs (joints) are also stiff and in many instances this articular rigidity obstructs the normal birth process.

Confirmation of the exact disease problem is still pending. However, PSU and Cornell veterinarians are focusing on a disease known as Ovine Arthrogryposis Hydrocephalus, more commonly called the AGH Syndrome.

The disease is thought to be transmitted by biting insects (mosquitoes). It is a virus that infects the joint tendons and the central nervous system. It expresses itself in lambs born with a stiff-curved spinal column, which shows as malformed and stiff limb joints.

A necropsy of the CNS tissue also reveals extra fluids in the cerebellar area of the brain. There is no treatment or vaccine available at this time for immunizing non-infected animals.

Pruning Demo

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — A fruit pruning demonstration meeting will be held Saturday, March 31 from 1:00 p.m. until 3:00 p.m. at Bertrams Fruit Farm, between Honesdale and Bethany on Rt. 670.

The information will be presented at four locations in the orchard and participants will rotate from one location to another.

Topics to be presented will be insect and disease control, planting a tree and training the one-year-old tree, pruning a five-year-old tree, and finally a mature tree. A demonstration on pruning blueberries will be given at the conclusion of the meeting.

Instructors for the demonstration meeting will be Charles Bertram, orchard owner; John Creighton and Donald Overdorff, Wayne County agricultural agents; and Scott Guiser, Bucks County agricultural agent.

A "Springtime" Cattle Feeding Option

There are several different seasons in which cattle can be bought and raised on a short-term basis. One of the most important considerations is the adequacy of the feed supply and facilities for a particular type of cattle operation. There is a springtime option that may be of interest to you.

Buy cattle in early spring for grazing. Generally, producers who graze cattle purchase them in early to mid-April. Additionally, there are usually more cattle from which to select in April. If the producer does not have facilities and stored feed to maintain cattle until the start of the pasture season, then he must wait until the pastures are ready for grazing to purchase cattle. Although Lancaster County does not have abundant grazing land, there are several small farms which can be utilized for beef grazing.

Producers buying cattle in the spring and selling in the fall usually deal with a negative per pound margin, with purchase price in the spring usually higher than sales price in the fall. Therefore, profit must come from increased weight pre head.

Weight per head is dependent not only on pasture quality, but also on inherent growing ability and conditions of the cattle when grazing is started. Other factors such as worming, implanting, fly control, and providing a complete mineral mixture all determine weight gain.

Pasture season gains can vary from 0 to 2.5 pounds/head/day, depending partly on these factors. Too many times producers feel that pasture is "free" and any weight gain, no matter how small, is "free." Because of price fluctuations and the usually negative margin, producers grazing cattle must do their best to obtain satisfactory gains by paying attention to management details.

Cattle purchased with the intention of grazing should be fairly thin to medium in condition to gain acceptably on pasture. One of the most important factors determining the success of a calf or yearling grazing program is the continued availability of high-quality pastures throughout the season.

Our local grazing season starts in April and can last through November. If high-quality pasture is not continuously available, much of the gain/condition on the cattle early can be lost, with the cattle going "backward" late in the season.

The pasture should contain at least 25 percent legume -- birdsfoot trefoil and clover are generally preferred because of the lesser chance of bloat. Properly managed intensive grazing systems can provide continuous availability of high quality forage.

Because of factors affecting pasture availability, such as rainfall, temperature, and persistence of desirable plant species, the producer must be prepared to reduce the number of cattle on pasture as the season progresses or must supply supplemental feed. This may require removing some of the heavier steers and placing them in a feedlot or selling some cattle. Another alternative is to supplement the feed with high-quality forages or concentrates while continuing to graze.

Backyard Lamb Projects

At this time of year, calls are often received at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office concerning raising lambs for pets, pleasure, performance, and profit. Most of these inquiries are from folks with little or no experience in sheep raising, but their interest in the matter always seems to catch my attention. Many of these new inquisitive shepherds are interested in raising one or two lambs for a variety of reasons.

For some reason a lot of people would like to raise these wool-bearing, meat-producing livestock for pets in an environment similar to cats and dogs. Others would like to have a couple of lambs around for observation pleasure -- to watch them frolic in the backyard. Others want sheep for performance, and I don't mean "rate of gain." Their performance consists of the lambs mowing grass

Fiat Promotes Landis

CAROL STREAM, Ill.— Fiat recently promoted Larry G. Landis to general manager and chief operating officer of the newly formed Hesston Credit Corporation.

Landis most recently served as sales and finance credit manager of Hesston Corporation and Fiatallis (Fiat Geotech), where he started his career in the early 1970s as a cost accountant.

In mid-summer, Fiat approved the formation of Hesston Credit Corporation, an independent finance company chartered to support Hesston dealers and their retail sales efforts. Hesston Credit Corporation is wholly owned by Fiat.

Timber Owners Strive To Increase Sales

MILESBURG (Centre Co.)— Woodlot owners in Pennsylvania took the first steps toward developing new marketing channels for their timber during a meeting held here in mid-March.

A Pennsylvania Timber Marketing Project launched during the March 16 meeting wil explore potential marketing opportunities to increase the profitability to woodlot owners from the sale of their timber. The project is being sponsored by the Pennsylvania Farmers Union.

"Family farmers own a significant share of the timber land in Pennsylvania. Because timber production is not their primary business, they often sell their trees without adequate marketing information or knowledge of the quality of their production," said Terry Pattison, Union City, chairman of the Timber Marketing Project."

"We want to explore all of the options -- including the development of a marketing cooperative -- which could put marketing information and power into producers' hands," Pattison said.

Producers at the Milesburg meeting analyzed the existing services available to woodlot owners and discussed the greatest areas of need. A survey being developed by the Timber Marketing Project will gauge the interest of producers statewide in the development of new market services for woodlot owners.

Allen Deiter, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, said, "Producers are searching for new means of increasing their profitability while protecting their resources. Timber marketing may not be a primary source of income for most farmers, but there is a strong potential to increase the income from timber sales."

Additional information on the Timber Marketing Project is available by calling 1 (800) 932-4629.

Corn Herbicide Controls Grass

WILMINGTON, Del.— Breakthrough chemistry to control the toughest grasses in corn is coming from Du Pont's herbicide called "Accent."

Accent has been tested by university investigators, Du Pont scientists, and private researchers for several years.

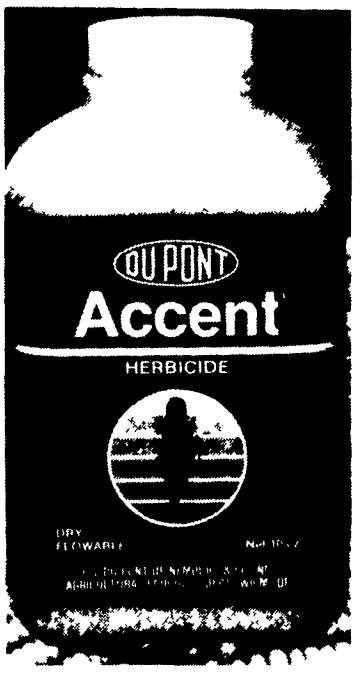
Corn farmers also have had a firsthand look. Accent was tested under an experimental use permit granted by EPA during the 1989 growing season.

Key benefits of the corn compound include:

- Broadspectrum grass control. This includes controlling tough grasses such as Johnsongrass, shattercane, foxtails, wooly cupgrass, and more.
- Consistent control of grassy weeds, even in severe drought conditions.
- Extremely low use rates (less than an ounce per acre), yet practically non-toxic to man, animals, fish and fowl because its mode of action is unique to plants.

"New Du Pont Accent herbicide is showing unprecedented broad-spectrum post-emergence grass control in corn," said Don Weir, Du Pont product manager.

"We're very excited about the potential of Accent and the impressive field test results," said Weir. "Accent will allow farmers to significantly improve weed control and finally give them the freedom to plant corn in fields heavily infested with grassy weeds.



Du Pont "Accent" herbicide for the control of grasses in corn will be packaged in 10-ounce bottles, complete with a handy measuring guide. Field trial work shows excellent grass control at ⅔ ounce per acre. Registration is pending.

"Farmers will be able to no-till where they haven't been able to before because of grass pressures. Farmers will be able to plant corn following corn, rather than rotate to soybeans to control Johnsongrass. And, farmers will be able to rotate to corn in fields with intense Johnsongrass pressures that wouldn't allow growing corn before."

Accent controls shattercane; seedling and rhizome Johnsongrass; sorghum almum; giant, yellow, bristly and green foxtails; fall and Texas panicum; barnyard grass; broadleaf signalgrass; field and longspine sandbur; wooly cupgrass; quackgrass and broadleaves such as ivyleaf and tall morning glory; smooth and redroot pigweed; annual smartweed; and jimsonweed.

"No other product has the broad-spectrum post-emergence control and wide window of application that Accent has," said Scott Rowe, Du Pont corn products development manager. "But what's been most impressive about Accent is its across-the-board consistent control, even in drought conditions."

Du Pont expects the label rate to be ⅔ ounce per acre. Testing shows that at this rate, Accent will control shattercane, seedling Johnsongrass, and sorghum almum when the weeds are 4 to 10 inches tall. Rhizome Johnsongrass can be controlled at 8 to 12 inches, and foxtail varieties can be stopped when they are from 1 to 4 inches tall.

"Accent allows growers to assess the extent of their grass problems before farmers spray," Rowe said. "And because of the known safety of the product to humans and animals, its low use rate, and its post-emergence application to foliage rather than the soil, Accent provides a win-win situation for users and the environment."

Accent, a member of the sulfonylurea family of chemistry, is systemic; it's absorbed through the leaves and translocated through the plant to the growing points where it inhibits production of two amino acids essential for protein synthesis. Accent kills weeds by inhibiting the enzyme system found only in plants, not in animals.

Bale Processor Reduces Waste

CAROL STREAM, Ill.— The new Hesston Model BP-25 bale processor significantly helps reduce round bale waste while allowing one operator to haul, process, and feed even the largest bales.

A thorough blending with good hay encourages cattle to more readily eat poorer quality or damaged hay. "After blending hays with the bale processor, some producers reduced wastes by up to 25 percent," said Bob Granaas, product manager, Hesston Corporation. In addition, Granaas said that with dense bales, the tearing action of the processor helps livestock get feed with a minimum of effort.

No adjustment is required with the Model BP-25 to reduce stemmy crops to palatable lengths for younger cattle or to longer lengths for more mature animals or range feeding. Many producers also enjoy their ability to switch from feeding hay to mulching with straw without time-consuming adjustments.

For many cattlemen, the bale processor significantly reduces feeding times. "If a typical operation takes 3 to 4 hours to unroll round bales, it can probably process and feed the same hay in about one hour," Granaas said. "Some customers say the reduced man-hours can help pay for the machine."

With an 80 to 100 hp tractor, a 1,500-pound round bale can be processed in 4 to 6 minutes, whether feeding hay or mulching with straw. The bale processor accommodates up to a 150 hp tractor with snowblower or other accessory.

Other ways in which the Model BP-25 design simplifies round-bale handling and processing include direct drive by a 21-spline, 1,000 rpm PTO for minimal maintenance and increased reliability. The direct drive eliminates gearboxes, chains, and belts.

For bale loading ease, the operator can tilt the 49-inch deep, 87-inch diameter tub to the ground, back up to the bale, and simply tilt the bale and tub back into operating position. Its hydraulic tilt reaches 90 degrees. Thirteen inches of ground clearance allows the processor to operate in most conditions. Traction tread flotation tires provides footing on soft ground.

A self-cleaning rotor design allows easy clearing of infrequent clogs by raising the tub off the rotor.

The rotating tub design assures uniform feeding. The weight of the bale forcing the crop down onto the rotor with 14 fixed, reversible hammers gives even crop feeding without "fighting" the weight of the bale.

Overall size allows the Model BP-25 to operate in relatively small lots, alleyways, and stockyards. The bale processor is flexible between bunks and range feeding. The Model BP-25 is equipped with a discharge chute.

Extra and optional equipment includes a primary conveyor for bunks up to 32 inches wide, a conveyor extension for bunks up to 60 inches wide, secondary cutting element for finer cut, and flo control for tractors not equipped with flow control at their auxiliary valve outlet.

Additional information on the Hesston Model BP-26 bale processor and the full line of Hesston hay and forage equipment, tractors, materials handling, and tillage equipment can be obtained by contacting Art Hammerstrom, Hesston Advertising Coordinator, at 245 E. North Ave., Carol Stream, IL 60188.

and pulling weeds. And for profit -- well, not too many inquiries were made on this subject since most callers don't have any intention of selling the lambs.

Everyone wants to get a baby lamb, as young as possible, so they can watch it grow, and most folks just want only one. I urge most people to obtain at least a pair of lambs and to get them only after they have been properly weaned from their mothers. Lambs should have shelter and a nutritious grass area properly fenced to keep out predators.

Fresh water and minerals are important to growing lambs and supplemental feed is necessary if pastured area becomes too short. A good way to manage the grass area is to divide it into lots and rotate the grazing activity, because sheep graze very close to the ground. And lambs should be administered a worm medicine to prevent unthriftiness.

Before purchasing your new lambs, consider long-range plans. What happens when summer is over? Will you give the lambs proper attention during the fall, winter, and spring? Do you have the proper facilities? What will you do with the wool? What are your feelings toward marketing the lambs for meat production? Will your family become so attached to the lambs that they may take over the guest bedroom for the winter?

Raising lambs can be fun. But sheep are meat- and wool-producing livestock and are comfortable with the role they play in our agricultural industry. You should give this thought due consideration before taking on a backyard sheep project this summer.

All-In, All-Out Hog Finishing

Many producers practice the all-in, all-out concept int he farrowing house and nursery. Based on recent research at Purdue University, we're learning that maintaining pigs in separate groups improves health and weight gain in the grower-finisher barn as well.

Three trails were conducted to compare all-in, all-out and continuous flow methods of handling growing finishing pigs.

Benefits Of The All-In, All-Out System

Trial 1:

Faster growth rate (1.70 pounds/day vs. 1.56 pounds/day).

Fewer lungs affected with pneumonia (63 percent vs. 69 percent).

Less lung area affected by pneumonia (2.8 percent vs. 6.2 percent).

Trial 2:

45 fewer days to market weight.

Trial 3:

Fewer pneumonia lesions.

30 fewer days to market weight.

In the fourth trial, results were similar. However, the researchers learned that performance in the continuous flow facility is reduced further when pigs are housed next to pigs with pneumonia problems. Pigs housed in an all-in, all-out facility had the fastest weight gain and had no long lesions. Pigs housed in a continuous flow facility next to coughing pigs had reduced weight gains and 94 percent of the lungs were affected with pneumonia lesions at slaughter.

Penn State extension swine specialist Ken Kephart concludes that under conditions of both good and poor herd health, the all-in, all-out concept allows pigs to grow faster adn reach market weight with fewer chronic respiratory problems.

District Extends Poster Deadline

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The Chester County Conservation District is extending the deadline for its poster contest.

"Earth Day, Every Day - You Can Make The Difference" original deadline was April 1, 1990 and the district will now be accepting entries up to and including Friday, April 13, 1990.

The conservation district will announce the winners at the Earth Day Celebration being held April 22, 1990 at Hybernia Park.

A written title or slogan using the aforementioned theme or a related statement must appear on each poster entered. There are five divisions: grades K-1, 2-3, 4-6, 7-9, and 10-12. The poster size requirements are: minimum of 9 inches x 12 inches or maximum of 22 inches x 28 inches.

No artist's name shall appear on the front of the poster. The following information should be printed on the back of the poster: student's name, address, age, grade, school name, school district.

AVIAN INFLUENZA REMAINS A THREAT

David C. Kradel
M.S., M.P.H., D.V.M.
Poultry Extension Veterinarian

It has been four years (1985) since the highly disease-producing avian influenza virus was last introduced into Pennsylvania.

Avian influenza was brought into the state by dirty hauling crates from the New York City live-bird market — a violation of basic sanitation biosecurity.

In contrast with the earlier 1983-84 outbreak, when more than 16 million birds had to be depopulated, the 1985 introduction was quickly controlled with the depopulation of about 330,000 birds.

Although the source of the virus causing the 1983-84 outbreak was not determined, it was thought that feces from wild waterfowl that are frequently infected with avian influenza viruses may have been tracked into a poultry house.

Security lessons forgotten

With time, the biosecurity lessons learned in those two outbreaks are often forgotten. Those lessons are 1) Biosecurity — doing those things that will reduce the potential for introducing disease to a flock and that will prevent spread of disease among flocks — should be practiced at all times. 2) Should reintroduction of avian influenza occur, it is essential that the first or earliest cases be rapidly recognized before the disease becomes widespread. 3) Practicing reasonable biosecurity and early disease recognition is everyone's responsibility.

Since 1984, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has provided support for a statewide avian influenza/avian disease monitoring program. This program is the most extensive monitoring system in the country. It was largely responsible for quickly recognizing the reintroduction of the 1985 avian influenza and determining that the source of the virus was the live-bird market.

However, this monitoring program by itself can't prevent another industry catastrophe like the one that occurred in 1983-1984. Prevention will also require a continued awareness of the potential for reintroduction and the constant practice of reasonable biosecurity measures.

Biosecurity measures

Seven of the most important biosecurity measures or procedures are 1) Dirty crates or equipment should not be brought onto the farm. This is particularly important where crates or equipment originate from auctions, poultry dealers, or live-bird markets. 2) Non-essential personnel should be kept out of poultry houses. Service people that must enter a house should wear clean coveralls, boots, and a hair cover. 3) Wild birds should be kept out of houses. Prevent feed contamination from wild birds or rodents. 4) Birds purchased at sales, auction markets, and from dealers should not be added to a flock. Where these must be introduced, the new purchases should be quarantined for three weeks prior to introduction. Commercial flocks should never take this risk. 5) Removal of only part of the flock by an outside buyer or crew (topping off a flock) and allowing the rest of the flock to remain for one or more weeks is a risky procedure. If this must be done, the catchers should have clean clothes and crates should not be unloaded into the house. 6) Properly dispose of dead birds. Disposal methods include burial, incineration, rendering, and composting. Birds should not be spread on fields. 7) Any respiratory or production problem with unusual mortality or of an uncertain cause should be investigated by submission of birds and/or blood samples to a diagnostic laboratory. Avian influenza can mimic many other diseases and may not result in high mortality.

Biosecurity practices can also reduce the potential for introduction and spread of other highly contagious diseases, including laryngotracheitis (LT), Mycoplasma infections (MG), and exotic Newcastle disease.

Sources of information

Several publications and videotapes on biosecurity and dead bird disposal are available from the Penn State extension. The videotapes on biosecurity may also be purchased from the American Association of Avian Pathologists for $20. Contact them at (215) 444-4282.

Farm Credit Bank Appoints Cole

BALTIMORE, Md.— The Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore is pleased to announce the appointment of J. Owen Cole to its board of directors.

Cole is the retired chairman of First Maryland Bankcorp. He serves as chairman of the executive committee, First Maryland Bankcorp and First National Bank of Maryland. He is on the board of directors for United States Fidelity and Guaranty Corporation, the Baltimore Gas and Electric Company, the Baltimore Convention Bureau, and Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

"As the Banks' first outside director, Mr. Cole's extensive financial experience will be a valuable asset to us," said Bank Board Chairman E. McDonald Berryman. Cole's term expires December 31, 1992.

The Farm Credit Bank of Baltimore and its 18 affiliated associations serve approximately 49,000 farmers, rural home owners, acquatic harvesters and producers, and agri-businessmen in Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Outstanding loan volume exceeded $2.8 billion as of December 31, 1989.

Chester/Del. County FA Holds Meeting

OXFORD (Chester Co.) — The Chester/Delaware County Farmer's Association directors held their March meeting recently at the home of Richard Breckbill, president; Oxford, to finalize the Legislative tour to Harrisburg, plan activities, and hear reports from committees.

Robert Lange, Malvern, reported on discussions concerning House Bill 2336, the Family Farm Preservation proposal. It would permit the reduction of estate taxes on family farms that are in a metropolitan area.

Present procedures are to value the land of family farms as development instead of being valued for its use for agriculture. Lange visited 19 members of the House Ways and Means Committee during the recent Farmers' Association legislative tour to Washington.

"Both Democrats and Republicans were receptive to the idea of assisting family farms to stay in operation. Most were not familiar with the objectives of the bill," Lange said. "Seventeen of Pennsylvania's congressmen are co-sponsors of the proposed legislation. Congressman Schulze was very helpful in making contacts," Lange said.

"The spring banquet is scheduled for April 5 at the West Fallowfield Christian Day School," said Charles Moore, Cochranville, chairman. "A notice and reservation form will be sent out to all members in the newsletter. The 92 new members for 1989-1990 are encouraged to attend."

Breckbill urged all members to write letters to Senators Noah Wenger and Earl Baker in support of the wetlands bill, HB 1326. The confiscation of property without reason and without compensation must be curbed, all of the directors agreed.

"We now have 648 members, including 92 new members," said Charles Woolaston, Toughkenamon, co-chairman of the membership campaign. "This now permits us to compete for the annual statewide star awards given each year".

"The regional Ladies Day Out Program will be held May 17 in Lehigh County," said Linda Hicks, West Chester, chairperson of the women's committee. "All wives, daughters, and mothers of Farmers' Association members are urged to plan now for the event." Hicks displayed the plaque that is presented to all farms that participated in the annual farm-city day program. This year's program will be held in November.

"Petitions for the 'Cash'em, Don't Trash'em' returnable beverage container referendum will be included in the March newsletter," said Robert Kirk, Honeybrook. He encouraged all members to secure at least 10 signers.

The signed petitions should be returned to Cash'em, P.O. Box 6, Exton, PA 19341. Anyone not a member of the Farmers' Association who would like to participate in the drive for a returnable beverage bottle bill should write to the Exton address for petition blanks.

Estate planning, farm employee benefits, taxes and investment, and how to develop and read financial statements are four topics that directors agreed would be helpful to members. The programs will be presented to members during the year as presenters become available.

Cutter Cuts 23-Foot Swath

GIBSON CITY, Ill. — M & W Gear's Prairie Clipper PC2330 flex wing rotary cutter uses a triple spindle design with updraft blades and oval blade protectors. This heavy duty, high clearance cutter cuts a 23-foot swath and folds to a 12-foot width for transport. An automatic parallel leveling system allows the cutter to be raised hydraulically. Wings can cut at angles from 22 degrees down to 90 degrees up and each wing can be independently raised hydraulically. Standard features include 1,000 rpm PTO drive, replaceable side skids, clutches on all power shafts, hydraulic cylinders, and hoses. Safety chain guards are available. For more information, contact M & W Gear Co., Route 47 South, Gibson City, IL 60936.

Lucas Receives Excellence Recognition Award

MENTOR, Ohio — Dalton C. Lucas, head operator at the Houston, Texas, plant of Fermenta ASC Corporation, was the recent recipient of an "Excellence Recognition Award."

The Excellence Recognition Award Program was established to recognize unusually significant "one-time" accomplishments that positively impact the corporation. Recipients of this award are determined by the president, following recommendations of the individual's supervisor and consultation with the President's staff.

Lucas's award was based on his identifying an opportunity for effecting cost savings and improving efficiencies in his unit and in implementing these changes.

Your Lawn Supplies Lots Of Oxygen

SAM STEEL
Chester Co. Extension Agent

How many times have you heard the old adage, "You learn something new everyday?"

That certainly is appropriate for me today since I just became more aware of the importance of a good lawn to my health. I'm not talking about how my mind has been soothed by having a lush carpet of green around my house, rather I'm talking big-time turfgrass assistance with the infamous "greenhouse effect" and how a small lawn can provide enough oxygen for the whole family.

It should be easy for an extension agent to get this type of information since so many dedicated Penn State researchers are constantly looking into environmental issues and forwarding their findings to our offices for distribution to you.

But today's news was even better than most, and what timing. spring has sprung and homeowners and gardeners are making plans for that new growing season... gardens to be plowed, new trees and shrubs for the landscape, annual flowers for around the house, and a host of other time-honored activities.

I have great news about the human and environmental benefits of healthy lawns from professor Tom Watschke. In a recently prepared "white paper" to the U.S. Congress, Dr. Watschke presented data on how a lawn of just 625 square feet can provide enough oxygen for one person for an entire day.

When you consider that most home lawns are at least 5000-6000 square feet, then you lawn is most likely providing oxygen to a lot of people in your neighborhood! And, on an average residential street of eight homes, the front lawns alone have the cooling effect of 70 tons of air conditioning.

If you are concerned about gaseous pollutants such as vehicular carbon dioxide, your lawn is constantly absorbing it from the atmosphere.

So, just how do you go about developing a luxurious lawn and begin taking advantage of these benefits? The first and most dependable step would be a soil test. Penn State offers soil testing kits ($5.00) to homeowners through the extension office in your county. This will ensure that any fertilizers or lime which you add are for improving soil conditions and not adding to an already bad situation. And, if you are not sure, please do not add lime to your lawn. Most tests show that soil pH levels are high enough and more lime will just raise the pH too high!

Once soil testing has established a base line of information, you may be in the market for some good quality grass seed to thicken up some sparsely growing turf areas. Research efforts have contributed greatly to improved cultivars of bluegrass and ryegrass and you will want to ask your retail outlet for those disease- and traffic-resistant blends.

Prepare your seedbed very carefully by roughing up the soil surface to allow the new seed to make adequate contact with the soil particles. Keep the seedbed moist, not flooded, and then be patient. Perennial ryegrass takes 7-10 days to germinate, while bluegrass takes 20-21 days. Newly established lawns should be mowed until the grass seedlings have developed an adequate roots system, normally about two weeks or so.

If you have further questions, call your extension office today and get the facts on turfgrass benefits and care.

Cattlemen's Association Member Drive Begins

ADDISON, N.Y. — Harold L. Maynard, president of the New York Beef Cattlemen's Assocation, announced that the governing council had voted to implement a concentrated drive for new members, commencing in April with a finish date of July.

County directors will spearhead the drive, guided by these regional chairpersons and vice chairmen: Nancy Zloch, Walden and Malcolm Wilber, Delanson, eastern division; Helen Patton, Bainbridge and Wayne Heyden, Morrisville, central region; Henry Bennett, Hammondsport and Dan Teed, Watkins Glen, in the southern tier region; Wendell Thrush of Perrysburg and James Lee of Frewsburg, southwestern region; Justin Martin, Canandaigua and Donald Gray of Springwater, western region; and Ed Gibson, Evans Mills and David Pellett of Canton, northern region.

There will be incentive awards for those bringing in the first, second, and third highest numbers of new members.

For further information, contact Harold Maynard, (607) 527-3358.

Supaflu Fights Hot Chimney Fires Before They Begin.

Creosote build-up, cracked chimney tiles, decaying mortar and hot trapped gasses. This is the way dangerous and damaging chimney fires start. A trained Supaflu chimney professional can spot these hazards in a hurry and take care of them almost as fast. A fast and inexpensive cast-in-place Supaflu installation makes your chimney better than new, safer than new. A smooth, strong Supaflu lined chimney fights creosote build-up and eliminates hot trapped gases, dramatically reducing chimney fire dangers.

Spreader Catalogs Available

WEST BEND, Wis. — The Gehl Company announces the availability of 4-color product literature on their new line of truck-mounted Scavenger® II sludge and organic waste spreaders.

Four-color product literature on Gehl's new line of truck-mounted Scavenger® II sludge and organic waste spreaders is available. Designed for high-volume applications, the Scavenger II transports and spreads all types of organic waste, from liquids to semi-solids.

Designed for high-volume applications, the Scavenger II will transport and spread all types of organic waste from liquids to semi-solids.

Available with capacities up to 3,775 and 2,989 gallons, these units feature a patented square-tube auger which creates a unique "pulse action" to thoroughly break up and blend material and provide uniform delivery to the discharge expeller.

The hydraulic gate high-rpm solid-welded expeller reel combination delivers complete discharge rate control.

An optional, hydraulically-controlled hinged lid reduces the chance of liquid spillage while increasing spreader capacity.

Trailer-type models are also available in five sizes, ranging from 912 to 3,775 gallon capacities.

For more information, literature, or the name of your nearest Gehl dealer, contact Gehl Company, 143 West Street, West Bend, WI 53095, (414) 334-9461.

Soybean Variety Tops Pennsylvania Trials

LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Hoffman 359 was the leading soybean variety in Lancaster County trials conducted by the Pennsylvania State University.

Out of 42 varieties, Hoffman 359 produced a yield of 69 bushels per acre.

Widely adapted, this late Group III variety has consistently ranked at the top of Hoffman, University of Maryland, and University of Delaware trials.

Hoffman 359 performs equally well as a full-season or double crop variety. It performs well under the heat and drought stress of research involving animals, federal agriculture agencies and federal environmental agencies, veterinary medicine, law, agriculture news, and agricultural education.

Future Trends In Agricu

Not all scheduled speakers were able to attend. However, several people who represented a similar-interest activity as the scheduled speaker were called upon to talk.

Brubaker kicked off the morning session, explaining the need for such types of information discussions.

He said the reason is many-fold, but starts with the basic tenant that well-informed people will be better decision makers and perhaps less inclined to act without first considering another opinion or interpretation of fact.

"We all have to consider . . . different dimensions to these issues. Too often these groups, including us (animal productionists), tend to look in one dimension," he said.

"I think it's a good basic start (sitting down together) that should have been done years ago," Brubaker said.

"I think we need to talk. Animal welfare could become another issue, like abortion" that polarizes groups into unrelenting opinion holders.

"We are not going to bridge all philosophies, but I think we can find some common ground," Brubaker said.

Along that line, speaker John Hoyt, president of the Humane Society of the United States, an animal welfare group, told the group that "I am pleased to have been invited to make a contribution to this important and, perhaps, groundbreaking symposium . . . I am hopeful it can be just that; a contribution. And that those who might prefer to fry me, as it were, will on this occasion practice a little CPR instead — compassion, patience and restraint."

Hoyt said "we are hopeful this is but the beginning of a continuing opportunity to explore both our differences and our common concerns.

"I am sure I will be roundly critized by many within the animal activist community for saying this, but I am prepared to believe that no one here wishes to cause, perpetuate or condone animal suffering. Whether farmer or consumer, producer or retailer, industry user or animal protector, I accept the proposition that we are all interested in reducing and eliminating animal suffering.

"We may not all agree on how, under what circumstances, and within what time frame animal suffering must be mitigated, but I am hopeful it is an objective we can pursue in common as well as through our individual initiatives and responses," Hoyt said.

Common acknowledgement through all talks was that animal welfare issues are not necessarily two-dimensional.

In his talk, Hoyt said that animal agriculturalists should not label those who seek animal protectionists "as sentimentalists, Bambi-lovers and eco-freaks . . . "

To do so, Hoyt argued, is to "miss the point that there are very legitimate and appropriate concerns regarding the rearing, transporting and slaughtering of the five billion animals raised annually in this country for food.

"By the same token, for animal advocates to paint a picture of farmers and others in the food industry as cruel, heartless and profit-hungry villains is just as fruitless and nonproductive," Hoyt said.

He said his organization is mostly concerned about the well-being of animals, but is also "fully prepared to commit itself to support those actions and policies which seek to achieve an environmentally sustainable economy, as well as those which seek to support and sustain the family farmers whose livelihood is being both threatened and jeopardized, so long as those actions and policies are also sensitive and responsive to the needs of animals."

Although clarifying that he was not "either prophet or seer," Hoyt said six future trends of agriculture seem to indicate consumer awareness, instead of apathy:

• Consumers are becoming increasingly sophisticated about what they eat and drink, and why.

Hoyt said he predicts that consumers will use a three-point checklist in deciding which foods to buy. He said consumers will want to have their foods free of chemical residues, humanely raised, and "environmentally friendly."

• Pressure from animal activists will increase, demanding geater protection from animals.

Hoyt said the HSUS is "opposed to violence, terrorism, intimidation, and destruction of property. We regard such tactics, however, well-intented their purpose, to be both inappropriate and counter-productive. We do . . . support aggresive action against animal abusers and, as an example, support the campaign currently being waged against Frank Perdue by the Coalition for Nonviolent Food.

Lying on a table outside the symposium meeting room were flyers claiming that Perdue's operations are such that a chicken's life " . . . begins with painful dismemberment and ends with electrocution, with a lifetime of stress crowded in between."

• Biotechnology will increase, creating new problems for animals and new concerns for farmers.

"The Humane Society of the United States does not oppose biotechnology per se, but we are very much opposed to the engineering of animals in such a way as to cause new physical and psychological problems," Hoyt said.

We also vigorously support a moratorium on the patenting of any genetically altered animal until sufficient study . . . has been given to the potential consequences of the genetic engineering . . . both in terms of the animal's health and well being, as well as the potential consequences . . . on the farmer, the consumer, and where applicable, the environment."

• Farmers, especially those referred to as family farmers, will become increasingly receptive to the concerns of animal protectionists and will begin to form alliances with those whose objectives and goals they regard to be reasonable and beneficial.

In supporting this prediction, Hoyt quoted from a letter from a farmer that Hoyt said he believed was published in the Farm Journal last year. According to Hoyt, this particular farmer is more distrustful of those who warn against animal activists, than animal activist themselves.

Hoyt quoted the farmer as having written, "Which is more a threat to your independent business as a family livestock farmer; animal rights or animal megafactories?"

• Animal agriculture will become increasingly diverse and, thereby, more responsive to animal welfare and environmental concerns.

Hoyt then read, at some length, an editorial by Steven Bjerklie, editor of Meat and Poultry. In the editorial, Bjerklie calls on readers to not give in to some efforts by some marketers to not publicize that meat comes from animal muscle tissue, but to rather, package the product in such a way that the consumer continues to buy it for the pleasure of eating without knowing from where it comes.

Bjerklie also calls on readers to keep the connection between food and food animals and thereby continue the treatment of respect for the animal.

Futher support is evidenced, according to Hoyt through such things as a letter from the former editor of Farm Journal, Gene Logston, who, Hoyt said, wrote that raising livestock on a small farm or without much overhead is not necessarily more expensive.

• Consumers will become increasingly empathetic with the small family farmer and will respond positively to purchasing tnose products humanely and sustainably raised.

Hoyt said his group is now urging others to purchase only foods that have been the result of humane, organic and sustainable practices; to buy locally from farmers markets and in season and to attempt to get such types of food served in schools and cafeterias and carried in supermarkets and restaurants.

Steven Kopperud, vice president in charge of legislation for the American Feed Industry Association, and executive director of the Animal Industry Foundation, both based in Washington, D.C., discussed current production methods for livestock and poultry.

Kopperud is also coordinator for the Farm Animal Welfare Coalition in the capitol area; a group he describes in a resume as meeting "quarterly to monitor and strategize on the animal rights movement."

Also speaking during the morning session was David Fraser, of the Animal Research Center, Agriculture Canada, who specialized in pig behavior and talked about some of the observations he's been able to make.

According to Fraser, many farm animals that do perform aberrant behavior apparently do so because they are denied opportunities to express innate behavior tendencies.

He said that pigs in confined areas that chew other pigs' tails apparently do so, at first, because they get food without having to use their natural searching behavior and express the searching behavior on other pigs.

Eventually, he said, after the tail is chewed on enough times, and blood is drawn, the blood acts as an additional attractant and results in more frequent attacks, because the blood represents an acceptable food for pigs.

Allowing hogs to free-range prevents the tail-biting behavior, but introduces strong potential for parasites and disease to the animals, and a less-overall healthier animal.

LEADERSHIP AT WORK®

...re Are Varied, Complex

Kathleen Waggoner, of the Iowa State University, was to be moderator along with Brubaker. But because time was available, she spoke about current research at the school and attempts made to bring together representatives from various disciplines and interests in and out of the college in order to develop a policy on animal treatment that would be acceptable to the entire community.

However, Waggoner spoke on the condition that all recording devices be turned off.

Floyd Byers PhD., a professor in the animal science department for Texas A&M University's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, talked about research with nutrition.

Byers is also on the nutrition faculty and the molecular and cellular biology faculty at the college and claims expertise in research on developing and integrating nutritional and growth regulation technology in systems of animal production to produce safe, consumer-oriented meat products.

He is also involved with assessing aspects of technology and international trade and developing meat safety programs.

During the break, several people with long-term involvement in agriculture criticized some of the "facts" offered by Hoyt, though did not attack Hoyt's main message that issues and concerns of animal welfare must be reviewed by more than one interested segment of society.

Of special concern were descriptions, passed on by Hoyt, that came from an editorial in the Washington Post that portrays high-producing cows and BST-treated cows as being "one of the most overworked and exploited animals in the nation . . . shot through with so many drugs that milk ought to be sold as a prescription-only product."

The editorial was written by Coleman McCarthy, according to Hoyt. Futher exerpt from the article claimed that "Some drugs are antibiotics to prevent disease, others are tranquilizers to ease dairy-factory tensions. Some are booster-shot hormones that double or triple milk production, creating super cows that . . . have udders of such size and low-slung weight that walking requires exhaustive effort."

Hoyt said that whether or not anyone agrees with McCarthy's description of dairy production and bovine treatment, " . . . it is the kind of information, or if you prefer, disinformation, that is playing a significant role in influencing how consumers choose their foods."

Many of the private discussions, between agricultural producers and even among groups not typically considered allies, were considered "off-the-record," but were obvious attempts at mutual understanding and fact-finding.

In the afternoon, discussion turned to environmental effects of agriculture as practiced in the United States, the perceptions of harm and benefit and what directions might be considered.

Gail Black, of the HSUS, said "Steven Kopperud, let us know that agriculture is the biggest industry in the United States, that it is an $800 billion industry," she said.

"But there is mounting evidence that agriculture does have a damaging effect on the environment," Black said.

She said that from an environmental standpoint, maintaining a large portion of land in some form of man-controlled ecosystem has and will continue to prohibit wild and native species of plants and animals to exist.

Basically, the elimination of habitat through agriculture does eliminate and threaten populations of animals and plants.

Black said that political powers in Third World countries are currently stabilizing their economies with growths in agriculture. About 40 percent of the growth there is attributed to expanding agriculture, she said.

With the elimination of more and more habitat, estimates are that more than 30 million species will become extinct during the next decade, Black said.

"Agriculture is vital to our economy and whole way of life, however, our increase in efficiency has some (negative results)," Black said.

Richard Reynolds, national program director for extension services spoke next. "Rather than provide another position on what has just been said, I'd like to offer a number of questions that must be considered," he said.

Reynolds quickly went through a long list of aspects of agriculture that he said must be considered in making policy decisions or in taking action.

He said many aspects must be considered, such as what the expected land requirements might be, the labor, food costs, expansion needs, practical applications, the effects of foreign competition in the agricultural products market . . .

He also talked about Low Input Sustainable Agriculture (LISA) and raised welfare questions, such as, who is going to define what is humane. Also Reynolds said the questions of allowable chemicals in agriculture, education of future producers, predator control, overgrazing, nutrient management, information accessability, political considerations and roles in determining the future of agriculture, all must be considered in making policies.

Frederick Kirschenmann, manager of Kirschenmann Family Farms, and chairman of the certification committee of Farm Verified Organic said he believes the future of agriculture must lie within the realm of LISA and holistic farming.

Claiming an extensive education in religion and philosophy, and prior work as dean at Curry College in Massachusetts, Kirschenmann said he has become involved heavily in organic and one-farm recycling systems that encourage multi-animal, interactive and interdependant farming.

The benefits of such a system, he said are better animal welfare, lower overhead and production costs, minimal impact on the environment and a more stable production system that, because of multi-plant and animals, can offer a harvest most every year.

Krischenmann, from North Dakota, said he was also against long-distance shipping of feeds and nutrients in order to supplement modern farming systems. He said such agricultural systems inordinately creat deficits of materials in some areas and excesses in others.

Several agricultural productionists, questioned the economic, educational and practical applications of LISA and at whether Krischenmann was actually advocating a return to the past. The questions were largely unanswered, because, according to Kirschenmann, each operation has to be created for a long-term return and can not be answered.

Lancaster County became an issue later, when Cindy Dunn, with the Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay, reported that while work on slowing down non-point source pollution of phosphorus and nitrogen is proceeding, it isn't moving as fast as everyone would like.

According to Dunn, a major problem is the animal-dense areas in counties like Lancaster and the manure from the livestock.

Dunn reported to the symposium attendees that although their is excessive amounts of manure in Lancaster, there are farmers in south western Pennsylvania that want the manure, but hauling costs are prohibitive.

Other impacts to the Bay and Susquehanna River come from lawn care chemicals and fertilizers, she said.

Some suggested that Lancaster Farmers should use LISA to eliminate excessive manure production. However others said that the reason manure production was intense is because of a lack of land, economic needs and the lack of practical and financially feasible solutions.

Organizers said they hoped to conduct similar symposiums in the future.

Soybean Growers Should Test Seed

ANNAPOLIS, Md.— The Maryland Department of Agriculture urges any Maryland soybean grower who saved seed from last fall's harvest for planting this spring to have the seed tested for germination.

"We have experienced an unusually high number of low germinating seed lots among those submitted to the state seed laboratory for testing," said Malcolm L. Sarna, chief of the turf and seed section.

"The principal cause is a seed-borne fungus, whose damaging effects were increased by last year's unfavorable harvesting conditions," Sarna said.

Seed laboratories in neighboring states have reported similar soybean seed problems. In some cases, treatment with an effective fungicide may greatly improve the germination results.

The cost of germination tests range from $4. A complete purity, noxious examination, and germination test is $10. A germination test after laboratory treatment with a fungicide is $6.

Anyone who wants soybean seed tested should submit a two-pound sample, showing the name, address, seed variety, and the tests requested, to the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Turf and Seed Section, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401, (301) 841-5960.

FFA Officers Tour Research Division

PRINCETON, N.J. — Two National FFA officers and two New Jersey State FFA officers recently visited American Cyanamid's agricultural research division.

They met with Dr. James Gramlich, director of the center, to discuss the future of agriculture and agricultural research. It is part of a tour of business and industry through New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Kansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio, Washington, Oregon, and Idaho.

"The insights and guidance which today's agricultural leaders can share with our students is invaluable," says Dr. Larry Case, national FFA advisor and senior program specialist for agriculture, agribusiness, and natural resources occupations, U.S. Department of Education. "This activity provides the officers with a golden opportunity to interact with today's top corporate leaders and learn firsthand what is happening in agribusiness."

FFA members on the tour included Brad Lewis, national FFA vice president from Elkmont, Alabama; William Henricksen, national FFA vice president from DeWitt, Iowa; John Pool, state vice president, southern region, New Jersey FFA, from Mickleton, New Jersey; and Joel Rudderow, vice president, northeast region, New Jersey FFA, from Mt. Laurel, New Jersey.

The U.S. tour follows the national officer team's return from a 10-day visit to Japan, which provided the officers with a better understanding of international trade relations and its importance to American agriculture. In speaking with the FFA members, Dr. Gramlich stressed that Cyanamid's efforts in agricultural research extend into all corners of the world and contribute significantly toward global food production.

"I couldn't think of a more exciting time to prepare for a career in agriculture," said Gramlich, citing work being done with biotechnology and other revolutionary discoveries made in agricultural research in recent years.

The four FFA officers also visited Cyanamid's world headquarters in Wayne, New Jersey. There, they met with Bill Murray, president of the company's agricultural division; Dr. Mark Atwood, vice president of the agricultural division; W.F.R. (Bill) Griffith, vice president and general manager, Crop Protection Chemicals; Noel Laing, D.V.M., technical director of animal nutrition and health; Gary Carlson, director of marketing, crop protection chemicals; Howard Minigh, general manager, vegetation and pest control ventures; Monty Summa, national field sales manager, crop protection chemicals; and Jim Hirsch, director of personnel, agriculture division.

Swine Care Handbook Guides Pork Producers

DES MOINES, IOWA — Delegates at the recent annual meeting of the National Pork Producers Council approved a new swine care handbook designed to provide pork producers with information for education and self-regulation regarding animal care.

The handbook, prepared under the supervision of a producer-composed Animal Welfare Task Force, deals primarily with environmentally controlled hog production facilities.

The handbook, which is expected to be available for extensive distribution in June, does not propose any new technologies. It outlines and summarizes existing good husbandry and facility design recommendations.

Pork producers and other segments of the pork industry are expected to continue to develop better production methods as the result of new research and practical experience. The handbook will be updated periodically.

"The handbook acknowledges that the skill and competence of the individual producer is the most important factor in providing proper care of livestock," said Chuck Real, a pork producer from Texas who serves as chairman of NPPC's Animal Welfare Task Force. "Pork producers have put over $200,000 into animal care research programs in the past couple of years and we'll spend another $47,000 on research projects in this area during the coming year.

We acknowledge we don't have all the answers yet about practical animal needs. The only way we know to get those answers is through knowledge, and that comes from additional research. We're willing to spend some of our checkoff money to do that."

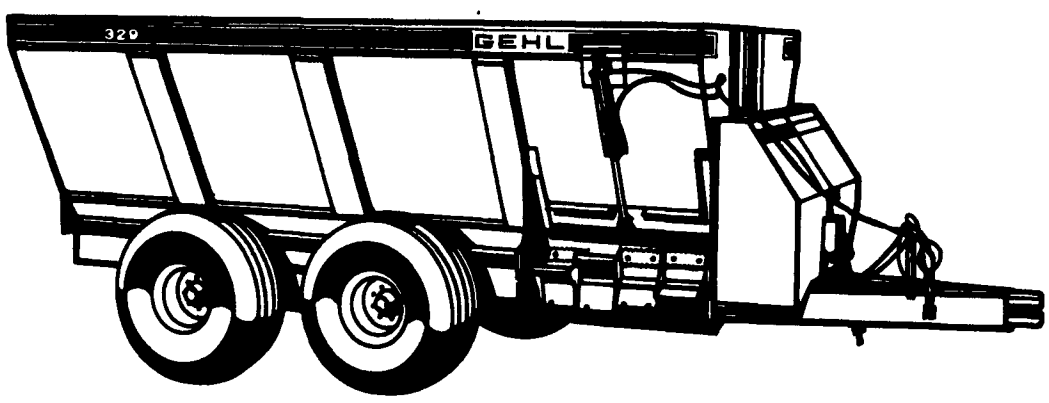
GEHL



The one spreader for the two spreader farm

Spread liquids, semi-solids, solids, pen-packed, even frozen manure. A Gehl Scavenger® II manure spreader does the work of two spreaders for the price of one. It's built for efficiency, with a heavy-duty square-tube auger that works harder than conventional round augers. The auger powers up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. Variflo front, right-hand discharge gives you complete application control.

Improve Poultry Management

Consider Alternatives In Future

HERBERT C. JORDAN
Associate Professor of Poultry Science
Pennsylvania State University

Poultry producers should keep in mind the following "owner's goals" for the 1990s:

• Avoid fastest growth or fattening rate. Strive for carcass composition, excellent part yield, quality and healthiest, most marketable growth rate. Caveat: Fastest growth rate usually includes extreme or excess fat, waste tissue, and water unless you select breeders for trim offspring that still excel in weight gain.

• Forget heaviest live weight; remember most marketable live or dressed pounds at a profitable age. Interview 100 poultry buyers in a supermarket and discover what constitutes useful or most salable or purchasable weight or quality.

• Demphasize earliest market age; remember most productive market age. The young bird, with few exceptions, has less natural flavor, a higher bone to meat ratio, higher water content, and more waste in processing, which the consumer must pay for and few people like.

• Do not use highest tonnage of live meat birds per pen; remember highest repeatable (net) income per pen. Caveat: Most tonnage of live weight per pen may mean more condemnation, downgrades, sick birds, cannibalism, mortality, and less uniformity and quality for repeat sales. Shoot for highest tonnage Grade A marketable meat per pen. This usually means we must give birds more space or room, even if it is vertical space or a platform to roost on.

• Avoid highest number of birds started per pen; remember the highest number of marketable Grade A birds per pen sold, paid for and re-ordered at an agreeable price. Remember, any young bird before 5 weeks of age may need double or quadruple the floor space per pound of live weight bird than an adult needs. Most people say turkeys use floor space more effectively than other species.

• Stop using highest acceptable mortality per pen; remember, a zero to low percent mortality which happens at the right time is less expensive and shows manager most about future bird health or carcass quality. "Never" allow many older, heavier birds to die, for it is quite costly and they are next to impossible to dispose of inexpensively and safely. Older meat birds which die heavier than flock average cost you big money.

• Refuse excessive use of drugs, chemobiotics, and vaccines; remember, a hospital pen of sick birds treated naturally may tell you exactly what disease to treat, prevent, plan for, or avoid. Give a sick bird time in a hopsital pen to get well or die of a disease you can identify and manage. Many birds' symptoms today are confusing and show more than one disorder when you first see them, so give the manager time to discover the treatable disease.

• Beware of lowest labor cost; remember, hired person cost that is paid for by improved bird performance and marketability of all final products. A competent technical person is a high value item in the poultry industry; train them, educate them, chat with them, and keep them healthy, happy and working safely.

• Do not use lowest housing cost; remember, environmental cost paid for by a higher number of marketable birds at higher net income is due to high consumer acceptance. Fresh air with low air pollution is necessary for birds, along with adequate living space and a comfortable environment. Animal welfare people ask the question, "Do animals feel pain and do they suffer?" We can do our part by responding to animal behavior.

• Beware of high interest rates. Borrow enough money at an acceptable rate of interest over a reasonable time to do the job better for consumer acceptance and net cash flow, or borrow none at all. A responsible banker who cares and insists on disciplined borrowers is a real asset to the industry.

• Avoid high energy costs in best use of electricity, fuel, insulation, and adequate ventilation; remember to plan a return for each dollar invested in these factors. Energy wasted pollutes our environment. Money spent on energy which is not used widely is a total waste!

• Use none or few weed or bug killers; remember to mow weeds before they are seeding to convert them to mulch. Our soil needs organic matter.

• "Forget the high cost of living and give up the cost of high-living." (A quote from egg producer Carl Walters in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, 1966.)

• Do not be concerned about the high cost of equipment; remember the cost of equipment per unit marketable output of equipment. Keep high value, safe equipment busy. If processing equipment is used daily, measure its output of high quality product.

• Do not worry about high cost of an animal like a replacement pullet, meat chick, parent stock, or fertile egg; remember animal unit cost per unit of net income from a useful breed, strain, or variety. Select the animal carefully.

• Be thankful for high feed price; remember feed cost per unit of marketable dozen eggs, pound of bird, ton of marketable manure, or byproduct sold. Caveat: Do not always blame the feed — it is your greatest effective value so allow your feed man time to help you. Other than selecting a better bird or flock supervisor, selecting a better feed quality is more important.

• Analyze high processing cost; install more effective processing methods, procedures, and time savers that allow consumer acceptance and re-purchase at high net income. Use processing equipment and product that does not pollute the feed, food, soil, air or water. Flies, odor, crop toxicity, or aesthetic pollution are the most frequent complaints from neighbors.

• Study high marketing cost; remember net income from long-term logistical support of marketing by an effective method. Study your marketing system one hour each day and improve it. Take our correspondence courses on turkeys, poultry, or rabbits. (Correspondence courses may be purchased form The Pennsylvania State University, Box 3207, 128 Mitchell Building, University Park, PA. 16802; CC 106, Production of Market Turkeys, $14.95; CC 92, Poultry Keeping, $17.00; and CC 109, Rabbit Production, $11.75. Be sure to specify the course title and number on your request. Checks should be made payable to The Pennsylvania State University.)

2. APPLICATION - To insure better adherence to this super prepared surface, use the best fine bristle brush in four directions to evenly distribute the recommended mil thickness of seal coat coverage
3. SPECIALIZATION - Every barn is different but generally it's best to use a high quality mildew resistant product, specially formulated to meet the requirements of this partially weathered wood that was and will be weather stressed.
4. WARNING - The modified oil latex is less effective as a wood preserver and actually increases nail & metal deterioration Deal with home people. At their rates, I could double mine.

BRUNING PAINT

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Booklets Look At Home-Grown Feeds

DEKALB, Ill.— Two informative booklets on the advantages of using home-grown feeds are available from A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., headquartered here.

Titled "Medium Moisture Forage" and "High-Moisture Grain," the full-color brochures describe how livestock and dairy farmers can benefit from using Harvestore® brand storage structures to process their crops.

The forage brochure discusses medium-moisture haylage and its important advantages over conventional silage and dry hay. It also outlines the important management practices required to produce top-quality haylage from a variety of forage crops, and how these feeds can be used in livestock rations.

The high-moisture grain brochure provides similar information concerning the use of natural moisture corn, barley, and grain sorghum. The booklet includes an examination of the relative costs of delayed harvest, artificial drying, and high-moisture storage and provides a simple worksheet that can be used to calculate potential economic benefits.

The brochures are available from your local authorized, independent Harvestore system dealer, Penn Jersey Products, Inc., New Holland, or by writing to Agricultural Marketing Department, A. O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc., 345 Harvestore Drive, DeKalb, IL 60115.

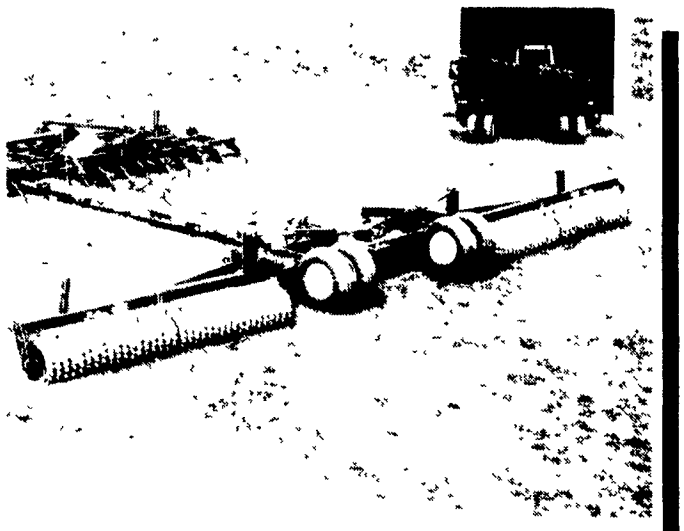
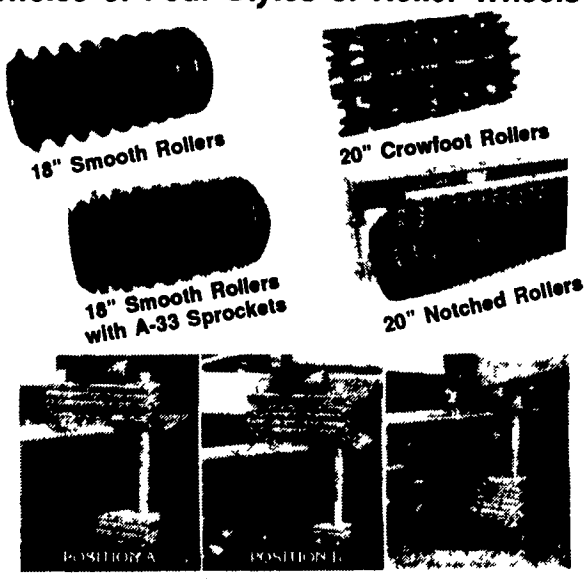
NEW X-FOLD PULVERIZERS



The pulverizer has been a basic tool for nearly 100 years and Brillion has been building them since 1895. Look at these features:
- Automatic Transport Lock
- Telescoping Drawbar
- Hitch Adjustment
- Cost Efficient-Energy Savings
- Floating Wings
- Narrow Transport Width

Choice of Four Styles of Roller Wheels



Hitch Adjustment

Another outstanding feature of BRILLION's X-Fold Pulverizers is the Hitch Adjustment. The pulverizer drawbar can pivot vertically in field position. Three thicknesses of shims are provided on the braces on each side of the drawbar (⅛ ", ¼ " & ½ "). These shims are used to limit soil pushing in front of the rollers.

Vets Prepare Herds For Wind, Wetness

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. — The combination of winter winds, freezing temperatures and wetness can be devastating to a cattle herd, but veterinary herd health programs initiated before the onslaught of severe winter weather can prevent great loss to cattle producers, according to the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA).

"The key to helping cattle endure weather stress is prevention," said Nolan Hartwig, D.V.M., extension veterinarian, Iowa State University in Ames, Iowa. "Prevention begins with complete herd health programs, including condition scoring cattle in the fall, so the more susceptible animals can be prepared before winter takes its toll."

To condition score cattle, the veterinarian rates each animal's body condition on a scale of 1 to 9 — one being too thin and nine fat. Cows scoring four or lower should be separated from the rest of the herd, and their diets supplemented with energy to improve body condition. Soybean meal or an equivalent protein supplement should be added to rations as needed.

As the temperature drops, cattle are forced to use more energy just to maintain their body temperature. The more energy used for warmth, the less energy available for growth. Animals may have to draw on fat reserves to provide enough energy to keep warm in sub-zero temperatures.

"The key message is that adequate nutrition is an essential component of herd health," said Kurt Wohlgemuth, D.V.M., Fargo, North Dakota. "Energy deficiency tends to be the most common dietary problem in the winter and that can be prevented by providing quality hay and grain."

Cow nutrition becomes doubly important in winter because most cows are in their last trimester of pregnancy during the most stressful winter months. According to Wohlgemuth, once energy requirements are met, protein, mineral (specifically calcium and phosphorus) and vitamin (particularly vitamin A and E) requirements have to be satisfied.

Pregnant cows that receive preventive medical care to cope with weather stress produce more healthy calves. Nutrition is one critical factor, and vaccination against viral and bacterial diseases is another.

"There are different degrees of weather stress, and animals suffer most when cold is combined with wind and wet cnditions," Hartwig said. "The wind chill index is a very important factor in weather stress."

Wind velocity has a drastic effect on temperatures. Even though the thermometer reads 20 degrees, animals standing outside in a 35 mile per hour wind are subject to actual weather conditions comparable to 20 degrees below zero.

Similarly, snow is not necessarily stressful to cattle, but snow combined with strong winds can be. In blizzard conditions, the wind pounds snow into the animal's hair and nullifies the natural insulation effect of hair.

Wind breaking structures or barns will protect the herd from the adverse effects of wind.

"During severe inclement weather, dairy cattle should be kept indoors, with good ventilation where the temperature is always kept above freezing," said Leland C. Allenstein, D.V.M., Whitewater, Wisconsin.

Barns must be well-ventilated to limit passing of diseases. "Pneumonia becomes more common in winter," said Robert H. Keith, D.V.M., Monroe, Wisconsin. "We need to stress adequate ventilation to prevent the buildup of humidity in barns that results from the drastic temperature fluctuations that occur in winter."

Vaccinating herds in the fall will also help prevent respiratory infections.

Dr. Robert E. Bohlender, D.V.M., North Platte, Nebraska, recommends using portable shelters for beef cattle. "These shelters can be moved to prevent bacterial and viral buildup. It's also best to keep the shelters small so you don't have a large number of animals crowding together."

Parasite control is a year-round battle for producers. During cold weather, eggs may remain dormant, but several consecutive warm days will cause lice to hatch. Delousing in the fall before winter confinement will limit parasite problems. Milking cows should also be clipped, especially around the udders, back, and neck, where lice are more likely to flourish in the cow's long hair.

Internal parasites suppress the animal's immune system, which may cause pregnant cows to deliver severely weakened or stillborn calves. Deworming cattle in the fall can be critical to calves' survival. After deworming, cattle should be moved to a different pasture because the original pasture will still contain larvae.

Cattle that remain outside during cold weather must also have sufficient bedding. "You have got to provide enough bedding for the animals to lay on to keep them off the frozen ground," said Bohlender. Bulls commonly suffer scrotal freezing, which can cause inability to breed. Cows may suffer teat freezing, and according to Wohlgemuth, teat freezing can occur after only a short time out in the cold, although it may not become apparent until two or three weeks later.

Ears, tails, and feet also freeze in sub-zero weather. Ears and tails may have to be amputated due to freezing, but severely frozen feet may necessitate that an animal be destroyed.

The water supply becomes inadequate once it is frozen, and lack of available water can lead to Urolithiasis, a condition most common in feedlot cattle. Nicknamed "water belly" by cowboys, this condition develops when salts are deposited in the animal's urinary tract and block urination. During winter months, producers can prevent this by making sure that plenty of water, free of ice, is available for cattle.

Effects of weather stress on cattle can be minimized by following a complete veterinary herd health program that follows these procedures:

- Monitor and improve body condition of cattle in the fall, before severe weather hits.
- Implement vaccination programs to prevent viral and bacterial diseases.
- Deworm in the fall and move cattle to a different pasture.
- Supplement rations with grain during sub-zero weather to increase energy available for maintaining body warmth.
- Supplement protein, minerals and vitamins in feed of pregnant cows during last trimester of pregnancy to improve condition of newborn calves.
- Provide sufficient wind breaks or well-ventilated barns to shelter cattle from adverse effects of wind without overcrowding.
- Provide adequate straw for bedding to keep cattle off frozen ground.
- Monitor water supply to insure cattle have access to water and not just ice.

LZK Pandora's Image I Is Grand Champ

PLATTE CITY, Mo. — One hundred thousand dollars in premiums enticed Chianina breeders to Ft. Worth, TX, to compete in one of the premier cattle events held in this country. The second annual Italian Fullblood Chianina Classic and fourth Chiangus Classic were held during the Southwest Exposition and Livestock Show, January 22-23.

Grand champion Italian Fullblood female was LZK Pandora's Image I, owned by Lake View Farm, East Berlin, Pennsylvania and Rocking J Ranch, Cody, NE. Owners received $4,800 in premium money and one-half interest and one-half possession in this female sold for $7,500. She was sired by Faletto's Image I.

A three-judge scoring system was used to place the 149 Chiangus and 70 Italian Fullbloods entered. Kraig Schilder, Malcolm, IA; Tyrone Hullinger, Harris, MO; and Ric Hoyt, Oakdale, CA, judged the two-day show.

To be eligible to show in their respective Classic, animals must be nominated by one of the 25 Chiangus or 20 Italian Fullblood Classic sponsors. It is also necessary for cattle to meet Chiangus or Fullblood registration requirements.

Registered Chiangus (CA) are crosses between Chianina and Angus which result in black, polled animals that are a minimum one-quarter and a maximum three-quarter of either breed. A Chiangus cross (CAX) is any animal that meets Chiangus requirements but also has one or more other breeds, in addition to Chianina and Angus, in its pedigree. CA's and CAX's are eligible to show in the Chiangus Classic. Italian Fullbood Chianina (1) are 100 percent Chianina.

Grand champion Italian Fullblood bull was exhibited by Deiter Bros., Faulkton, SD and Weber's Chianina Ranch, Highmore, SD. Rocking Arrow Jack I, the division IV champion, is a January 1988 son of Faletto's Image I. One-half interest and one-half possession sold in this champion for $12,000. His owners also received $4,800 in premiums.

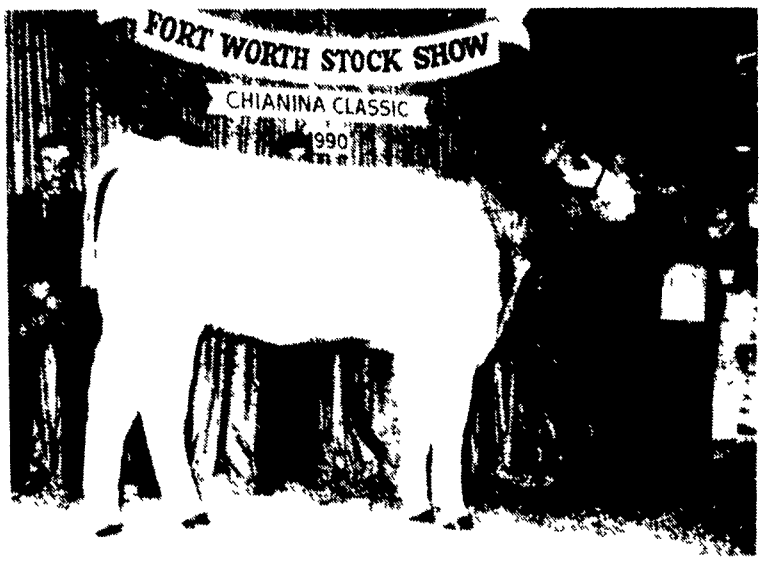
BC Canadian 138Y I, owned by Black Champ Enterprises, Inc., Waxahachie; Martin Griebat, Lewisville; and Lewis S. and Catherine W. McAnally, Amarillo, TX, was the reserve champion Italian Fullblood bull.

Rocking Arrow Jill I, another Deiter Bros. entry, and a full sister to the champion bull, was selected as the reserve champion Italian Fullblood heifer.

Moving to the Chiangus Classic, it was Southern Justice CAX selected as the grand and division IV champion bull. Receiving $12,000 in premiums were owners C & C Farms, Taft, TN and Charles Lehnert, Pulaski, TN. He is an April 1988 half-blood son of Triple A Amos 23T CAX. One-half interest and one-half possession sold in this champion for $10,000.

Also coming from division IV was the reserve champion Chiangus bull. JCA Ollie 78V CA, owned by Johnson Chiangus, North Henderson, IL and Horsley Bros., Toulon, IL., is a May 1987 half-blood son of HB Headliner I.

Grand champion Chiangus female was shown by David E. Houx, D.V.M., Ada., OH. FLF MS Flo-Joe 199X CAX, the 1989 ACA National reserve champion heifer, is an April 1988 half-blood daughter of Black Demand. She received $12,000 in premium money and one-half interest was sold for $15,000 during the Chiangus sale.



LZK Pandora's Image I won grand champion Italian Fullblood female at the second annual 1990 Italian Fullblood Chianina and fourth Chiangus Classic during the Southwest Exposition and Livestock Show. She was sired by Faletto's Image I. The grand champion, owned by Lake View Farm, East Berlin, Pennsylvania and Rocking J. Ranch, Cody, Nebraska, received $4,800 in premium money and one-half interest and one-half possession in this female, sold for $7,500.

HOS Cricket CA, owned by Deiter Bros. and Dwight D. Hossle, Faulkton, SD, was named reserve champion Chiangus heifer. This division II champion is a three-eighths April 1989 daughter of BC Total Power, CA. Full-interest and full-possession in this show prospect sold for $12,000.

Farm Bill Serves New Begining For Agriculture

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "The 1990 Farm Bill gives us the chance to offer a 'new beginning' for American agriculture — "to move toward a modern system of farming that unites and serves the common interests of the majority of people, including family farmers, consumers, environmentalists and workaday taxpayers — the people who, after all, should be the focus of farm policy," said Texas agriculture commissioner Jim Hightower.

Hightower was in Washington to testify before the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry. Joining Hightower for a press conference following the Committee testimony were U.S. Representatives Jim Jontz and John Bryant.

Also joining Hightower were representatives of national farm, consumer, and environmental organizations, including the National Farmers Union, the American Agriculture Movement, Center for Science in the Public Interest, Public Voice, and other organizations.

"We stand here today, representatives of farm, consumer and environmental organizations, to give voice of the unified vision and purpose of our diverse efforts on the 1990 Farm Bill — and to present a package of proposals that encompasses our common spirit and steers America toward a 21st-century system of family farm agriculture that is both economically and ecologically sustainable," said Hightower.

"All of us are working for an agriculture system that will ensure a safe, nutritious, good-tasting food supply at a reasonable cost for all; that will result in the conservation of our precious soil and water resources; that will reduce dependency on toxic chemicals and synthetic fertilizers. Most importantly, we are working for a system of agriculture that will keep family farmers on the land, maintaining their stewardship of our resources for generations to come, and advancing the most efficient high-quality food production system in the world," Hightower said.

"There are a lot of folks in Washington who argue that, by and large, we should be content to stick with the status quo in basis farm-policy approaches. But, like a West Texas farmer told me recently, status quo is just Latin for 'the mess we're in.'

"Here's what the mishmash of today's farm programs has done to farmers: It has busted their market prices; it has chained them to the overproduction of a few storable commodities; it has contributed to the depletion of agriculture's natural resources; it has sopped up intolerable amounts of taxpayer subsidies; it has undermined public confidence in the fairness of our system of farm supports; and it has called into question the quality and safety of our food supply.

"We are told there is little will in Washington this year to redesign the fundamental workings of federal farm programs, but we must use this 1990 bill to point those programs in a more sensible policy direction," said Hightower.

"Present policy has at its core the notion that fewer farmers can achieve more production. But I question that basic assumption — America does not have too many farmers — we have too many farmers locked in a production and marketing system in which they must constantly strain themselves, their financial resources, and their soil and water just to keep afloat. The truth is that our federal farm policies afford too little opportunity for families to farm profitably and in balance with nature," Hightower said.

"The 'New Beginnings' proposal I presented to the Senate Agriculture Committee starts by asking three basic questions: (1) What does our society want federal farm policy to achieve?; (2) who can best implement that vision?; and (3) what tools do they need to do the job?

"Who can implement these broad goals? Not Toyota. Not Merrill-Lynch. Not farm and food conglomerates. It's the family farmer — who lives on the land, makes his or her living by farming, wants to provide stewardship for the next generation, and is concerned about long-term community benefit as much as short-term profit — who can be counted on to deliver what the larger public wants from the farm economy," he said.

"This is the point at which the interests of consumers, environmentalists, and family farmers converge, and this common ground should be the focus of farm policies implemented through the 1990 legislation. Let us build on the natural proclivity of family farmers to be good stewards, to take pride in quality, and to be innovators by providing for them some tools to make big changes," Hightower said.

"The 'New Beginnings' report discusses a wide range of tools that we think should be written into this year's legislation, including raising price-support loan rates, repealing the Findley amendment, switching commodity programs from acreage bases to unit-of-production bases, expanding long-term financing for farmers (especially beginning, reentry and minority farmers), requiring country-of-orgin labeling on imported foods, and creating a Farmer Commodity Reserve for use in times of natural disaster.

"The report focuses on some of the tools needed to help reduce chemical use in agriculture. This is not merely a goal of environmentalists and consumers, but also of farm families.

"A study soon to be released by Iowa State University extension service shows that 87 percent of corn and soybean farmers surveyed want to decrease their use of agricultural chemicals. Even more impressive, of those corn and soybean farmers participating in integrated farm management, a sustainable agriculture program, 96 percent say that they want to decrease their use of chemicals even further. Naturally, they want to do this because it will lower their costs, but they also want to make their farming environment safer and improve the quality of products from their farms.

Farmers aren't any different from the rest of us. They want safe, affordable food. They want their families breathing clean air and drinking clean water," Hightower said.

"But this change won't come unless we make it come — not by heavy-handed regulation, but by policies that encourage and reward less chemical use. After all, the high-tech, high-energy consumption, high-chemical using, high-capital absorbing, intensive system of farming we now have is not the result of some natural order of things.

It exists because this country pumped enormous resources into encouraging it for the past 40 years, including federal commodity programs (remember Earl Butz: 'Get big or get out and plant fencerow to fencerow'), credit tied to chemical schedules, and chemical reps and extension agents to teach the intensive production methods.

"To change requires a similar push in another direction and some re-teaching. A grain farmer recently said to me, 'What you're saying is right. I want to find my way out from under these chemicals. But I don't know how to farm that way. You can't just cut us off. I need to learn how to do it.' He's right, and it is our proposal here that we use the life of the 1990 Farm Bill as a time of teaching, research, demonstration, and transition, providing incentives and hands-on technical assistance to help thousands of farmers make the change ot sustainable agriculture practices," he said.

"The good news is that those who do get access to tools of change put them to good use. Joe and Peggy Maddox, for example, turned their economic situation entirely around. The Maddoxes are ranchers near Colorado City, on the Texas South Plains. They have a pretty substantial operation out there — they raise livestock on 22,000 acres. That's a lot of acres, but there's only about a blade of grass per acre in this dry region, so even a family-sized operation is pretty spread out.

"Joe and Peggy are smart and hard working, and they run a fully modernized enterprise, just as they had always been told to do by the bankers, government extension agents, and chemical company representatives.

"But the practices they had been taught simply were not working for them. Using such traditional practices, they had accumulated a debt of over $3 million. They were desperate, on the verge of bankruptcy. Their son, Dalton, who began college as an agriculture economics major planning to follow in his parents' footsteps, and switched majors convinced there was no future back on the ranch," Hightower said.

"But the Maddoxes got lucky. In 1986 they attended a session sponsored by Holistic Resource Management, a small institute that had been working with ranchers in that part of the country to show them how to move toward a system of sustainable ranch management.

"Joe and Peggy converted to sustainable practices. They stopped putting expensive chemicals out there to kill the mesquite and kill weeds. They stopped putting chemicals out there to deal with the coyotes. Instead, they got dogs to herd the animals and burros to protect the animals.

"They began to rotate the herds from pasture to pasture, and that meant the old hardpan was broken up, so when the occasional rain did wander across this semi-arid country, the soil was able to absorb it, instead of letting it just run off down to the Gulf of Mexico. And, lo and behold, that single blade of grass per acre that they had been getting became two blades of grass per acre, and they were able to increase their production.

"The result is that, today, they have knocked their $3 million debt down to $400,000, and they are on schedule to have their debt completely paid off by 1993. They're going to be able to keep the ranch. Their son ended up getting an agriculture economics degree, and he and his new bride have come back to Colorado City to ranch," he said.

Farm Bill Serves

Joe Maddox told me, 'We're making money now, staying in business — whereas before we switched to these methods we didn't see a way we could stay in business. These new methods we're using have put the fun back into farming, and it is a lot of fun.'

"In Texas, we are finding that farmers and ranchers will use fewer chemicals if they get the expertise and financing to make the transition, and if it is profitable to do so.

"Sustainable agriculture will work not only because it makes sense, but also because it makes cents. We have enough experience with sustainable practices throughout the country to know that this approach works, but to expand the opportunity requires new policy initiatives.

"The people standing before you today are here to show that we are united in our resolve to see that a federal farm policy is changed to serve the family farmer, the consumer, the integrity of the environment, and the nation as a whole.

"The old ways serve no ont but a handful of chemical companies and grain traders. It is time to break ground for 21st-century agriculture," Hightower said.

'Westward Ho' For J. I. Case Expo

SILVER SPRING, Md.— "Westward ho, the wagons (or RVs!)" will be the cry from thousands of ag-heritage followers across the United States and Canada as one of North America's premier exhibitions of vintage farm equipment and historical memorabilia — the International J. I. Case Heritage Exposition — lands west of the Rocky Mountains for the first time in 1990.

Scheduled by the 2,000-member International J. I. Case Heritage Foundation, the 4th annual Case Expo will be held this year over two weekends — July 28-29 and August 4-5 — in conjunction with the annual Great Oregon Steamup and Antique Power Show at Brooks, Oregon.

The event honors 19th century ag-industrial pioneer Jerome Increase ("J. I.") Case, developer of the modern threshing machine and known worldwide as the "Threshing Machine King," and the products of the company he founded in Racine, Wisconsin, almost 150 years ago. His enterprise grew rapidly in the late 1800s to become the world's largest producer of threshing machines and agricultural steam engines, and the Case Company continues today — still based in Racine — as a major producer of farm tractors, grain harvesting combines, and a full line of other agricultural equipment.

With the Case Expo sited in the West after successful stops in 1987 at Pawnee, Oklahoma; 1988 at Kinzers, Pennsylvania; and 1989 in Austin, Manitoba, this year's event is expected to bring a whole new and varied crop of vintage Case steam engines, tractors, grain separators, cars (the old J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company manufactured a passenger car from late 1910 until 1927), stationary engines, and other machinery to Oregon next summer.

Followers of Case Heritage are expected to head for Brooks next summer to see first-hand the kind of equipment and methods used to harness the great fields and forests of the Far West. The displays also will reflect, in vintage tractors and equipment, the specialized uses which have occurred in the West at large saw mills, mines, huge seed-growing and vegetable farms, and orchards, as well as grain production spreads on both the high plateau and the Pacific's coastal plain.

For westerners, the 1990 Case Expo will offer opportunities to see exhibits from other parts of the continent. For instance, Stan and Katy Sill of Rockford, Ohio, will be bringing their rare 1924 Model X Case Roadster to Brooks. The car used to belong to the famous Bill Harrah Collection in Las Vegas and is the only Case roadster still operating in North America.

As has become a tradition at Case Expos, Helen Case Brigham, great-granddaughter of J. I. Case and one of the Case Heritage Foundation's leaders, will be on hand both weekends of the event to meet and chat with visitors at Brooks. The Case Heritage Foundation will hold its annual membership dinner-meeting at nearby Salem on Saturday evening, August 4.

Persons journeying West for the first time will find the Brooks site is within easy driving distance of some of North America's best known tourist attractions, including Oregon's beautiful State Capitol at Salem, the Columbia River Valley, some famous mountains (Hood, Rainier, and St. Helens), and a number of National Parks (Crater Lake, Olympia, Redwood, and Yellowstone to mention a few).

More detailed information on the event, as well as advice on accommodations in the area, for persons who are interested in visiting the Case Expo is available on request. Send a self-addressed envelope with 25 cents postage to 1990 Expo-Info, Case Foundation, 204 East Melbourne Avenue, Silver Spring, MD 20901, (301) 587-5552.

YOUR MASTER MIX DEALER HAS EVERYTHING WE NEED TO PUT YOUR REPLACEMENT HEIFERS IN THE MILK LINE AT 24 MONTHS.

EXCEPT FOR DIRECTIONS TO YOUR PLACE.

The benefits of Bovatec® (lasalocid) for replacement heifers are well worth a visit. Bovatec is the only feed additive approved to both control coccidiosis* and improve growth rate.

As a result, she reaches breeding weight sooner — and the milk line sooner.

But that is just part of the story. Bovatec improved growth rate puts her in the right condition for calving earlier at less cost.

Let's get together — the sooner the better — because we want to see your replacement herd on the milk line earlier.

Good idea?

BOVATEC® (lasalocid)

Purcellville, Virginia

Carl Klahold - Herdsman - Foxlease Farm (right)

When Jerry Hall accepted his position as Manager of Foxlease Farm in January of 1988, his charge was simple: Return this herd to the position of profit and respect that it has held in the past! The first thing this 1984 Distinguished Dairyman did was to cull 25% of the herd. His reasoning was: "We were carrying several cows that didn't deserve to be there. There was some response but it was obvious we needed to revamp the feeding program."

Jerry went on the Purina Program on February 10, 1988. The results were almost immediate. The herd tested over 70 lbs. of milk on the March test (a gain of over 11 lbs.) and the April test yielded a gain of over 16 lbs. to 75.5 lbs. Income over feed cost was also at an all time high.

"People look at our performance and speculate as to the factors that caused it. Well, other than culling those cows before we began the program, we have made no other changes... same people same forages and no new cows."

Jerery says that with proper nutrition (particularly the Dry Cow Program), cows have been coming fresh in better condition and have been throwing bigger, healthier calves than they were during his first two months on the job. "I'm a firm believer in the fact that if you take care of the cow's belly, she will take care of everything else. That's how it worked in my past experience with Purina... it worked then and it will work now."
